To a potential counselor,

I am interested in restarted counseling (we had a single session). There must be - - however – a laser-like focus on this. It must be 100% about obtaining me professional employment.

The Prologue to my unfinished novel (that is online – at johnswriting.org – along with the book) gives an overview of my life.

An aspect of my situation that is especially vexing is how isolated I am. Honestly, I crave to just talk to someone about my desire to achieve some level of professional success: this – of course – entails overcoming the unique barriers erected by my past.

Here are two videos where I discuss this:

Employment Appeal \(April 10\)

Info Interview Appeal \(March 18\)

I'm very willing to pay for such consultation: the individual – besides base competence – would need to have some experience working people with resume/experience deficits similar to mine.

I'm taking the liberty to provide this link to my most recent essay \(posted on April 22\).

If you think that you have the skill set to assist me, I'd love to work with you. Otherwise, I request that you forward this email to someone that specializes in midlife career change.

Namaste & Shalom
