- DECISION -

Great Story of Life

"No Pain, No Gain"

MeMe floundered around, this street, that street. Knowing that a job was a must, or darkness would surely set in, MeMe proceeded to the city park. Now was the time to think. Experiencing the excitement of the Time Machine, being chosen, and the lift off were memories of - - that was what MeMe was not sure about.

Did that make MeMe special - - or what really went on. For a whole year, life was one ball of learning, excitement, adventure - - now reality of the whole ordeal faced MeMe.

Friends, family, surroundings didn't remain the same. They all seemed to grow, change jobs, personalities. One moment life beautiful, perfect - - now decisions, not sure how to make them, appeared.

Time away brought a new perspective. Silence in the park, except for a few birds, chipmunks, brought MeMe back to the realization that now this was MeMe's life - - not the one a year ago where every day was new, exciting, full of adventure.

MeMe had given up hope on ever finding Grandfathers book. Having searched everywhere, even the dump grounds, MeMe knew, now the decision must be made. Only memories now remained. Sadness filled MeMe as the realization, that now, only thing left was facing the realization that letting go of the past is all that could be done to carry on to the future --.

But how?

Determination set in - - MeMe now resolved that no more negative, back talk was going to impede the decision of finding a job - -. All thought, emotions now face forward. Joy set in as the job market was faced. A plan, finally a plan to move forward. Resumes sent out. Jobs checked into - - now wait.

A letter of acceptance - come for an interview. Excitement - finally facing today as reality - - no more fairy land dreams.

Day of big appointment - - questions answered, staff met - - good feelings all around. One last part of interview - - meet the boss. A little nervous but feeling confident at rest of interview, MeMe entered the office.

Stunned, unable to move - the man sitting at the huge desk was none other than the one and only person MeMe had hated all the days of MeMe's life. How could that be possible? How could this cruel, obnoxious person be the one person in this community that had brought so much pain and hardship into MeMe's family. This man never apologized, never even acknowledged how he had torn their family to shreds - - now he was extending his hand to MeMe - - had read MeMe's resume and was elated that MeMe was going to work for him.

MeMe, shook hand, passively excused self and left - - report to work Monday morning was all he said.

So this is the man everyone talked about - this is the man who donated the Time Machine - this is the man whom everyone loved, everyone except MeMe. Hate was the only word MeMe could think of.

Guess I won't take the job - - but no other jobs in community. Decision made - - that weekend MeMe went to see the Pastor. He spoke of No Pain - No Gain. Sleepless hours were spent reflecting on the answer.

Then MeMe realized the hours of hatred that had been spent on that one issue of MeMe's life.

Tears were shed - - then MeMe acknowledged - - letting go was another part of the

The new Apes movie is set many years after the conclusion of 2017's War for the Planet of the Apes. Many apes' societies have grown from when the Moses-like Caesar brought his people to an oasis, while humans have been reduced to a feral-like existence. Some ape groups have never heard of Caesar, while others have contorted his teaching to build burgeoning empires. In this setting, one ape leader begins to enslave other groups to find human technology, while another ape, who watched his clan be taken, embarks on a journey to find freedom. A young human woman becomes key to the latter's quest, although she has plans of her own.

Physical Therapy Improves The Quality of Life for People with Parkinson's Disease

Parkinson's disease (PD) is a progressive neurological disorder that affects movement, balance, speech, and cognition. According to the Parkinson's Foundation, about one million Americans live with PD, and more than 10 million people worldwide are diagnosed with it.

While there is no cure for PD, physical therapy can help people manage their symptoms and improve their quality of life. Physical therapy can help people with PD:

- Maintain or improve their mobility, strength, flexibility, and balance
- Reduce their risk of falls and injuries
- Enhance their confidence and independence in daily activities
- Learn strategies to cope with the challenges of living with PD

Physical therapists are experts in movement and function. They use exercise, and hands on techniques to improve strength, coordination and range of motion. Physical therapists also use exercise and activities to challenge and improve the balance of people with Parkinson's Disease. In addition, they can also provide education, guidance, and support for people with PD and their caregivers.

