Freedom Social Skills Support Workers

We value helping to teach children and adolescents to learn important skills that will increase their independence, social connection and quality of life.

Support Work is a highly individualised service. We will work with you to find you a Support Worker who matches your child's needs and interests, help you set achievable goals and then send our Support worker to provide in-home, or community participation support.

Together we will help you ensure your child or adolescent is learning new skills and moving in an upwards direction towards meeting their developmental goals.

These are some of the things your Support Worker can assist you, your child and adolescent with:

- Assist in the delivery of programs developed by your Allied Health Providers or other Service Providers
- Engage in activities to develop skills in the following domains: Social skills, Play, Language, Cognitive and independent life skills
- Visit locations in the community and engage in community-based activities
- Facilitating social interaction with peers
- Develop life skills, independence skills, occupational or school readiness skills
- Basic personal hygiene, feeding and dressing

Support Worker Intake Process

We understand that Support Work is a highly individualised service. As such during our initial intake a qualified Senior Support Worker or Consultant will sit down with you and begin to understand your needs and requirements. At this point we will work to find you a suitable support worker who is available to visit you in your home, or in the community. During this initial intake we will write your child's support profile, in addition to 5 - 10 realistic goals for your child to work towards.

Our Support Workers come to you

Our Support Workers are chosen for their skill-set, reliability, enthusiasm and passion for helping children achieve their goals. All of our Support Workers have a verified WWCC, police check, relevant experience and professional development in working with individuals with a disability. Freedom Social Skills prides itself on Providing ongoing education opportunities for our Support Workers, to ensure we are delivering the best service possible.
