

MEMBER PROFILE

Gabrielle Stevens

Chief People and Culture Officer at Konica Minolta

Gabrielle Stevens, Chief People and Culture Officer at Konica Minolta, is an accomplished leader in people and culture with deep expertise in talent, engagement, and inclusion. She recently completed IMD's flagship Strategies for Leadership program, designed for high-potential women executives. Gabrielle is recognised for balancing business transformation with employee wellbeing and cultural integrity, fostering high-performing, values-led workplaces.

Konica Minolta Business Solutions Australia is a market leader in print and imaging solutions, IT services, and workplace automation. With a strong national presence and global network, the company combines cutting-edge technology with a people-first approach. It is committed to sustainability, diversity, and positive social impact, supporting a collaborative and inclusive workforce.

Gabrielle joined Chief HR to stay ahead in a rapidly evolving people and culture landscape. "The CHRO role is changing faster than ever and access to real-world insights and shared experiences is critical," she says. Chief HR provides a space to explore trends, benchmark strategies, and learn from peers facing similar challenges. "It's not just about networking; it's about building a trusted circle where you can test thinking, gain fresh perspectives, and bring back practical approaches to your organisation."