Physical therapy for people with Parkinson's Disease is heavily researched and has been shown to be an effective intervention. Studies indicate improvements in mobility, endurance, strength, and balance. Gait speed is an especially important measurement.

Physical therapy can be beneficial at any stage of PD, from the time of diagnosis to the advanced stages. It is a valuable treatment option for people with PD, as it can help to improve or maintain their physical function, mobility, and independence. Physical therapy can also enhance their quality of life, confidence, and well-being.

This past March, I wrote about the death of youth sports. What caused it? Post-COVID, in my personal experience, it was parents acting crazy at the games which was driving away coaches and referees. Estimated by the National Federation of State High School Associations to be, since 2018-19, a loss of 50,000 officials here just in the U.S. However, another phenomenon had blossomed alongside that nonsense. On January 2nd, reporter Stephen Borelli penned that "About 70% of kids drop out of organized sports by age 13 and the so-called 'professionalization of youth sports' can't be understated as a significant factor why." In other words, narcissistic parents who believe that their child is the 2nd coming of Michael Jordan or Caitlin Clark and, then, demanding that their special child receive top billing and special attention completely ignoring the TEAM concept of sports or the hard work necessary to excel.

the team concept of athletics by focusing on anything other than a child's obligations to their teammates and, regular, hard work. When I was a kid, my Dad always said—you sign up, you finish what you started. No excuses! And, if a parent doesn't want the child to compete, work hard, and learn something new, then, why sign up in the first place?

The same new narcissism—what's in it for me? On Saturday, I got a call from an old top student from Texas. He's 67-years-old now and, suffering from early onset Alzheimer's. He called to reminisce about the challenge and fun of martial arts training in the 1990's, the discipline he learned and, how it was keeping him going as he is slipping away. But, sadly, that is in the past. Today, when a child, for unstated reasons, drops out and wrecks an upcoming test, demo team preparation and, even participation in the classes themselves; that isn't creating any new memories is it? And, the line of new students waiting to come onboard even for our free local program? It's simply not there in this new culture of blah, mediocrity as our youngsters tap away mindlessly on their screens and, then, complain that there's nothing to do. And, FYI, as I predicted last March, the impact of this whole mess is coming to fruition in the professional ranks too. Five of the top draft picks in the upcoming NBA draft are EUROPEAN not American. Apparently, hard work, dedication, sacrifice, teamwork and honor are still viable in the old country. Have a great week!

A Little Birdie Told Me

By: Vivian Hernandez

A Little Birdie Told Me: "Fr. Gary Benz Celebrated His 25th Jubilee On Sunday, June 23rd."

Fr. Gary Benz grew up on a farm near New England, North Dakota number 8 of 10 children. His parents were devout Catholics and a great influence on Fr. Gary's future calling to the Priesthood.

Fr. Gary has touched many lives while serving parishes in the Bismarck Diocese these past 25 years, mine included. While serving as Pastor at St. Mary's in New England, Fr. Gary and I became good friends.

I still appreciate his dedication to Catholic Tradition and his uncompromising Faith. Mass was always reverent and full of symbolism: Latin Prayers, songs and incense brought a true sense of the Sacred to each celebration.

I once read the definition of a Christian: "A Christian is to comfort the afflicted and afflict the comfortable." Fr. Gary Benz did this during every sermon, if you left Mass feeling like you'd done your duty for the week you must have been sleeping.

Fr. Gary is a true Shepard to his flock. He visits the sick, nursing home residents, sends Christmas cards to all his parishioners, Daily Mass and Confession, Adoration of the Blessed Sacrament and the list goes on and on but he still makes time for friends. He has become a part of our family often joining us for a holiday meal or an evening at the lake. He always brings a gift for the grandsons and they have come to love him as well.

The world needs more people like Fr. Gary those willing to tell us in LOVE what we NEED to hear, not what makes us feel "GOOD." Thank You Fr. Gary for afflicting me in my comfort and calling me higher.

