

BODY-CAMERA DECLINATION ACKNOWLEDGMENT & LIABILITY WAIVER

The client has declined the use of a body-worn camera during this service visit. Body-camera use is a standard safety and transparency practice designed to protect both the client and the service provider. By choosing not to allow video or audio recording, the client understands and agrees to the following:

- No recorded documentation will exist to verify the condition of the property before, during, or after the visit.
- The service provider cannot be held responsible for any damage, defects, or issues discovered after the visit that cannot be verified without recorded evidence.
- The service provider is not liable for any claims of missing, moved, or damaged items, as no recording will exist to confirm the condition of the property or the actions taken on site.
- The client accepts full responsibility for any disputes, misunderstandings, or unverified claims that may arise due to the absence of recorded documentation.
- The client acknowledges that declining body-camera use removes an important layer of protection for both parties.
