*Bees transport pollen between flowers.
This causes them to produce seeds.*

Some plants, like dandelions, spread their seeds by wind. The breeze carries away these tiny seeds far and wide.

This weed is full of seeds.

Lots of seeds are surrounded by sweet fruits so that they are eaten and spread by animals.

Brightly coloured fruits, and the seeds they contain, are eaten by birds like this waxwing.

I need seeds from trees.

Insects enjoy the high energy juices from soft, ripe fruits like blackberries.

I feed with glee. It is sweet.

*Woodmice scamper through the leaves
as they search for food that has fallen from the trees above.*

This jay has an amazing memory and knows exactly where it has hidden its stash of acorns.

Some acorns are forgotten, and they remain asleep during the winter season.

The seed is asleep, deep in the mud.

a shoot. Can you see them?*

The green bit pops free.