A Little Birdie Told Me: "So You See, Faith By Itself Isn't Enough. Unless It Produces Good Deeds, It Is Dead And Useless." (James 2)

With Kennedy's & Community Support, WRHS Foundation Raises $4,567 via Truckload Sale!

By Ted Uecker, WRHS Foundation

Who 'da thunk? Kennedy's Fresh Foods, long-time supporter of the West River Health Services Foundation and one of the most active retail stores in our community, along with our giving area community, helped the WRHS Foundation raise funds for their 36th Annual "Fun Run & Walk" - thanks to the many community members who visited their store on North Main in Hettinger on Wednesday, June 12th (it truly is amazing how many people come into Kennedy's each day).

Of course, the WRHS Foundation representatives were on hand close to the checkout counters, to help pre-register folk for their Fun Run & Walk, as well as offer $2 raffle tickets and $1 bucket draw tickets -- to raise funds to give back to area communities for healthy projects and activities. By 6pm, $4,567 had been raised! It is truly unbelievable how giving our people are.

Where does the truckload sale fit into this? Kennedy's offered to bring in a truckload of fresh fruits and vegetables and then forward $5 from each bag filled to the brim - to the WRHS Foundation's "Fun Run & Walk." Then, all of the net funds from this Fun Run & Walk event will be paid forward to area communities for healthy projects and activities. It was a win-win-win-win -- for Kennedy's, the WRHS Foundation, our customers and our area communities!

From 10am to 6pm, 136 customers filled their brown paper bags full of fruit and vegetables for only $25! Then, Kennedy's paid forward $680 ($5 x 136) to the WRHS Foundation - and eventually, to the area communities. In addition, many customers who decided not to do the bag sale, still pre-registered or purchased tickets. Kennedy's and their loyal following, seem to come through time and time again. Thank you Kyle, Mike and crew. We appreciate you.

There was also a special drawing held on the day, whereby if customers gave in $10 increments for either the raffle and/or bucket draw tickets, they'd receive a ticket to be placed into a drawing for five terrific prizes (give $20 for raffle/bucket draw tickets, customers received 2 tickets into drawing; $30, 3 tickets, etc.). The drawing was held following this event at 6:30pm. The following were drawn to receive prizes: $100 Kennedy's Gift Card - Riney & Judy Stevahn; $25 KB Jewelers Gift Certificate - LaNae Kristy; $25 KB Jewelers Gift Certificate - Penie Glines; $25 Hettinger Chamber of Commerce Bucks - Katie Roseland; and $25 Hettinger Chamber of Commerce Bucks - Connie Sims. Thanks again Kennedy's, KB Jewelers and Hettinger Chamber for supporting our efforts to inspire our community members to "pay it forward."

The breakdown of the grand total $4,567 raised on the day included: $916 from 458 raffle tickets sold; $521 from 521 bucket draw tickets sold; $300 from 15 pre-registrations

WHETHER YOU LIKE THE CLASSIC OR NEW & TOP OF THE LINE, WE'VE GOT THE BEST SELECTION IN THE STATE! WE'LL HELP YOU CREATE A LASTING 4TH OF JULY "MEMORY."

for the July 4th "Fun Run & Walk," $680 from Kennedy's via their 136 customers who participated with the bag sale; and $2,150 in straight gifts to the WRHS Foundation, for their Physician Recruitment Endowment Fund ($2,000), Fun Run & Walk Fund ($100) and West River Ambulance Fund ($50)! Wow! Thank you area community members. We sure are grateful.

You can still register for the WRHS Foundation "Fun Run & Walk" online at wrhs.com through June 27th. Just go to the website and click on the "Fun Run & Walk" billboard. In addition, you can still purchase raffle and bucket draw tickets through July 1st at KB Jewelers, BJ's Paint & Body and from any of the WRHS Fun Run Committee Members (Molly Wolf, Jill Sailer, Cindy Ham, Carmin Erickson, Doris Hoke, Jennifer Sanchez, Todd Skaarvold and Ted Uecker). Of course, you will also be able to register and purchase raffle and bucket draw tickets the morning of race day, on July 4th.

