Life

Spring 2026

Many of us feel awkward about the word evangelism. It can sound intimidating, guilt-laden, or like something for confident extroverts with all the answers. If that's how you feel, this course is for you.

This term, our Hub Small Groups will be using a video-based training resource designed to help ordinary Christians grow in confidence, clarity, and compassion when it comes to speaking about Jesus – without pressure, performance, or pretending to be someone you're not.

We're living in a moment when something really is shifting. Many people around us are quietly searching for meaning, hope, and truth, often looking in places that can't truly satisfy. This course helps us see that we already have good news worth sharing – not as a sales pitch, but as real food for spiritually hungry people.

Through short, accessible training videos from experienced Christian leaders and evangelists, we'll be encouraged and equipped to:

- understand what evangelism really is (and what it isn't),
- grow in confidence that Jesus is good news for today,
- and take simple, realistic steps in everyday life.

Moments of Purpose

Throughout the spring there will be a number of opportunities for us to engage friends and invite them to join us at different events.

To kick things off, on Thursday 26 February at 7.00pm, we will be hosting BBC sitcom writer James Cary with his touring show God, The Bible and Everything. This event has been very well reviewed and is suitable for people from a wide range of backgrounds and ages.

In March, our Sunday services will be particularly aimed at guests who are invited along. We will be exploring the evidence for the resurrection and the implications of it being true, as we work through 1 Corinthians 15.

Also in March, there will be an opportunity for our Hubs to join in together through two Weeks of Purpose. During these weeks, Hubs are free to do whatever they feel would be most helpful in engaging people they know and love with the good news of Jesus. That might be something social, a small local event to invite friends to, praying for particular people, or asking friends to read the Bible with you – whatever feels appropriate for your group.
