First calf with Brian, Kayla, Cameron (Bobby) & Beatrice Howe (of Hettinger).

Trying to compose oneself, MeMe, ran fingers thru hair - - didn't want to look unruly but right now, that's all MeMe could visualize. I must look on the outside as mixed up as I feel on the inside. The picture, the dream was almost - - anyway, as screwy as now looking around the Time Machine - - had the hit on the head - the lightening bolt affected my thought pattern - - questions, questons - -.

Knock, knock was once again being heard, and MeMe now realized there was someone at the door. Opening, much to MeMe's surprise stood the young person, who MeMe had beat out by one point to win the adventure in the Time Machine. Apprehension set in and all MeMe could think about was - - oh no - -.

Much to MeMe's surprise the outcome was completely different. A warm welcome was extended, a thank you was given for all the work MeMe had done, giving up family for a year, recording stories, all in the name of helping others.

MeMe began to relax and invited the person to come in and see what it was like in the Time Machine. Time went so fast and MeMe began feeling so comfortable with this person, that felt it was okay to tell what has been going on. After all, parents, grandparents, not available to share anything - - well MeMe began feeling a little lonely - - had been trying so hard to place confidence in people of community. Feeling no results as good - - and this new person - - MeMe began sharing what had happened.

Told about looking for Grandfathers story book and searching all over - - finally finding it - - then the letter - the picture - storm coming up, forgetting the book - - the lightening bolt and finally the dream.

The picture, so beautiful, then the dream - - the picture walking to me. I never once stopped to see if someone was carrying it, if it were really coming toward me. All I did was run behind bushes so as to not look afraid. But the picture kept coming after me.

“What was in the picture?” Questioned the person.

MeMe stopped, as thought trying to remember - - then it all came back - - Grandpa wrote in his letter - - never, never forget this picture, place it in your heart - - so deep that you will never forget - -.

The picture in my dream was the man in the picture, not really the picture that was coming after me but I was afraid so I ran - -.

And now - - looking up with tears of gratitude, for the person who came - -.

WOW Moments

by Urben Gratz

There were some "Wow Moments" at the Mott/Regent School gymnasium on Friday, April 5th, 2024. The elementary students, kindergarten through eight grade, presented a very enjoyable and entertaining music program - - one of the best that I have ever attended.

The lighting, sound system, and the stage decorations were all very well done. The unique band arrangement of "Old MacDonald Had a Farm" as played by the fifth and six grade band at the opening of the program, put a smile on many of the faces of the full-house audience.

As I listened and watched those students perform, I felt that they all seem to be having a super fun time.

Mikaela Fattorini the Music Director, K through 12 at the Mott/Regent school is to be commended for the wonderful job she is doing with these students. I know how much hard work goes into preparing, not only the music, but also the organizing, animation, dances and choreography.

Congratulations are in order to the Mott/Regent students and their Director for a job WELL DONE.

I just paid my federal income tax, so, the subject of "taxes" is not real popular at my house, in this economic climate, right now. In fact, all you have to do is start your own business and, you will REALLY understand how much you are shelling out to the federal authorities resulting in our current $34 trillion shortfall that never seems to recede no matter how much we pay. But, I just read that there is a private ND STATE initiative to amend our constitution and, eliminate local property taxes in favor of "state" funding of local government. And, guys, I'm not real sure about that solution. Now, remember, I came from the state of Misery (misspelled as Missouri) where my property taxes were about three times what I'm paying here in Hettinger County. So, I can appreciate it when local taxes are too high but, I was also happy when I saw that our new home town had low taxes, low crime, clean streets, snow/trash removal, and local services where you can talk to the elected officials personally if you have a beef.

Unfortunately, there is an old adage that ALL politics must be local politics for self-survival. And, when the county or municipality taxes us, those officials are our neighbors and, we can make our opinion easily known on the subject and, the levy can be adjusted far easier. With 38 years of "public service", I'm just not too keen on turning over LOCAL control of anything to state politicians who are 100 miles away and less than easily accessible or, who don't actually live in the community which is affected. And, I wasn't up here yet but, didn't this exact same thing fail back in 2012? The unfortunate truth is that local property taxes fund local needs like roads, schools, first-responders, police, fire, public safety and criminal justice. All of the same issues which are plaguing us nationwide now as a result of the defund the police mentality since 2019. So, I guess, the question becomes do we want to turn those matters over to bureaucrats with no skin in our local game? After all, it always works out real well when we turn local control of our needs over to politicians sitting over the horizon, right?? Can you say DEI?