Please call Ted Uecker at 701-567-3666 if you have any questions about the Fun Run & Walk event. So far, through June 17th, we pre-registered 114 runners and walkers! We sure hope these class reunion folk will consider coming down for a walk or run around scenic Mirror Lake. The Fun Run & Walk summary of events on July 4th includes: Registration at 6:30am at The Granary by Mirror Lake Park; Prayer and National Anthem at 7:20am; the 1K Youth Race through Mirror Lake Park is slated for 7:30pm; followed by the Adult 3K Run and the Adult 3K Walk around scenic Mirror Lake. Prizes for numerous age groups, plus the raffle and bucket drawings will follow once the last walkers cross the finish line. Come join us at our 36th Annual "Fun Run & Walk!" TOGETHER we can raise funds to pay forward to our area communities for healthy projects and activities. Everyone is welcome. We're Going For More in '24! Onward!

They went into the kitchen where Caroline was feeding Nicky and Pauly was feeding himself. He got a quart jar and poured himself a big glass of lemonade.

Caroline said to him, "While you were gone, Kadee and I went through James room up at their house and we found something interesting, but we don't know why James had it. Maybe you can tell us."

She reached into her apron pocket and handed him the dog tags they had found. The grooves around the letters and numbers were encrusted with something dark.

Caroline handed dog tags to him.

Dan'l held them in his hand by the tag and read the name and number.

William S. Morris
A T424 373 58162
He broke out in goose bumps. "I can't imagine...!"

"Could he have found them in the field, I mean in Vietnam?"

"I have no idea. He put me on the rescue chopper, and I suppose he went back to work. So, yes, he could have found them in the field."

But he did know.

"The chain is not broken, so how did they get off the soldier?"

"We weren't just fighting the NVA over there. That country is the worlds' greatest breeding spot for every kind of bug, fly, beetle or moth on earth. I remember one time I kept having to swat the mosquitoes off my neck and I took my dog tags off."

"You can slip them over your head?"

"I suppose it depends on how big your head is, but yes, you can."

"So, if he found them, wouldn't he have to turn them over to an officer?"

"More than likely, he would have given them to the Medics, but there was so much going on, I'd say he just forgot."

Dan'l took them to the sink and ran cold water over them and scrubbed them with an old toothbrush. The water ran reddish. He thought to himself that the dog tags had come off when the soldier's head came off, but he didn't tell Kadee or her mother-in-law that. It was too horrible to comprehend.

"What should I do with them?"

"Next time I go for a check-up at the VA hospital, I'll turn them over to the military." He put them in his pocket. This guy was so MIA that no one even knew he was gone. Except Dan'l.

Kadee gave birth to a wee baby girl in September. Kadee's mother's middle name was Elizabeth and it was suggested to her that they give the girl this name. "No," she disagreed, "Every child should have its own name. I really didn't want to name Pauly, Paul, after James' father, but I was overruled. When they all have the same name it's just too confusing to know who you're talking about. But I wouldn't object to just 'BETH'."

With three children and no husband, Kadee was not able to help in the search. If it hadn't been for Caroline, she wouldn't even have been able to do that. But every chance she got, she got on the telephone and called every neighbor and every agency who might be able to help. She knew she was becoming frantic.

Paul came in one evening and said he had called the sheriff. Three deputies came out the next day and asked a lot of questions and took notes and asked for his photograph. One of the deputies was a boy James had gone to high school with. When she was trying her best to tell them all she knew, she saw him shake his head with a snide little quirk on his lips. She knew in her heart that they wouldn't do anything. They were city boys with shiny shoes. They weren't about to go tramping around in the stinger weeds and thistles to find a grown man.

A few days later, Dan'l said he saw a group of men walking the riverbank. Since it had rained twice since James disappeared, it was unlikely they would find anything.

Every minute that Dan'l could spare from all the farm work, he searched by himself on horseback. All he found was an old wristwatch with a broken strap. Probably lost by some fisherman. He never told anyone what he had found in the ashes by the tent. Then he took the tent down, folded it up and stored it in the shop.

