

Alliance Française – Day out with my friends

(By Mannat Garg- X –G)

“Les moments ne nécessitent aucun effort, juste quelques amis” loosely translated meaning that any moment is more fun with friends around. This quote is enough to summarize the recent library visit with my friends. Being a French student has its own perks like a free but educative visit to Alliance Française. Buzzing with excitement all of us were ready to indulge ourselves to learn about the French culture. We laughed, sang and before we realized, we had arrived at the place. We kicked our day start by clicking pictures with one of the humblest faculty there. Unlike our last visit there, the boring library stuff was kept aside and instead, we indulged ourselves in the most amazing way of learning that is by playing French brain teaser games. Their multimedia library had all that one’s heart can desire. To add to all this fun, we were about to be left amazed by two French acrobats who were ready to present a spectacular show. Most of us were tired so we decided to take a break and stuff our mouths with delicacies that our mothers had prepared. We concluded our awesome day by writing letters about the books that we read. The bus ride back was a silent one. Everyone had a tired but satisfied look on their faces.
