British model dies days after receiving Covid jab in Cyprus

Stephanie Dubois, 39, suffered from a “serious thrombotic episode” after getting the vaccine in Paphos on May 6.

Eight days after having her vaccine Ms Dubois posted on her Facebook page that she was unwell and was undergoing tests. She said:

“I have had my bloods done and there is definitely something off as my white blood cell count is high, but they don’t know what it is causing it. The doctors here are great and will be checking in with me on Sunday to see how I am doing.”

“Maybe I’m having a prolonged reaction to my Covid jab last week, or maybe those side effects affected my immune system and I’ve caught something else in the process.”

“I am completely drained, no energy and my whole body hurts with sore and weak joints... but it is better than it was this morning.”

A few days later she put up what would be her final post which was a picture of her arm bruised caused by various tests by doctors.

By May 19 the model, who split her time between the UK and Cyprus, had fallen into a coma at Nicosia hospital and “was not expected to come out of it”, according to Andrew Powers, a friend.
