

Bio

A graduate of UC-Santa Barbara with a B.A. in Sociology, Brandon Ervin has been involved in the world of education and social services for over 15 years prior to founding the consultancy. Brandon's reputation has been built on program development and implementation which has helped garner growth of programs leading the way in youth development across the valley of Las Vegas, NV. Throughout his career, Brandon has served as Program Director and Program Manager for organizations such as Olive Crest, Communities in Schools, and the City of Las Vegas that focus on youth and families while providing opportunities for students to thrive in the midst of the barriers they face daily.

Through these career experiences, Brandon has always found time to create and facilitate youth groups at multiple schools while serving as a mentor to students who needed the most support. Brandon also dedicated years to coaching High School basketball in a way to stay connected to the youth first and foremost. Brandon has an innate ability to connect with others and build strong relationships, especially with youth. Known for his compassion, his strategic thinking, his innovative program planning, as well as communication skills as a leader and public speaker, Brandon wanted to find a way to positively affect youth on a daily basis.

After years of working with large organizations to exact change, Brandon realized that he has a passion for the youth and the struggles they face that require a level of connection that speaks to his true purpose. Live R.I.C.H. was created to provide programming that focuses on the child, creating relationships and safe environments that allow them to see their full potential and realize the path they can create for themselves to succeed.
