OUR INVESTMENT PHILOSOPHY

The principles of value investing pioneered by Benjamin Graham form the foundation of our investment strategy. We ensure that every investment has a margin of safety, which is the difference between a stock's intrinsic value and the price we pay. The key to a reliable margin of safety is a stable or growing intrinsic value. The greater the margin of safety, the greater our ability to preserve capital.

Our approach is highly concentrated, benchmark-agnostic, and driven by rigorous bottom-up analysis. We consider a permanent loss of capital as our measure of risk, not Beta. Cash is a residual of our opportunity set.

We are 'tempered' when faced with uncertainty, pessimism and fear over a downturn. We do not shy away from market volatility, but rather embrace it, as these situations provide investment opportunities.

All data is reported in CAD unless otherwise noted. Figures are audited to December 31, 2019.

Performance figures are presented net of fees based on Tempered Global Value Fund Series M historical returns. Investment management fees, performance fees, custodian fees, administrative fees, and trading expenses all may be associated with fund investments. The current fee structure was implemented on July 1, 2019. Prior to that, there was no performance fee component. The indicated rates of return are the historical annual compounded total returns including changes in net asset value and reinvestment of all distributions, but do not take into account sales, redemption, distribution or optional charges or income taxes payable by any investor that would have reduced returns. Investment funds values change frequently. Past performance is no guarantee of future results.
