

Wow... it's already time to say goodbye. It just feels like we walked into school some time ago with our wide eyes, nervous but excited of what each new session would bring us but here we are, at the edge of the cliff.

Let's be real, the past few years haven't exactly been a walk in the park. Oh god, those stressful exams, and the frantic turning of pages during the last five minutes, with a bit of whispering here and there. But nonetheless, these moments are something that I'm safe to say, no one will forget.

The refreshing trip, uncontrollable laughter when someone sneezed out too loud, and fighting over a goal during football. But somehow, we made it, thanks to all the people in this room.

But most all, we should be thankful to director sir's vision, that has guided us through our journey at Manav Mangal Smart School. Our Director Sir has always said that education isn't just about grades and exams, but about shaping us into well-rounded individuals—people who think critically, innovate fearlessly, and lead with integrity. His focus on blending technology with traditional values has transformed our school into not just a place of learning, but a hub for future leaders.

And let's be honest, without Director Sir's vision, we might still be using chalkboards and wondering if our textbooks were made of stone! But thanks to him, we've had the chance to learn in a space that encourages creativity and forward-thinking, making sure we're not just ready for tomorrow, but for the future.

Similarly, the vision of Manav Mangal has always been to push us to achieve excellence in every aspect of our lives—not just in academics, but in character, empathy, and resilience. Our school has made sure we're not just equipped to solve equations, but also to solve problems that matter. And I'm sure, years from now, when we look back, we'll realise the lessons we've learned here go far beyond the walls of the classroom. So, as we leave here today, let's carry with us not only the knowledge we've gained but the values that have shaped us. And yes, let's also remember the countless moments when we were told, "You'll thank me for this later." Well, I think we can all agree—we finally do.

Thank you to our incredible teachers, to the staff, thank you Beyoncé and especially thank you, Director Sir, whose vision has made us who we are today. Though we are saying goodbye today, the lessons and memories we have gained here will stay with us forever. Thank you Manav Mangal, for shaping who we are. See you all in the future!
