

In the current unpredictable environment, business leaders encounter extraordinary security risks, spanning from cyber assaults to physical hazards. However, numerous firms lack awareness of the actual risks and liabilities faced by their executives.

The recent tragic death of the United Healthcare CEO has prompted many organizations to reevaluate their executive protection policies. It serves as a sobering reminder of the importance of such policies, and how they are managed and updated.

Does your company have an executive protection policy? In not, don't worry, aside from conducting risk and threat assessment, we also provide complete executive protection SOP's

K Street Group Security & Risk Mitigation is here to assist you in conducting a comprehensive analysis of corporate executive risks and threats, as well as evaluating your current executive protection policy.

Contact Bob Aromando at baromando@thekstreetgroup.com, or call, 908-200-7344 for a confidential discussion of your corporate executive protection program