So...I don't know. It sure SOUNDS great to lower the old tax burden but, after almost 4 decades, I just have that old sinking feeling that when something sounds too good...no good. Also, I can't seem to find anything on this subject except rhetoric and, personal opinion—no facts on how it's worked elsewhere. So, I sure would like to read about how this has worked in states that have already abolished property taxes. Unfortunately, I can't since the norm seems to be to reduce not eliminate. But, heck, maybe I'm just too old and slow to get it, right and, maybe there is one successful venue out there? Have a great week.

PRAYER

St. Jude's Novena

May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved, and preserved throughout the world now and forever. Sacred heart of Jesus, pray for us: St. Jude, worker of Miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of hopeless, pray for us. Say this prayer for nine times a day - by the eight day, the prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail. Publication must be promised.

Hope

Dawn Busch Pastor, Belfield Daglum Medora Lutheran Parish

Many of us live our lives in a season of hope. In what, or for what do you hope?

We often express hope as wishful thinking or an expectation that something positive is going to happen: "I hope it won't snow" or "I hope I win the lottery." This idea is supported in scripture. However, in the Old Testament, Hebrew words translated as "hope" refer to "waiting with expectation" and also to "trusting and being full of confidence." Often this kind of hope is used in connection with trust in God's saving help.

We recognize trouble and despair and longing in the Psalms - the poetry in the Bible that includes those who are crying out to God in many places and circumstances, and giving God praise.. not only for what God has done, but for what they hope God will do.

Psalm 130 is an example of a Psalm that expresses trust in the Lord, especially in times of trouble. Verse 5 says, "I wait for the LORD, my soul waits, and in God's word I hope," another translation reads, "With all my heart, I am waiting, Lord, for you! I trust your promises." The Psalmist is waiting with expectation and trust that God will come to the rescue.

On Palm Sunday, Jesus enters Jerusalem with people shouting, "Hosanna! Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord! Hosanna!" The word Hosanna means "Help" or "Save Us" It is a prayer of hope that Jesus is the one who will save. I don't imagine the events following were exactly what were expected or hoped for. And yet, in waiting, God shows us that Jesus is indeed the one who saves us. Hosanna is a prayer we continue to express today, waiting in expectation and trusting, fully confident that God has saved us and will return to bring us peace. We might not be saved in the ways we might like from the oppression of the world, the bullies, or the trauma. We are saved from our own sinful human nature! We are promised forgiveness of sins, life, and salvation through the life, death, resurrection, and ascension of Jesus our Christ.

In God's Easter promise, we continue to hope. Rather than hoping for things to make our lives better, what if we hope for the things that will help our neighbors to live better lives? And then, we continue in our hope for Jesus to return! We hope for God's saving help to include protection and blessing, and we know God will not always answer our prayers in the ways we might expect. We also know God is faithful. Therefore, we continue to hope, pray, and live Easter lives, knowing Christ is risen! Christ is risen indeed, Alleluia!

Wisdom is not a product of schooling but of the lifelong attempt to acquire it.

Reflections on the Words of Life

by Pastor Paul Ferrie, Grace Reformed Church of the Lord Jesus, New Leipzig

Last time we began an introduction to the book of First Peter by considering the first 2 verses: "Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ, To the pilgrims of the Dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, in sanctification of the Spirit, for obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ: Grace to you and peace be multiplied."

We noted that Peter was writing to believers who were suffering because of their faith in Christ, and what Peter gave in these verses was doctrine. I think that what makes this so striking to us is that much of the church has departed from an emphasis on doctrine. It would probably be rare to enter an average church today and hear the pastor tell the people in this high-tech society which is rampant with unrest and immorality and crime and hatred and war, that what they need most is to know about election and foreknowledge and sanctification of the Spirit and the sprinkling of the blood of Christ. "How irrelevant!" would be a likely response.

