Shrew are you?

Which route will take the barn owl to its prey, the invasive greater white-toothed shrew?

A B C

GOT IT!

The discovery of the greater white-toothed shrew in the UK could be bad news for our native shrews, as it is bigger, breeds faster and may cause many problems.

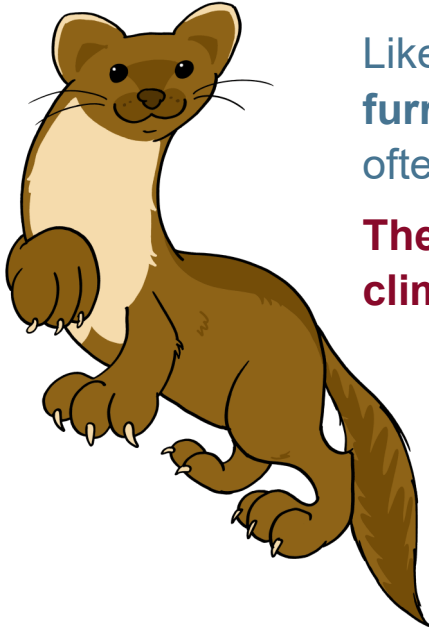

We can detect which species are in an area by investigating the contents of owl pellets. When owls eat small mammals, like mice, voles and shrews, they cough up a bundle of fur and bones, which we call a pellet.

What is a mammal?

Mammals are a special group of animals that share certain features.

Can you draw in the missing things as asked for in each of the examples?

Like this pine marten, most mammals have furry bodies that keep them warm. They often have ears on the outside.

The pine marten needs a branch to climb along. Can you draw one?

Mammals give birth to their young, just like this grey seal.

Can you add some smooth beach pebbles for them to lie on?

All mammals feed their young with milk produced by their mothers.

These badgers need a nest of soft grass. Can you make them nice and cozy?

How to help a Hedgehog

Can you draw what the hedgehog needs to be healthy and happy?

- Juicy snails and slugs to eat.
- A pond get a drink of water.
- Holes in fences to sneak through.
- A pile of leaves to hide in during winter.

Take this home and help a hedgehog in your garden!
