ROSIE THE DRAGON AND CHARLIE MAKE WAVES

It's summertime, and you're invited for a rollicking day at the pool with Charlie and his pet dragon (and best friend!), Rosie. But be careful—swimming with a dragon can be, um, challenging. As Rosie and Charlie blow bubbles (don't forget your umbrella!), practice flutter kicks (watch out for tidal waves!), and offer shoulder rides (hang on tight!), Rosie proves that dragons make the most fun pets ever. Now if only Charlie can keep Rosie's attention focused on the rules at the pool and NOT on her gummy snacks (you know, the ones that cause stinky dragon breath!)...Grab your towels and sunscreen and join Rosie and Charlie for a fun-filled summer adventure!

REVIEWS

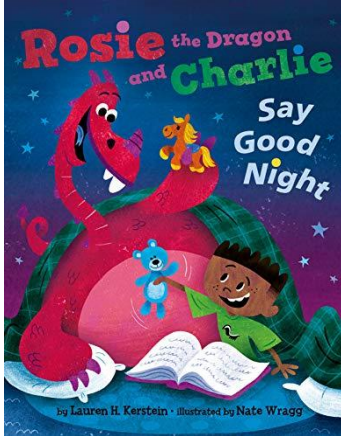

"The digital illustrations are bright, playful, and attractive, well suited to the story... There are some young dragon lovers and fans of mischief who will revel in this silly romp."

—Kirkus Reviews

"Kerstein's playful story about friendship, patience, and responsibility for a pet is nicely matched by Wragg's bold, colorful illustrations, rendered in blocky shapes and a vivid color palette. New pet owners are the natural choice for this one, but kids with younger siblings might appreciate it, too."

ROSIE THE DRAGON AND CHARLIE SAY GOOD NIGHT

Rosie the dragon's bedtime routine has been a little bumpy lately. But not to worry! Charlie is prepared with his lists, rules, and fire extinguisher—everything a boy needs to help guide his pet dragon (and best friend) to a peaceful night's sleep. But with bath-time bubble trouble, fiery-hot pajamas, and stuffed animal search-and-rescues, tucking this dragon into bed is not an easy task. And what happens when thunder strikes? Snuggle up with this adorable duo as they conquer bedtime the best way: together!

"This humorous story is a sweet representation of caretaking and patience, with a parallel that can extend to older and younger siblings as well as to parent-child relationships, perhaps making young readers a bit more self-reflective and empathetic."

HOME FOR A WHILE

Calvin is in foster care, and he wants to trust someone, anyone, but is afraid to open his heart. He has lived in a lot of houses, but he still hasn't found his home. When he moves in with Maggie, she shows him respect, offers him kindness, and makes him see things in himself that he's never noticed before. Maybe this isn't just another house, maybe this is a place Calvin can call home, for a while.

STARRED REVIEW

"takes apart the fostering experience as few books have—from the newcomer's point of view...VERDICT Most books with this much purpose fall down on the lessons. This one transcends them, for a true story of how a home happens."

— School Library Journal

"...the book is as much a model for foster parents as it is a story to provide validation of foster children's experiences...Gentle and wise—especially as a read for foster parents."

REMEMBERING SUNDAYS WITH GRANDPA

Henry and his mom feel Grandpa's love in all his special places: in the rocking chair where he read stories with silly voices, in the cucumbers that always made him hiccup, and in the jewelry box he used to wind up so they could dance. As they remember the many loving moments they shared, they work through their grief.

Remembering Sundays with Grandpa illustrates how even when someone is no longer part of the physical world, their love lives on forever.

REVIEWS

Remembering Sundays with Grandpa is a heartwarming story about bereavement. Sensitively written, it can help a child work through their grief after the loss of a grandparent or another special person.

—StorySnug

Sundays weren't the same for Henry since his grandpa died. He is grieving, looking for comfort, and asking big questions like "why did he have to die?" Henry's mom gently helps him find comfort in memories and together they remember, grieve, and begin to heal.

This is a beautiful book that directly deals with the pain of loss. The author is a psychotherapist and masterfully opens doorways to impossible conversations and healing both for our littles and for us.

—Charlotte H. Offsay (Picture Book Recommendations)

In her recently released book, Remembering Sundays with Grandpa, Lauren Kerstein approaches the heavy topic of loss in a light, fresh and child-friendly manner. This book is appropriate for children ages 3 - 8. It can be helpful in addressing any kind of grief, whether it be a grandparent, a friend, a pet, or even a separation as in foster care or adoption. Lauren touches on many important points in dealing with a grieving child that I strongly support and promote as a therapist.

—Vasilia Graboski - Psyched Writer

This is a sweet story that addresses the death of a grandparent and how a child comes to terms with their grief.

—Imagination Soup

HOPE RODE – NEW RELEASE - August 12, 2025

Following the Great Depression, literacy rates in the country had dwindled, and education and opportunities were harder to come by, especially in areas like rural Appalachia. But still, there was a dream: a vision of a nation in which reading was accessible to all—even those in the most remote places. The Packhorse Library project of the 1930s and 1940s called upon Kentucky women to make that vision a reality and rise to the difficult and demanding job of delivering books on horseback. The Packhorse librarians were brave, steadfast, and resilient. For years, the women endured rough terrain, harsh conditions, and exhaustion. And with each book delivered and reading lesson taught, the librarians ushered in a new era for Kentuckians.

REVIEWS

“In lyrical language, Kerstein salutes the packhorse librarians—women who were hired by the Works Progress Administration to provide mobile library services to remote areas of Kentucky.”

—Booklist—SLJ

Lauren Kerstein.

Looking back at the making of her book, Kerstein concluded, “What emerges is the complexity of the phenomenon of the Pack Horse Library Project and its many layers—from its historical significance to its social-emotional learning component, to the story of the remarkable strength and resilience of people during hard times. My hope is these books will raise kids’ awareness and appreciation of this program and that they will look at their own librarians and their book-filled libraries in awe and with gratitude.”