So why does Peter start this way? How can he think that writing about these things is going to do the suffering believers any good? Furthermore, how are they going to do twenty-first-century Christians any good? The answer is critical for us to grasp. Peter is showing us that truth is the only anchor for the soul. When the storms of life are blowing and when all the world around us is confused and in turmoil, the believer must know what is true! Paul told the Ephesians that God gave various teachers to the church so that they would not be "tossed to and fro and carried about by every wind of doctrine."

Dear friends, it is truth that we need. It is the truth of God's Word that is going to make sense out of our lives. There is no way for the believer to understand the suffering that he or she is experiencing without the truth. Peter is going to show Christians that one of the great purposes for their sufferings is their sanctification, mentioned in the opening words of his letter. Sanctification refers to the process of the Holy Spirit making believers more and more like Christ. The Christians to whom Peter wrote may have thought that their suffering was pointless. They may not have been able to see how anything good could have possibly come from it. But Peter comes along and says, "Let me help to put your suffering into perspective. Do you realize that though people around you may hate you and seek to harm you, your heavenly Father is actually making you more like the Lord Jesus through these things?"

Now it is important to remember that as essential as knowledge is, knowledge by itself is not enough. We also need the Holy Spirit of God to use that knowledge to change us and make us more like Jesus. We need to ask God to cause the truth that we learn to transform us. Yet that cannot happen without first getting the knowledge.

There is more to consider about the first two verses of 1 Peter, which, Lord willing, we shall do next time. But I close by reminding us that the most important knowledge we can acquire is how to be made right with God. That knowledge is essential to our eternal well-being. We must know first that we are born in sin and rebellion against our Creator. And our greatest need is to be restored to a right relationship with Him. That can happen only when we place our trust in the complete and perfect payment of Christ on the cross—and that alone—to make us right with God. By faith in Christ, we receive forgiveness of our sins, are made children of God, and are given the gift of eternal life. Friends, have you placed your trust in Christ?

Thank you for paying your bills. It helps all businesses keep rates reasonable.

A Little Birdie Told Me

By: Vivian Hernandez

A Little Birdie Told Me: "Just Say 'Yes' To The Dress!"

Our Son got engaged in August of 2022 and the wedding is planned for August 17th of this year. When our oldest daughter got married we had just three months to plan, our youngest daughter a year: which left little time for the changing of the minds. In the past 20 or so months colors and styles have changed more times than I care to count. I've ordered two red dresses same style in different sizes and I'm not sold on either one.

Today my daughters decided we should go dress shopping. If you want to put your deodorant to the test... cram yourself, two daughters and "27 dresses" into the four walls of a thimble sized dressing room and roll the dice. Forced to parade out of the dressing room in front of 17 miss hot bodies and the monstrous mega-mirrors I was able to decide on two dresses and two pantsuits.

What am I going do with 4 dresses and 2 pantsuits for one wedding you might ask? To start with I'll be returning the two red dresses. One pantsuit is for the bridal shower in June, the other pantsuit will be for brunch the morning after the wedding, one dress for the groom's dinner and one for main event. As to the colors they're all "Over The Rainbow!" One pantsuit is green one Pepto-Bismol pink, dress for rehearsal is a multi-colored floral print, day-of-dress is blue, white and silver.

I'm simply stunned that we were able to curate an entire weeks worth of wardrobe for myself in a single afternoon. While many, many, many, dresses were beyond awful and made me consider joining a monastery, there were absolute gems to be found. It has been 39 years since I said "Yes," to my wedding dress and today I said "Yes," once again to the dress I will wear when my son and favorite child says "I DO."

A Little Birdie Told Me: "Whether it Takes You a Week, Year, or 10 Years to Find 'The One.'" Just Say "Yes," to THE DRESS."

Travels with Harry

By Kathy Craigo Harteis

Recently, television journalist Harry Smith announced his retirement from broadcasting. Instead his plan is to teach. He'll return to his alma mater, Central College, in Pella, Iowa, to teach a course "on curiosity" in the fall.

Once the host of "Travels with Harry" Smith traveled visiting places big and small in search of Americana at its best. He said he wanted to examine local legends and customs.

