WARRANTY SECURE®

Maybe you've heard of motorcycle, UTV, snowmobile, automotive or other original equipment manufacturer dealerships pressuring people into buying the manufacturer's brand of parts or lubricants to avoid losing their factory warranty. If it's happened to you, it probably left a bad taste in your mouth.

That's because no one likes to be told what to buy. And no one likes to be taken advantage of.

In America, the Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act protects your freedom to choose the brand of parts and lubricants you think is best.

Get the facts about your rights.

- It is illegal to tie warranty coverage to whichever brand of parts or lubricants you use. Manufacturers that do so must provide the parts or lubricants free of charge.
- You have the freedom to choose how you protect your vehicles and equipment, including use of products formulated for extended drain intervals.
- Manufacturers can't deny warranty coverage without showing the aftermarket part or lubricant caused a failure.

If anyone tries to tell you differently, contact the FTC at www.ftc.gov/complaint.
