Sponsorship Partnership Overview

My story is Oklahoma through and through.

I am proud Tulsa native; I was raised on local youth fields and graduated to the national stage as one of the most respected young athletes in college football. I am a 4-star recruit, Army All-American, and the No. 1 player in the state of Oklahoma, I now enter the 2026 season as a redshirt sophomore and projected starting defensive end/edge rusher for the University of Oklahoma.

Yet my greatest impact is not measured in sacks or statistics — it's measured in service.

In 2026, I was voted the SEC Community Player of the Year, recognizing my commitment to giving back to the very communities that shaped me. This season, I will also make national history as the only player in college football donating a portion of his NIL earnings to the Tunnel to Towers Foundation, helping pay off mortgages for Gold Star families and fallen first responders.

I believe success means lifting others as you climb.

That belief is the foundation of the 1st Annual Team Okoye Football Camp — a free, high-impact youth experience created specifically for Tulsa-area boys and girls who deserve access to mentorship, opportunity, and positive role models.

Through the support of sponsors and community partners:

100 local youth attend at no cost

Every participant receives a Team Okoye backpack, camp T-shirt, and wristband

Food and drinks are provided for all campers

Instruction is led by current Oklahoma Sooners players and retired NFL athletes

Youth gain direct access to mentorship from athletes who share their background and dreams

This camp is more than a football event.

It is a day of confidence-building, encouragement, and exposure to possibilities many children have never experienced.

I invite you to stand with me in investing back into Tulsa — the community that raised me — and in creating opportunity, hope, and inspiration for the next generation.