I was a newspaper reporter back in the 1990's.

I wrote a story about the honor system at Olson's Service Station over in Sentinel Butte, ND.

What seemed simple and logical to gas station owners Buz and Delores Olson apparently was a big deal to the rest of the world.

I wrote how the Olson's just gave keys to the pumps to most everyone around. That way Buz and Delores weren't tied down being there all of the time.

Customers used their keys, pumped their gas and left a note for Buz telling him how much they owed. Simple to the folks around here. An oddity elsewhere.

Well, the AP picked up my story, calls for interviews from literally all over world came pouring in.

Then Oprah called and the couple were whisked away to a fancy hotel in Chicago and an appearance on the Oprah Show.

That's when Harry showed up.

In June of 1998 Travels with Harry filmed from Sentinel Butte, ND.

It was kind of a big deal.

I was on my way to Sentinel Butte when I spotted Harry and his cameraman in a field admiring the antelope.

I pulled over in my LeBaron convertible and introduced myself as the local press. Harry gave me a big smile and wave and crossed the road to where I had stopped.

He folded his 6'2" frame into the passenger side of my car. "It's a ragtop," he said admiring my little car.

We had a good visit that day. He talk about his roots and how he admired our way of life here.

The next morning we all met early to film the segment at the station.

Harry was most gracious and seemed to fit right in here.

As we stood visiting out in front of the station a local farmer on a combine came driving down the street.

It was testament to country living and how the simple things in life are usually the best.

I can't help but think what a gift this gentle giant of a man will be to his students. Can you imagine the stories he will share? Maybe he'll even recall a trip to the prairie all of those years ago.

Life is good today.

The greatest treasures are those invisible to the eye but found by the heart.

The only true wisdom is in knowing you know nothing.

Remember - this day will never come again - cherish every moment the 7th Cavalry Airborne came hurling overhead dropping napalm bombs from jets that there came a lull in the fighting. It was in the afternoon when the 7th found themselves completely surrounded. The slaughter of the NVA troops was never ending. Again, James thought about Gen. Custer and how he fought with his brother to the end at the Battle of the Little Big Horn in Montana.

James was lying on the edge of the knoll when someone laid down next to him. He didn't take his sights off the massacre that was going on in the dry creek.

"So, we meet again," the guy said.

James' toenails curled. It was 'Gunny' Borman, and he wasn't there to help Moore fight the NVA. He had his handgun poked in James' ribs.

Borman had blood running down the side of his face and a purpling knot on his neck.

"You didn't even try to rescue us, coward," Borman sneered, "We were right there, and you didn't do anything. But see, you and I haven't settled things between us yet. When I saw that patch on your arm with the horse, I knew it was my lucky day."

Six fighter jets screamed over the dry creek and dropped dozens of napalm bombs. It was so close that the entire unit (what was left of it) was blown over backwards. Borman had lost his handgun and was crawling to get it when the second wave of napalm bombs hit even closer. Borman had risen to his feet but when the force of the blast hit him, he missed his handgun and went over the ridge into the fire along with another dozen U.S. troops.

The man who had taken over the radio lay dead, and Moore was bellowing into the phone that they had been hit by friendly fire. He kept yelling, Retreat! Retreat! There was so much noise Moore didn't know if he was being heard or not. He just kept yelling RETREAT! into the phone.

"Get this phone off him!" he said to James, and he hurried away to Kessel who was covered with blood and cursing Moore.

James got the radio and then had to find another living soul to carry it.

Six more jets swooped low over the dry creek and reinforcements began jumping out on the edge of the ridge. It was then that Moore knew he had not been acknowledged at headquarters. There was no hope for those who had just landed.

They were running up the ridge with the napalm fire behind them. The helicopters had not landed, they just brushed the tops of the bushes while the troops jumped out.

Moore and Kessler had come to some kind of understanding, at least for the time being. Moore said to James, "Retreat! Leave no one, dead or alive!" and he and Kessler ran across the ridge to the other unit.

The new troops had reached the top of the ridge where James was suddenly in charge without a clue what he was supposed to do except retreat. In order to be heard he had to yell in every ear. They were all in shock and his order to retreat didn't seem to penetrate.