In the meantime, Paul had managed to gather up some of the neighbors who also searched the riverbanks. One at a time, they surrendered. They all had lots of farmwork to do and finding James looked like a hopeless case.

Kadee was at a loss for any more ideas. She got her mother to make up some reward posters since she worked at the Courthouse. By doing this, she thought that maybe somebody might come forward and say they had seen him. They got a few responses from nutcases wanting to know how much the reward was. A man in Montana called and said he saw James at a Rodeo. Someone in South Dakota saw him at a stock car race. Finally, Paul, tired of the negative calls, pulled down all the posters that he could find.

Then a rancher north of Killdeer claimed to have seen a man, dressed in a blue uniform up on Killdeer Mountain. He said he was on a light-colored horse up near the Medicine hole. He said he dug his binoculars out of the pickup and put them to his eyes before he realized the lenses were on. By the time he got them off, wiped the lenses, and peered at the far horizon, whoever it was, was just disappearing over the horizon. What he saw was a ¾ view of a man on a horse in uniform, backside.

Kadee, with a new baby and two boys bent on mischief, preferred to stay home. The rest of them piled into the big pickup and took off for Killdeer. It was only a glimmer of hope, but it was the best they had. Later, Kadee wondered why she hadn't thought about Killdeer Mountain a long time ago. As youngsters, they had spent some time up there. James had been fascinated by the myth of the Medicine Hole on top of the mountain.

After wasting a whole day driving up and down old trails and finding nothing, they visited what few ranchers lived around there. It was just one more long, hot wasted day. Fruitless and disappointing. At home they gathered in the shop and suggested that they give up the search. Maybe James Martin would come home by himself.

No one believed it.

Paul had been farming by himself for a long time. It had been his hope that when James came home from the Army that he wouldn't have to do that anymore.

Dan'l spend what time he had putting the Miller place back in shape. They were living on his mother's wages from her job at the Courthouse. She was only forty-eight and she'd been working there for twenty years. Dan'l felt guilty that she owned a productive farm in the Green River valley, and she had to hold down a job, but until the fields were plowed again, the thistles poisoned in the hay land, and the fences tight enough to keep their cattle out of the neighbors' crops, he just had to keep plodding away. Among the 100 head of cattle, he cut out 20 head of three-year-olds that had never been cut, and he doubted, they had ever been vaccinated.

Paul said to him, "You should put one of them in the freezer. Look at the size of them. They'll bring good money just for the porterhouse steaks alone." They had a big roundup. The price of beef was good because of the war that still raged in Vietnam. Between the junk he had sold and the beeves, Dan'l got back on his feet.

Between Grandpa Martins' place, and Millers', and only two men working, Paul suggested that they hire a family man, let him have the house where he and Caroline lived, and move into Grandpa Martins' house. It was big enough for them all and it was about sixty years newer.

Kadee was beginning to feel like a burden to the Martins'. But when they sat down and talked finances over, she realized that on the wages of a teacher, she could never pay a baby sitter and pay for a place to live. James had never paid any of the bills. He'd lived at home until he was drafted. Kadee got part of his Army wages, but it was a joke. After he came home, she realized that he didn't have a clue as to how to take care of the finances of farm and family. "We want you and the children to stay here, Kadee. The children need space and I'm sure you don't want them to be raised by other people. We can do this."

Paul said.....gravely.....I don't know how you would do this with three kids, but with your education, surely you could do some more tutoring if you really feel the need to pay your own way."

"Yes," Caroline said with enthusiasm, "I would love to take care of the kids, say, four days a week."

Kadee began to cry silently. "I'm such a burden."

"I don't know where you got that idea," Paul said with indignation, "You want to know what a burden is? Try James Martin. Now he's what you call a burden." Then he got up as if to leave.

Caroline said to him, "We have another son, you know. If you asked him nicely, he'd probably come home as long as Kathryn isn't here. This place will belong to him someday. Let's make him earn it."

