PADI UNDERWATER NAVIGATION SPECIALTY DIVER COURSE

Search and Recovery is a specialty course offered by PADI for certified divers who wish to enhance their skills in locating and recovering lost objects underwater.

PADI (Professional Association of Diving Instructors) Search and Recovery is a specialty course offered by PADI for certified divers who wish to enhance their skills in locating and recovering lost objects underwater. This course teaches divers techniques for conducting underwater searches using various methods, such as line search patterns and circular search patterns. It also covers procedures for safely recovering objects found during the search.

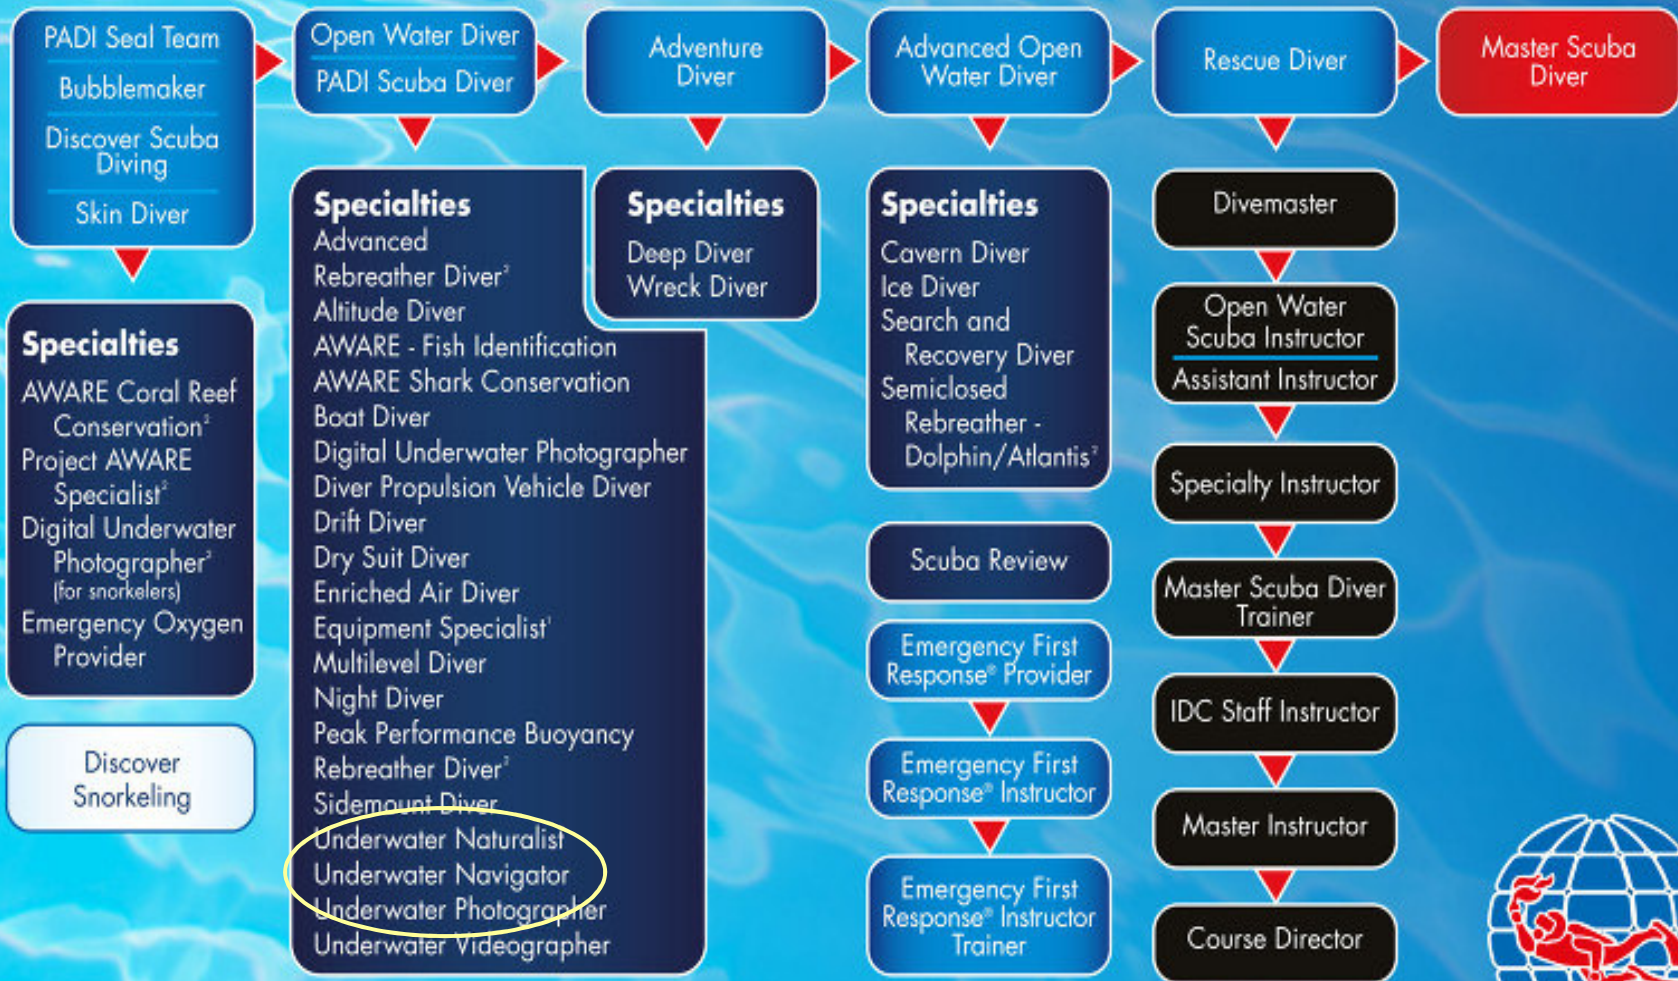

During the PADI Search and Recovery course, divers learn about different types of search patterns, including expanding square, U-pattern, and jackstay search patterns. They also learn how to use specialized equipment, such as lift bags, reels, and lines, to aid in the recovery of objects. Safety considerations, such as proper buoyancy control and communication techniques, are emphasized throughout the course.

The course typically consists of knowledge development sessions, confined water dives to practice search and recovery techniques in a controlled environment, and open water dives to apply these skills in real-world scenarios. Upon successful completion of the course, participants receive a PADI Search and Recovery Specialty certification, which allows them to conduct search and recovery dives with confidence and competence.