Then the reinforcements came and began gathering up everyone who was left on the ridge. That was when James found himself looking in Dan's eyes. He was there. His clothes were clean, and his face was without dirt or soot. So, it hadn't been Dan! he had seen the day before. He was just now here. They were just standing there stunned when a live grenade landed about five feet from James. In a span of a second, James, his past life and the future he had hoped to have with Kadee, flashed through his mind. It had all been for nothing and he was leaving no legacy.

The next man up the ridge right behind Dan! was a young blond guy. Without a hesitation, he threw his body over the grenade. Later, James remembered thinking about the scripture that says, 'No greater love has man, than to lay down his own life for his brother.' It was hard to believe what he had just seen. This young recruit had just given his life to save James and the small group of men beside him.

James found Dan! lying in the grass bleeding to death. He threw down his weapon and screamed for a medic even though he knew the medic was lying dead only a couple of yards away. James picked up the medic's bag and sorted through it for a hypodermic needle and a bottle of morphine. Too much blood, too much. He pulled off his shirt, folded it into a thick pad and used the sleeves to hold it in place on Dan's ribcage. Every soul that could move was either moving or carrying someone who could not move. They struggled up the knoll slow as frosted grasshoppers. Dan! weighed more than James but for some reason that only God knows, he didn't seem heavy at all. James remembered his dad telling him about one time a neighbor man was working on his tractor. It was on a heavy jack, but it fell sideways, and the farmer was under it. His wife, who may be weighed 100 pounds, lifted the tractor off his body while his ten-year-old son pulled him out.

All this time, James was giving commands for an orderly retreat. Some clusters of the unit were still fighting valiantly without a shred of hope. The LZ perimeter was falling fast. James knew he would have to go back and help these men who were holding off the assault. But first, he had to get Dan! on a Red Cross chopper.

SOLDIER FOR THE AGES

By Francis Martin

They had fought with everything they had but that was not enough. When he looked around and saw his friends dead or dying it was something he never forgot. Was the pride of the 7th Cavalry still alive? Even the wounded men had continued to fight to save each other.

It was dark now and the temperature was over a 100°. The men knew not to light a cigarette, yet some did it anyway, and as soon as the ash glowed in the dark, another man went down.

The battle waged on into the second day without end. Some of the men were so battle weary that they fell asleep sitting up. Moore prowled among those living all night long. James spent the night helping the injured as best he could with what he had to work with. He had very little medical training, yet he kept trying.

Dawn crept over the rough hills just enough so the horizon could be seen. "They'll come now," Moore said.

Major Kessel had found his way to where Moore's unit had spent the night. He sat down with the others behind the termite mound and said nothing, but his eyes were on Moore who was mustering what was left of his unit to defend the knoll. When Moore saw him, he said to James, "You're in charge of this outfit for about five minutes," and he ran to where Kessel was sitting.

They had set up an M16 machine gun at each end of the ridge. The NVA's came across the dry creek bent low and running from bush to bush. When they were out on the gravel thick as army ants, James ordered Moore's troops to fire. It was incredible that even though they were falling by the hundreds, they kept coming.

(Portions of some U.S. positions were completely wiped out and the only barrier to a complete annihilation of the 7th at LZ X-ray was the extraordinary leadership of LT. Colonel Moore.)

James never knew what Kessel and Moore had argued about, but whatever it was, got Kessel on the line with the rest of the defenders. It wasn't until

The fuel distributor distributed much more than fuel. The paperwork weighed more than the diesel. In order to keep his business running he had to turn his sales receipts over to a tax auditor. If you spend all your time doing paperwork, you won't have time to farm.

The taxman looked at the boxes of sales slips the farmer brought in and with much cogitation, said, "You have a real conundrum here."

To the farmer, a conundrum is when you have a machine in the shop all torn apart. You have the nuts and bolts in one bucket, the broken parts in another, half the tools in the shop scattered around on the floor, and you haven't a clue as to how it all goes back together.

Now that's a conundrum.

The word is from early Spanish quonundrum meaning a puzzle. It is slang. It comes from a riddle that goes, "What is the difference between a jeweler and a jailer?" "One sells watches and the other watches cells."