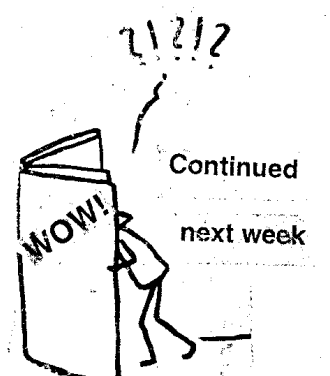

"James had some life insurance, you know," Kadee said sadly, "I don't know how much. I'd have to look it up."

"Doesn't the government have life insurance on him?"

"Not anymore. He's not in the service. When they're in service, they have death insurance on them. Can't you cash his insurance?"

"We don't have any proof that he's dead."

She sorted through all the papers in his desk until she found the insurance papers. She wrote to the insurance company and explained that he was presumed dead. They wrote back and said she would have to get a death certificate before they would settle. In October she met with the County Coroner to see if she could get a death certificate. Soon she learned that the Sheriff's Department still maintained that he was not dead but had just walked away to a new life. His emotional and mental issues were the cause of this, and his disappearance was the result. The PTSD had finally gotten him. (And maybe Gen. George Custer.)

Reflections on the Words of Life

by Pastor Paul Ferrie, Grace Reformed Church of the Lord Jesus, New Leipzig

Having looked together at the first two verses of 1 Peter, we now see the apostle breaking forth into praise. After naming some of God's blessings in verse 2, he is stirred to proclaim in verse 3, "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who according to His abundant mercy has begotten us again to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead."

Throughout the New Testament, we find the apostles emphasizing the need for believers to focus on the tremendous blessings of their salvation. The apostle Paul does what Peter is doing in our passage when he writes in Ephesians 1:3, "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us with every spiritual blessing in the heavenly places in Christ." Like Peter, he is stirred to praise God as he remembers all the wonderful things that are true of believers in Christ. Let believers learn to cherish such things in our minds. Not only will this bring joy and stability to our lives as we remember what is true of us by God's grace; but it will also lead us to praise God, as it did the apostles.

All blessings that come to us are the result of God's grace. Peter in our verse reminds us that they are "according to His abundant mercy." Scripture repeatedly emphasizes this point. Mercy, in our verse, is a synonym for grace. It means that God blesses His people even though they are totally undeserving and in fact, deserve just the opposite. We saw this previously in regard to the doctrine of election. God's choosing some to be His people is not based upon anything in them but only upon something in God. Thus Paul writes in Ephesians 1:5 that God has "predestined us to adoption as sons by Jesus Christ to Himself, according to the good pleasure of His will."

There is another important aspect of God's mercy which we must not overlook. It is a JUST mercy, consistent with His absolute holiness. For sin to be forgiven, God's perfect character has to be satisfied. And the Bible makes it abundantly clear that there is only one thing that can satisfy the justice of God in regard to sin. It is the blood of Jesus Christ ALONE which cleanses from sin. For God to forgive sin, that sin must be paid for to the complete satisfaction of His justice. And the only way for sin to be paid for in that way is for a person to come under the perfect sacrifice for sin. Jesus, by His blood shed on the cross, made the only perfect sacrifice for sin. Seeking to earn forgiveness or contribute to earning forgiveness by human merit, is equivalent to saying that the blood of Jesus Christ was not sufficient, thus demeaning His perfect saving work.

The assurance of Christ's sufficient payment for sin can and should be a solid basis for peace and joy for the believer. The Christian can know with certainty that while the forgiveness of sins is totally undeserved, yet it is perfectly just. For God, through the work of Jesus Christ on the cross, has received a full payment for the sins of all those who come to Him through faith in Christ. There is nothing left for him or her to do. There is no penance to be performed, and there are no works required to complete the payment. The believer is the beneficiary of the most glorious blessing there is. He or she is totally free from the guilt and penalty of all of sins, and the whole process of salvation is absolutely just. God is satisfied with the work of His Son on the believer's behalf. Friend, do you have this assurance? Are you trusting in the work of Christ alone to make you right with God?

Every day is a new beginning. Take a deep breath smile and start again.

Remember When

Life was valued. You were what God created you to be.

