Photograph Permission

During the course of a school year the children are photographed for many reasons including, but not limited to, school related events, classroom activities, sporting events, Christmas Plays, newspaper articles, projects.

The school website contains a gallery for school photographs. These photographs will generally be group shots with no names but the faces of the children involved will be identifiable. Occasionally we may wish to name children for specific achievements.

Photographs taken at school may also be shared with educational groups such as the Kilkenny Education Centre or Educational Support groups. One example of this is the Irish American Partnership who help to fund science projects and music in schools. We may also share with sports groups such as O'Loughlin Gaels. These are generally group photos with no names.

Occasionally, the newspapers send photographers to the school. In this case names may be requested.

Where photos of the school are taken and a large number of children collectively appear in the background then the school will reasonably assume that these photographs can be published without individual permissions.

In these days of mobile phone cameras our children are photographed many times with or without our permission, and sometimes without our knowledge. We would request that parents who take photographs at school events would ensure that photographs which include children other than their own should be kept for their own use and not shared via Facebook or other Social Media sites unless permission has been given. The school can accept no responsibility for these personal photographs.

Please give some thought as to how you wish photographs of your child to be used by the school and fill in the attached permission sheet. A separate sheet should be filled out for each pupil. These documents will be kept on file for as long as your child remains on the roll of Johnswell National School and will cover photographs taken for the duration of this time. You have the right to withdraw your consent at any time in the future, bearing in mind, however, that withdrawal of consent doesn't affect the previous use of any photos taken of your child before the consent was withdrawn.

In the event that photographs are to be taken at an event where there would not be a reasonable expectation that they would be taken, or if they are to be published or posted somewhere unexpected, the school will seek further specific permission from parents. The school will also seek further permission if individual photographs of children are to be published but it is envisaged that this permission form will cover most events which take place in a normal school year.
