Edinburgh mum found dead 48 hours after having second Covid vaccine as husband devastated

Tragic Karen Tully, 59, felt dizzy and reported having a headache in the wake of her follow-up AstraZeneca jab.

The asthma sufferer, who only returned to her job as a police 999 call handler on Monday after shielding for a year, took paracetamol before husband Richard, 63, left for work on Thursday.

But he discovered his wife of 37 years lifeless when he returned three hours later to the couple's home in Colinton, Edinburgh.

"I left for work about 6am on Thursday and gave her a cup of tea and a couple of tablets for her sore head. When I left she was fine. I came back just after 9am and that's when I found her."

Ambulance crews raced to the pad but Karen was pronounced dead at the scene.