Marriage was between a man and a woman.

Families ate, worked, played and worshipped together.

People communicated with each other verbally.

Social media didn't occupy the majority of our time.

Diverse thought took place.

We had freedom of speech.

School days began with the pledge to the U.S. flag.

Education was for learning, not an agenda.

REMEMBER WHEN
Police held a place of honor.

Work was a blessing and needful to survive.

Sin was sin, and a word we heard.

Right was right and wrong was wrong.

Freedom of Religion was practiced.

Persecution of Christians around the world was heard of only occasionally.

How times have changed! As we celebrate the 4th of July,

I look back and am thankful that our forefathers built this nation on Christian values, "One Nation under God!"

God has indeed blessed us, but, as we stray from God and His word we cannot expect God's continued blessings.

We need God to help us stand strong in a world that is turning upside down.

God's word says we need to "humble ourselves and pray, and seek His face, and turn from our wicked ways. Then He will hear from heaven and forgive our sins and heal our land."

Only then will things change! This is my prayer!

Stilling Storms

Pastor Dawn Busch
Serving Belfield, Daglum, and Medora Lutheran Churches

Jesus got into a boat with experienced fishermen (most of them), he laid down and fell asleep. He slept so hard that even when the boat was being tossed to and fro, the waves were splashing into the boat, and the wind had to be blowing water in his face, he slept.

Mark 4:35-39 [Jesus] said to his disciples, "Let us go over to the other side." ... A furious squall came up, and the waves broke over the boat, so that it was nearly swamped. Jesus was in the stern, sleeping on a cushion. The disciples woke him and said to him, "Teacher, don't you care if we drown?" He got up, rebuked the wind and said to the waves, "Quiet! Be still!" Then the wind died down and it was completely calm.

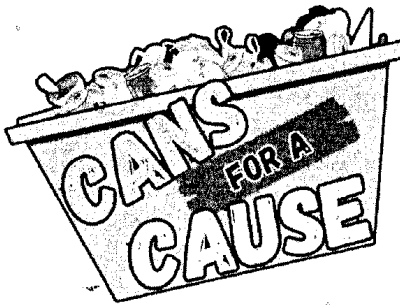

Did Jesus have so much confidence in the boat that he could sleep knowing it wouldn't begin to fall apart? Or did Jesus have so much confidence in his experienced fishermen friends that they would guide them all safely across a lake that was known to have storms come up in the afternoons? Or did his faith land in the one true God who he trusted to keep them safe? He had to have trust in God in order to sleep so peacefully.

We often overestimate our ability to volunteer help and become overwhelmed (our boat becomes swamped). Some of our storms we create for ourselves and others come up out of nowhere. Sometimes our storms are beyond our control. When life seems overwhelming, we might have skills to prioritize and delegate but ultimately it doesn't help us when we worry and stress. Anxiety in itself is a real storm. If you don't struggle with mental health, you probably know someone who does, and it's difficult to find good treatment.

Jesus has invited us into this boat of life together. Although we don't place our faith in the boat or in each other, we each do our part. So often there is nothing we can do in our storms, but we can always call out to God. We are all in this boat together and yet we don't put our faith in the boat or in our friends. While admitting we still need the boat and our neighbors, we put our faith in our Savior Jesus. Jesus reminds us, during our storms (and when there is still calm), to depend on our faith. Trust in God to calm the storm. That doesn't mean the storm will go away, but maybe the wind and the waves will stop tossing you around.

Your storm might be a little different than my storm, but we are all in the same boat, with the same Savior. We all have Jesus with whom to leave our fears and sorrows and to rejoice in our joys and celebrations. We are all in the same boat, and Jesus is there with us to calm our storms! Thanks be to God!

Thoughts for the Week

by June Schmidt

It is truly amazing when scrolling through social media and even talking to people what they are willing to believe. Why is it that people, when faced with it, refuse to accept the truth? One of the main reasons that people resist the truth is that it may require them to change their beliefs, behaviors or lifestyles. Change can be scary, especially if it involves leaving one's comfort zone or facing uncertainty.

