

About the author

Shirley Osborne is an internationally recognized advocate for women's leadership. She is a writer and keynote speaker, whose work bridges grassroots empowerment, higher education, and global governance.

Her commitment to building women's leadership extends beyond the United States. Shirley has taught leadership to college women in China, equipping the next generation of women leaders with tools for confidence, resilience, and influence. She has also served at the highest levels of international governance as Vice Chairperson of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, headquartered in London, and as Regional Representative to the Commonwealth Women Parliamentarians of the Caribbean, Americas, and Atlantic Region.

With her unique combination of local insight and global perspective, Shirley inspires women to lead with courage and vision, and without apology.