She grew up on the family farm that her grandfather, Ude Kromminga, bought in 1900 from the people that homesteader it. She was the Tom boy at home helping her dad in the fields; haying, picking corn by hand to "open" the fields and throwing the ears of corn in a wagon against the "bang board". Also, helped with shocking corn. She knew how to harness & hitch a team by the time she was nine years old. 4-H club member for eight years.

Went to country school, Castle Grove #6 and then graduating from Monticello High School in 1959. She attended Drake University before transferring to the University of New Mexico.

Grace met her lifelong love, companion and friend, Jim Rea, on a blind date in Albuquerque, NM. She was told that he had a motorcycle and she wanted a ride. They went for that ride the next day. They have been together since getting married on September 10, 1961, moving to Bowman in 1964, when Jim's Air Force duty ended. They farmed in Slope County for forty-eight years, retiring in 2014.

She was also on the board of directors for the Cedar Chest.

Regional Boards include the Southwest Water Authority (SWA), Regional Employment Training Commission (RETC), Roosevelt-Custer Council, and Resource Conservation & Development (RCD).

Hobbies include gardening, sewing, reading, taking courses at Hillsdale College online, and just learning new ideas while meeting people. Grace also loved dogs and horses, while growing up on the farm. She and Jim also had dogs during their married life.

Preceded in death by her parents, Virginia & Fred Kromminga, her first cousin, John Tiedemann of Florida, and several other cousins.

Survivors include her husband, Jim Rea; daughter Nadine (Rea) Ueno and her husband, Toshiaki 'Toshi' Ueno; sisters Gloria Kromminga and Freda (Gordon) Smith; niece Virginia (Don) Scott; nephew John (Molly) Smith. She also leaves behind her beloved dog, Lassie.

Grace wanted everyone to remember, "Smile and the world Smiles with you!"

Walter E. Barnes Rites Held

Walter E. Barnes, age 71, of Lemmon, SD, passed away on Tuesday afternoon, April 2, 2024 at the West River Regional Medical Center in Hettinger, ND, with his children by his side.

Funeral services for Walt were held at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, April 6, 2024 at the New Hope Worship Center in Lemmon, SD. Ramon Barnes and Pastor Rand Bentley officiated with burial following in the Greenhill Cemetery in Lemmon. Full military honors were afforded by the Brattvet-Green American Legion Post #66 of Lemmon.

Visitation was from 1:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. on Friday, April 5, 2024 at the Evanson Jensen Funeral Home in Lemmon, SD.

Walter Earl Barnes was born on December 16, 1952, in Hettinger, ND, to Guy and Grace Irene (Jensen) Barnes. His twin brother, Wayne, followed shortly after. He grew up north of Lemmon, SD, in the Spring Butte area in Adams Co., ND. He attended rural country school before attending Lemmon High School and graduating with the class of 1970.

With the Vietnam war in full force, and soon being old enough for the draft, Walter enlisted in the United States Army and was soon off to basic training. Following his training he spent time in Germany before being deployed to Camp Holloway near Pleiku, Vietnam. His MOS was a helicopter mechanic, but that also came with the responsibility of manning the gun on the door of the chopper. He spent a year in Vietnam as a door gunner for a Huey helicopter, seeing and being tasked with doing much more than an 18 year old ever should. Walter recalls leaving Vietnam in a 100+ degree day and arriving home in a blizzard. And he arrived home 1 hour before he left, if you factor time changes and the International Date Line.

After his return from Vietnam he worked various jobs in and around Lemmon, including seismography, time in the oil field, as a janitor at the school before joining the 211th Eng Co. full-time earning the rank of Sergeant. He retired in 2003 and began driving semi over the road eventually settling back in Lemmon in 2006. After returning to Lemmon he began working at Northwest Supply and continued until his health forced him to slow down.

He was united in marriage to Deborah Kirkpatrick and three children were born to this union: Nathan who passed away in infancy in 1979, Matthew in 1980 and Courtney in 1986.

Walter was a member of the American Legion and served as commander in the 1990's. He was honored in 2022 with a Quilt of Valor which recognized his service in Vietnam, and gave him the homecoming welcome he never saw in 1972.

