The Roos debuted a new Ladies' Day jumper this season for the A Grade and Women's teams. The pink floral design acknowledges our ongoing support for the McGrath Foundation and how the club has bloomed with female participation.

CELEBRATING OUR VOLUNTEERS

Volunteers are what power the Roos. Behind the scenes and on game day, everyone's efforts, big and small keep us heading in the right direction.

Each year we achieve great things because of people's generosity of time and talent.

THANK YOU 😊

Chelsea Carroll is the Roos' treasurer and works hard to ensure bills are paid.

There is a lot of 'invisible' work that goes into making our club flourish year round and Chelsea is a key contributor.

NATIONAL VOLUNTEER WEEK

THANK YOU 😊

Brett 'Ruffy' Ruff gets his steps up every round taking 100s of high quality action shots of all age groups.

He generously shares these on his photography page for download.

Erin Buchan is the creative mind behind the club's social media.

With flair and great attention to detail, she keeps us up to date with game times, result updates, events and other important information.

THANK YOU 😊

Adonna Ruff continues to be the first responder to medical emergencies on field and has used kilometres of strapping tape and vats of sports creams over the years to keep everyone performing at their best.

We appreciate her expertise and care each week.

ROUND 5

Round 4 & 5 for the AFL Capricornia League was Sir Doug Nicholls Round.

Roos A Grade and Women's teams proudly wore the club's Indigenous design jersey, based on North Melbourne's 2019 strip.

Illustrated by Gunmuk woman and artist Lorraine Kabbindi White, the jumper features the totems of each Indigenous player at North Melbourne - honey ant, goanna, water and the Rainbow Serpent.

The design proved lucky for North Melbourne as they won each game they played while wearing the jumper - Western Bulldogs and the eventual premiers of that season, Richmond.
