IMPACT FEES

In the State of Idaho, a fire district impact fee is a one-time payment charged to developers or builders who create new residential or commercial buildings in designated fire districts. The fee is intended to cover the cost of providing fire protection services to the new development.

Fire district impact fees are calculated based on the size and type of the new building, and the estimated cost of providing fire protection services to the building over a set period of time. These fees are collected at the time of building permit issuance by the city or county building department and are used to fund purchase of firefighting equipment and construction of new fire stations.

The collection and use of impact fees are regulated by state law and must be used exclusively for the provision of fire protection services. These fees are an important source of funding for the fire district, allowing the necessary resources to provide high-quality fire protection and emergency service to the community.