Walter enjoyed playing cards, any card game was acceptable, he also enjoyed bowling and pitching horseshoes, fishing, the Vikings, the Twins and golfing. He was always willing to help anyone who needed it, often sacrificing for the benefit of others. Never expecting anything in return for the help he often gave. His grandchildren were the light of his life and he was fortunate to be able to even see and hold his great-granddaughter in 2023.

Health issues in August of 2022 caused new challenges for Walter. Never one to be sick, he faced his uncertain road with bravery, a sense of humor and high spirits. Multiple tests, procedures, trips for chemotherapy, more tests, and often unpleasant surroundings couldn't hamper his typical jovial approach to life. He was often asked how he was feeling and a response of "Just Peachy" was his standard reply.

He is survived by his son, Matthew, Lemmon, SD; daughter, Courtney (Dakota) Hulm, Bison, SD; four grandchildren, Sierra (Kaleb) Bucks, Emma Barnes, Lakyn and Lander Hulm; one great-granddaughter, Briar Bucks; three sisters, Delilah Holdahl and Bernita Barnes, Lemmon, SD; Mary Holdahl, Yankton, SD; two brothers, Wayne (Vicki) Barnes and Willard Barnes, Lemmon, SD; and numerous nieces, nephews, cousins and a host of friends.

He was preceded in death by his parents; one son in infancy, Nathan Barnes; a brother, Ward D Barnes; a brother, William and sister, Linda in infancy; one nephew, Jim Holdahl; and four brothers-in-law, Adam Derschan, Lonnie Thom, Ron Holdahl and Bob Holdahl.

In 1983, he started working with the USDA Rural Development, where he retired after 34 years. Mark enjoyed watching his grandkids and all their activities. ing news in the Bible. God gave us everything, He gave us His Son. Jesus gave us everything, He gave us His life. John 15:13 says greater love no man than this to lay down his life for His friends.

We as His followers, are to follow Jesus as our example. As Christians, we have the greatest story in the Bible to tell. We tell Jesus's story, the true Gospel story, but we get to tell our story, what Jesus has done in our lives after we became His. The key here is, We have to be His, we allow Him to become our Lord and Savior of our lives. That on a daily basis we Choose Jesus over the World. Satan sets out his traps for Gods children everyday to cause us to stumble and to fall into the world. I encourage each and every one that reads these articles to have a personal relationship with Jesus. The way that we achieve that is thru daily prayer and daily Bible study. I am Pastor Julian from Western Plains Baptist Church in Bowman ND. If I or our Church can be of help to anyone in Bowman County please do not hesitate to reach out to us. Greatest Story

We read in Genesis 1:1-4 we see the beginning of one of the greatest love stories ever been told. In the beginning God created the Heavens and the Earth. First of all this tells us who created the world. God did, He plainly tells us this. The World was without form and void; and the darkness was on the face of the deep, And the Spirit of God was hovering over the face of the waters. The awesome thing about this is, God was present, He was there. God was pondering how He would create the perfect utopia for

His perfect crown jewel. Us, His people. Those of us that He would create to Love Him, with all our heart, soul, mind and give Him the praise that He deserves as our Heavenly Father and God. That's why He created us, God was not lonely, God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Spirit was present with Him. God is such a loving and wonderful God that He wanted to create us, to Praise, Worship and Edify and Glorify Him. As He created every little detail, He did with such love. And realizing that He was creating a being out of His image, we would be perfect for His worldly creation, He was building.

But God, being the God of love that He is and wanting the very best for us, His people, He could not let His Paradise be a dictatorship. He wanted us to love Him so much that He allowed us a choice to follow Him or something else. Unfortunately the time came, that day, in the cool of the evening, God came to visit Adam and Eve in the Garden and they hid from Him. He called out several times before Adam responded to His call. Adam said to God, we are naked and hid from you. God said to Adam who told you, that you are naked. Here is the beginning of the "he said, she said". God asked, did you eat of the Tree of knowledge, and Adam said yes, the woman you gave me, gave me a bite of the apple. And quickly Eve said that the serpent gave her an apple and said that we would not die, that God was not telling the truth, that when we ate of the Tree we would be as God and know the difference between good and bad, right and wrong.

