American Native Medical Transport is an American Indian-owned Emergency and Non-Emergency Medical Transportation Company, which was founded in 1990 by Mr. Ross Dia, who is a member of the San Carlos Apache Tribe in Arizona. ANMT is a company with a proud heritage of progress and innovation, and a future promising opportunity and challenge.

American Native Medical Transport has a commitment towards improving the quality of health care provided to Native American people, hereby pledging its dedication towards providing the most efficient and cost-effective emergency medical services to Native American people at the highest level of health care they each deserve including emergent, non-emergent and Dialysis transportation services. ANMT corporate offices are located in Window Rock, AZ (Navajo Nation Capital) and proudly serves the Navajo Nation via a contract with the Navajo Nation Indian Health Services.

American Native Medical Transport ("ANMT") possesses all the critical emergent transportation certification requirements of BLS, ALS and/or ACLS necessary to provide the highest level of care services to its customers. All the medical crew are trained in pre-hospital care and are required to have a minimum of two years of hospital-based ER, ICU/CCU experience and the Ground crews are highly experienced, qualified EMTs and Paramedics. Each transport is coordinated and monitored from pick-up to delivery by our experienced teams of professionals.

Incorporating all of these factors, “ANMT” provides the ultimate in quality ground transport. With multiple vehicles, “ANMT” will serve your needs 24 hours per day, no matter how many patients. All vehicles are equipped with latest equipment, to include cardiac monitors, continuous suction, ventilator therapy and more. ANMT has standing order/protocols for transport emergencies.

Our off-kine protocols include, but not limited to, Chest Pain of Probable Cardiac Orgin, seizure Management, Septic Shock, Acute Pulmonary Edema and the Asthmatic Patient. ANMT has in place, a comprehensive Quail Improvement Program and Problem Identification Forms that monitors the important aspects of care to include communication, medical care, response time, etc. Crews take an active part in the Quality Improvement Committee and are represented in all job positions, including R.N., CEP, CRITT, EMT and Dispatch.

American Native Medical Transport requires all drivers to possess excellent driving records and to attain certification in CPR and First Aid. Internal reviews of their driving record are done on a timely basis to ensure the safety of our patients. ANMT holds its patients with a high regard to their medical needs and transports them to their appointments on time. ANMT possesses internal capabilities to provide Dialysis non-emergent transports to Tucson (AZ), Farmington, Albuquerque (NM), Flagstaff and Phoenix (AZ). ANMT currently employs 25 non-emergent drivers and certified EMT’s; combined ANMT staff possesses over 300 years of specialized experience in the Emergent Transportation industry. The firm owns 15 non-emergent transportation vehicles and 2 emergency ambulances within its fleet.

In addition to providing a ground ambulance services, ANMT gives back to the communities we serve via scholarship programs, participation in health fairs and airport support and maintenance. ANMT sincerely appreciates and enjoys our relationship with I.H.S. service units and Native American Communities. The organization currently meets the very highest of national standards.

Michael D. Peacock, CEO & President has been providing strategic consulting services to ANMT since 2011 in the areas of: business recertification services, business plan development, capability statement development, employee policy & procedures manual development, business coaching, proposal development services and loan packaging assistance. In 2021 ANMT acquired a brand new Ambulance, which will afford ANMT to exceed ambulance compliance as required by the Indian Health Service to transport patients to local and regional dialysis centers throughout the Southwest.