When we are children, what we are told by our parents often is what we believe and it can be very hard to accept if at some time we are told that our long held beliefs are not correct. Obviously, sometimes parents say things that are not necessarily the truth so that they can get children to do what they want them to do. Not sure if you were told this, but I can remember being told as a kid that my nose would grow if I told a lie. That was kind of scary in itself as when you are little and you have been read the story of Pinocchio, when your parents tell you that, how many of us ran to the nearest mirror to see if it was true, or did we just break down and tell the truth about what we were supposed to leave alone. How about the phrase, liar, liar, pants on fire? Wonder how many of us chanted that in front of someone truly hoping that it would happen and when it didn't weren't we just a little disappointed? I know I was! Gosh, I can think of a few people right now that I have heard on programs and on social media that a hot seat would be quite a good thing!

Then there are those things that we should know are not true, but we still want to believe them. Mostly they are all the miracle cures. If you only drink this or that or eat this or that, you will be able to cure anything for one low price. I am not talking of natural cures as there are a lot of those that really do work, but the ones that used to be called 'snake oil' when there was truly an Old West which more than likely was some brew that you should have used to wash your socks with. Sometimes the old ways of our grandparents and great grandparents were actually good for you, but they were also interspersed with things that were not so good for you as well. Such as the pain reliever used from the Nightshade plant, Belladonna, which is classified as a toxic poison or Hemlock, which we all should have heard of. And then there were a lot of 'cures' that were advertised when electricity came out, like baldness and pretty much anything ailing you. So many things have come and gone in this world that were touted to be the 'best thing' for you. But really, a lot of these things are simply scams, just to get you to part with some of your hard earned money. There is a phrase that says 'buyer beware' which should be a big warning when it comes to your health. Make sure that you understand what it is that you are getting before you risk your health on a 'quick fix' just because you can't be bothered or have no desire to change your own unhealthy habits.

It's also too bad that people are reluctant to tell the truth, or accept that they have been told the truth in real life. Sure, we don't always want to say everything to everybody, as no one in their right mind is gonna tell their Mom that her food is not good, but there are lots of things that we should tell the truth about. It is our right to know that what we buy and use in our daily lives is good for us and those that have the power and the answers should be answerable to us. We have many experts in our world that know what the answers are, but there are lots that don't want to share those answers as that will put them in a bad light. And honesty does not get you very far in this world right now. There are more people out there that would rather walk around an answer than tell you what it really is, and they want to let you draw your own conclusions so they can keep the blame from themselves. We were raised, for the most part, by our parents to tell the truth. When did it become unfashionable? Why did personal gain become better than doing what is right despite the consequences? The world has changed and I for one think it's not for the better. Now as I go to eat one of my favorite cookies that used to come in a one pound package, that is now 12 ounces but advertised as one-fourth bigger than the 8 ounce package for the same price I used to pay, who's kidding who? So before you believe everything you see and hear, stop and consider who benefits and do a little research for yourself. Don't be fooled by those that make a practice of fooling people, you are worth more than that. God Bless you all.

Antique Tractor and Pickup Pull Results

2024 Lemmon Pulling Association

Lemmon Pulling Association held the 2024 Antique Tractor and Pickup pull June 22nd at the Lemmon Rodeo Grounds. The rain earlier in the week made for happy faces, a full crowd, and lots of tractors. The Lemmon City crew, Hoff's Ready Mix payloader, some plastic tarp donated by Bob and Lance Hourigan, and quick thinking of the pullers kept the track in great shape for the 106 hooks. Both new faces and the home town regulars made up the competition. Pullers came from as far as Williston, ND, Rapid City, SD, and Moorehead, MN. Many first-time pullers make their debut and from the smiles ear to ear it looks like they're hooked! The kids got in the action with the pedal tractors and all went home with their own toy tractor and cap from Gooseneck Implement. The big crowd and hungry pullers kept a steady line to Sweets and Meats concession trailer for sandwiches, pie, and lemonade. Thanks to the many volunteers, sponsors, and drivers that made the pull possible.
