

known, the wildest excitement prevailed. Drs. H. D. Heller, A. Brown, Wm. F. Detweiler, of that place, and John A. Detweiler, of Bethlehem, were summoned to the scene and attended the injured. The remains of the unfortunate lad were taken to his home by his father who had been notified of the sad occurrence.

Among those who made very narrow escapes were James D. Woodring, Esq., and Jacob Ruthard, who were returning from a frog shooting trip. Their team was caught under a falling shed, in which they had sought shelter. Their buggy was wrecked.

The storm passed on towards Springtown, doing great damage all along its path. The stack and engine-house at Bachman's iron mines were leveled, and three grain stacks on the farm of Titus Bodder were scattered.

A meeting of the directors and stockholders of the Hellertown Manufacturing Company, the owners of the destroyed works, was held in Odd Fellows' Hall, last night. Jacob B. Leith is president of the company and J. S. Hess, secretary. It was decided to rebuild the works as soon as the insurance is adjusted. The loss on the works is estimated at $10,000.

The total loss to property in the town and vicinity will amount to upwards of $25,000.

The Great Hellertown Storm

This was a terrible storm, the worst in the town since the great storm of 1894. It was a great storm, the worst in the town since the great storm of 1894. It was a great storm, the worst in the town since the great storm of 1894.

The storm passed on towards Springtown, doing great damage all along its path. The stack and engine-house at Bachman's iron mines were leveled, and three grain stacks on the farm of Titus Bodder were scattered.

The storm passed on towards Springtown, doing great damage all along its path. The stack and engine-house at Bachman's iron mines were leveled, and three grain stacks on the farm of Titus Bodder were scattered.

The storm passed on towards Springtown, doing great damage all along its path. The stack and engine-house at Bachman's iron mines were leveled, and three grain stacks on the farm of Titus Bodder were scattered.

The storm passed on towards Springtown, doing great damage all along its path. The stack and engine-house at Bachman's iron mines were leveled, and three grain stacks on the farm of Titus Bodder were scattered.

The storm passed on towards Springtown, doing great damage all along its path. The stack and engine-house at Bachman's iron mines were leveled, and three grain stacks on the farm of Titus Bodder were scattered.