Kelly Rosemann is an ABO certified optician with over 25 years of optical experience and is a technical level II ABO approved speaker. She started her optical career in 1997 as an apprentice optician in St. Louis, MO, and became ABO Certified in 1998. Through the years, she has worked for both corporate-owned, as well as independent ECPs, including a cold-open ECP practice she joined in 2003, which she helped grow into the million-dollar practice that it is today.

After 15 years of managing that practice, she left in 2018 to join Hoya Vision Care as a Territory Sales Manager and in 2019 was voted by her peers as “Customer Service TSM of the Year.” She has followed her passion for educating, and currently works for HOYA’s Technical Marketing Department as their National Technical Training Manager – ECP. She looks forward to more opportunities to educate ECPs around the country about optics and eyecare.
