FANNINGS TEA GRADES

Fannings are small pieces of tea that are left over after higher grades of teas are gathered to be sold. Traditionally these were treated as the rejects of the manufacturing process in making high-quality leaf tea like the orange pekoe. Fannings with extremely small particles are sometimes called dusts.

WATER-BASED FLAVOUR TEA

We refer to most hot beverages with herbal or fruit infusions as tea (i.e., honey lemon tea, ginger tea). However, technically these infusions should be called tisanes. So many tea drinkers are surprised during our tea tastings when we reveal that all teas come from the same Camellia Sinensis plant.