And they did. The choice that God gave Adam and Eve is the same choice that He gives us today. When we choose Jesus, we choose life with Him in Heaven after we die from this world. But if we choose the world then we are eternally seperated from Jesus at death. That is why it is so important to know and understand the Bible and what it says to us. God loves us more than we can ever know. God all the way thru the Bible shows us His love for Israel. But, Israel just could not stay on that narrow path with God. Because of the love Jesus had for us, He went to the Cross and died for our sins.

John 3:16 is the Gospel in a nut shell. For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotton son, that whosoever believes in Him shall not perish but have ever lasting life. One of the greatest promises in the Bible. That when we are His, He will never leave us nor forsake us. This is the most excit-

Eclipse, through the eyes of Lilly Schneider, granddaughter of Ervin and Donnavée Schneider

In roughly 585 B.C, an astronomical event ended a six-year war between the Medes and the Lydians. According to this Greek history, while battle was raging on their borders, the moon passed directly in front of the sun, causing day to become night. The warring sides paused battle during these moments of darkness and deemed it as a sign from the Heavens that they should resolve their issues and sign a treaty to instill peace. And so, their war ended with this battle now known as the Battle of the Eclipse.

This same astronomical event, an Eclipse, happened over parts of the US again a few days ago. My dad has always said witnessing a Total Eclipse was on his "bucket list," so we chose to make the effort to see it while we have the chance. Coincidentally, my boyfriend is currently working at an Air Force Base along the direct path of totality, so we knew we had to go see it. So Friday at noon, we packed our bags and a sleeping bag into my mom's explorer, and said we aren't stopping until we reach San Antonio, Texas, all the way from Williston, North Dakota.

In 28 hours of being on the road and only stopping for necessities, we made it to San Antonio by 3 pm the following day. This bucket list of my dad's had better be really important to make us sit in a car for more than a day! When the day of the Eclipse rolled around, we didn't have high hopes of seeing it. Where would we go? Park on the side of the interstate? We were all cool with that, as long as we got to see it. But despite that, it was also cloudy, and visibility of the sun was only every so often. By some amazing chance, we have cousins near Austin who invited us to join them at a friend's house to witness the Eclipse- now we have a few more friends in our lives.

Joining them at their house just outside Austin, TX was meant to be. We all came prepared with 'Eclipse glasses' which allowed us to stare directly at the sun without going blind. A pretty fancy advancement since poking holes in paper plates. Every so often the sun would peek out from the clouds, and we could lay in the grass and look up at it, slowly watching the moon creep in front of it. We considered ourselves lucky that we even got to see it at all, due to the complete cloud coverage of the skies the whole day prior. So, while listening to songs such as "Moon River" and "Total Eclipse of the Heart," our little group watched as the Eclipse got closer and closer to totality, and the temperature slowly dropped, and the skies slowly became darker. I'm not sure if my goosebumps were from anticipation or the sudden cold.

It was an eerie feeling. I felt as if I was in another world. The clouds kept covering the sun again and again, and we all hoped and prayed that we would be able to witness the Total Eclipse. Minutes later, the clouds seemed to dissipate almost at the exact moment that the moon completely covered the sun, and we were all under an almost complete darkness, save for the hues of pink and purple that were on the horizon all around us. Wow. Dad said, 'if Moses could part the red sea, then he must've parted the clouds so we could see.' It was emotional- I had never seen or experienced anything like it. For three minutes, at 1:30 in the afternoon, it was night. The world became quiet- no sounds of birds, no sounds from people in the neighborhood, no sounds of traffic. Just us and a great big black hole in the sky surrounded by a glowing, white ring. I wish I could describe what I felt in those three minutes, other than I was in complete awe of what I was witnessing for the first time. We even used binoculars and saw the sun flares, not needing our Eclipse glasses while in totality. Once the moon drifted from its path in front of the sun, light rained down on us again in the snap of a finger, though it gradually returned to afternoon daylight again.

Almost as soon as the clouds left, they returned and covered the sun once again. But- they stayed away for the three most precious minutes of the whole event. All these signs make me believe we were meant to see the Eclipse for a reason. We aren't sure of the reason yet- maybe it'll just justify the 56 hours we spent in a car to go see it.
