Guidelines

Choosing the right paper for your creative work.

1

Uses of Fine Art Matte Papers

Matte papers work best and are often used for photos and artworks that:

- want to convey a more subtle mood
- are vintage in style
- has a lot of pastel colors
- contains a lot of text
- have large swatches of solid or similar colors
- generally have lower contrast
- are black and white
- are required to be printed in large sizes
- must be fingerprint-resistant and easy to handle

2

Differences between: Regular Smooth Matte, Heavy

Textured Matte, and Heavy Smooth Matte

These pertain to Archival paper (regular smooth matte), cold press (heavy textured matte), and hot press (heavy smooth matte). The weight (regular, heavy) and surface (smooth, textured) of the paper affects the overall look and feel of the print. Thicker, heavier papers usually offer crisper text and less ink bleed which makes them a preferred choice for artists. Smooth paper gives off a more detailed and well-defined image whereas textured paper conveys more depth and contrasts to the final output. How thick or textured the paper should be depends on what you believe will showcase your artwork or photo in the best way.

Uses of Fine Art Glossy Papers

Semi-glossy and glossy photo papers are great for prints that have rich colors and tones, lots of imagery and minimal text. Our semi-glossy paper is an archival grade paper and offers a very full color range. Colors really "pop" on this paper, bringing out the vividness of the photos and artwork that is printed on it--bringing forth a lot of details in the print. The coating on the paper significantly reduces glare and smudges from fingerprints, making it easier to display your work without worrying about damaging it.

Here’s a summary of the characteristics of different paper types.

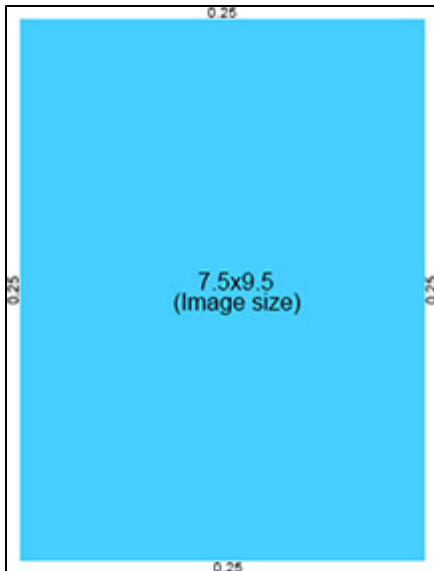

Paper Type	Cold-press	Hot-press	Archival Matte	Semi-gloss
Weight (gsm)	340	330	230	250
Finish	Matte	Matte	Matte	Satin

What is Foam-mounted Print?

A foam-mounted print is a high-quality paper print affixed to a lightweight yet sturdy foamcore backing. This combination ensures the print remains flat, smooth, and durable, providing a professional and polished look.

Difference Between a Print and a Mounted Print

While a standard print is simply an image on paper, a mounted print is attached to a rigid backing, such as foamcore. Foamcore-mounted prints maintain their shape and integrity, offering a superior presentation.

Why Mount Artworks and Pictures?

Mounting artworks and photos elevates both their visual appeal and durability. By using a backing such as Foamcore, prints gain solidity and support that eliminates concerns of warping or wrinkling. This makes the prints more manageable, easier to showcase, and transport. Additionally, the sleek backing provided through mounting delivers a premium, gallery-worthy appearance.

Displaying and Framing Foam-Mounted Prints

Foam-mounted prints are versatile and can be displayed in various ways. The mounting process not only makes prints look better but also simplifies the hanging process, ensuring they remain level and secure. Once you have your foam-mounted print, you can prop them up on shelves or desks, easily hang them on walls using adhesive, or even frame them for added protection and aesthetic appeal.

Our solid wood stretcher bars ensure that the canvas print does not warp or bow over time. The rounded edges and beautifully beveled sides of our stretcher bars allow minimal contact with the canvas.

Classical canvas effect where the main image continues over the sides of the canvas. It is more pronounced in the 1.50" stretching option.

Mirror Wrap

The edge of the image gets reflected or 'mirrored' over the sides of the canvas. It's a good option to avoid losing details near the edges.

Solid-Border Wrap

The edges of a canvas can be any solid color you choose. It's another good option when there are important details near the edges of the image.

Metal Prints

Display your photos and artworks in a way that's both beautiful and durable. The infusion of the image to the aluminum's coating offers a level of vibrancy and vividness not seen in other print mediums. Plus, their protective polymer coating makes them durable, scratch-resistant, and water-resistant.

- Production Time: 2-3 business days
- Next Day production available
- Printing Method: Giclee, Eco-Solvent Inkjet
- Available Sizes: 5×5" to 40×60"
- Standard, custom, and large print sizes available

Vivid Details

Also known as Aluminum prints, metal prints are made from sleek aluminum sheets where the image is transferred through dye sublimation. This involves printing the image onto transfer paper before heating or baking it together with polymer-coated metal. As a result, the metal print finish is basically the ink that merges with the medium, making the output sturdy and incredibly vibrant. Various sizes available up to 24×36".

Color Accuracy

Our giclee, eco-solvent inkjet printers are color calibrated regularly to ensure the most color-accurate prints. These bright, vivid, and amazing colors will resist fading for over 100 years and help your prints last for generations.

SURFACE OPTIONS

Glossy White

The glossy surface is the popular option as it brings out the vibrancy of the print. The white base allows accurate color. The whites of the image appear white, and the colors appear natural and how you expect them to be. It offers a vibrant look with rich color and high contrast.

- Surface: Glossy
- Base: White

Glossy Silver

The glossy surface provides a vibrant, modern display. The silver base allows the aluminum to show through. Since the white point is the metal itself, the image will look darker and overall color accuracy will be reduced. It's highly recommended for high-contrast black and white images.

- Surface: Glossy
- Base: Silver
