NEWS RELEASE

For Immediate Release
Delivery of Two Extraction Systems in Fort Erie, ON

Vancouver, B.C., February 21, 2019 – HERITAGE CANNABIS HOLDINGS CORP (CSE: CANN) (“Heritage” or “Company”) is pleased to announce the arrival of the first two Vitalis Q90 extraction systems at the CannaCure Corp (“CannaCure”) facility in Fort Erie, Ontario.

The highly calibrated extraction machines will be temporarily installed in re-purposed clean rooms as CannaCure prepares for the buildout of phase 2. The planned second phase will include dedicated extraction rooms and other ancillary extraction related services, with an anticipated completion of August 2019 at an estimated cost of $1 million.

Once certified, the Fort Erie location will have a potential annual processing capacity in excess of 150,000 kilograms of dried cannabis or hemp input per year, which could produce up to 6,500 kilograms of cannabis resin on an annual basis.

Heritage will have a potential combined extraction capacity of 300,000 kilograms through its Falkland and Fort Erie facilities. Both CannaCure and PhyeinMed have applied and are waiting to be awarded their Standard Processing Licence from Health Canada, allowing both locations to begin extracting dried cannabis and hemp.

“Our management team continues to move quickly on executing our business plan. We are well on our way to establishing ourselves as one of the leaders in the Canadian extraction industry.” said Clint Sharples, CEO of Heritage “our team continues to have discussions to provide services to third parties, as well as producing our own products.”

Installation of these two units will be performed by the experienced team at Purefarma Solutions which is expected to take approximately two weeks until they are ready to be tested and certified by the manufacturer.

About Heritage Cannabis Holdings Corp.
