those souls who remain a perpetual failure and want to overcome it.

FROM THE AUTHOR

Art of Welcoming Failure (AOWF)

“கேடும் பெருக்கமும் இல்லல்ல நெஞ்சத்துக்
கோடாமை சான்றோர்க் கணி.”

[To welcome failure and success with equipoise lies the beauty of wisdom]

The season of failure is the best time for sowing seeds of success. Paramahansa Yogananda, Indian Yogi. I have silos of experience in failure. The miniature repository is the segregation and compilation of these experiments into a group of activities applying the same failed techniques, with a modified methodology to turn the lost battles into success stories.

Every life on this planet at some point or the other encounters failure but it never gives up unlike the human being, who when failed, commits physical or psychological suicide. Look at any species other than human beings-- bird or animals- on this earth. They attune to the play of band as a routine, unlike humans, they don't ruminate the past and live like a carcass. This book explores many whys.

If you know the art of converting failure into a positive energy or a successful energy, please do so else, wait on us help you do it. All you need to remember is the password and formula to work on it.

It does work. It has worked for me and can work for anybody on this earth to explore, to enjoy the new dimensions of failure. Exhume and experience.

All the best

Foreword

Art of Welcoming Failure

‘Failure -We Welcome You’. How many will have the audacity to say so? Kudos to Dr. Subhas Chandran to remind us of the importance of trying and trying again till we succeed. I know Dr. Subhas Chandran for a long time and this Pocket size book will be handy - to read, refresh and rejuvenate with motivating quotes.

Today, many thought leaders advocate doing analysis on failures to create success. Those who believe in success forever are living in a fantasy world, and all top leaders emerged successfully out of their shortcomings.

The author’s own experiences tell us how he has come out from the shadows of failure and become a successful persona, always motivating learners. “If suicide is the only solution to all failures, I might have died long back and wouldn’t be writing this story at all.” What a powerful message!

Every day we fail in one aspect or the other, only to rise again. Explore this book and be encouraged.

Here is a book to explore, to empower....

NOTE

This book is a compilation of wisdom from myriad sources intended to benefit the general readers, certainly not experts. Most of them are suggestive, self-experienced that readers may consult health care specialist, should they find information not in rhythm with their expectation. Moreover, the write-up is governed by the British English Language/Grammar rules. Any reconciliation with the computer language be kindly overlooked. The author and the publisher bear no responsibility for abusing or misusing the indicative measures.

Art of Welcoming Failure

Tiger committing suicide? Have you ever noticed any animal taking any psychiatric treatment? Why so or atleast Why not so?

Many parents, especially ambition driven ones drive their children to farfetched goals or bribe them to a blue whale ratrace of chasing their unfulfilled ambitions but seldom do they teach them the ground reality of hardships in chasing the dreams half way across. Driven to the extremity of frenziness, modern generation resort to the internet for every whee bit of information at the end of the day reclining to valorant like games. But then, parents blame that the Information Technology to have spoiled the young minds (as if all other things have n't).

The listless blame game extends. They find fault with children using the internet, SMS, WHATSAPP, twitter, FB, chatting, listening to music have deranged the learning process. Some of the parents do not even installed internet facilities at home fearing their children may visit PUBG, Blue whale, adult sites or waste time on social media.

You will be shocked to know how a senior IAS officer was not prepared to send his daughter's photograph in response to a marriage enquiry of my son. Pathetic, I pity him. I would say it is the greatest gift of Mother Nature in the 21st century and those who know how to use will never utter a negative word against using internet in day to day life. Only thing we need is a discerning power to which we draw a line in the usage of net.

Internet makes communication faster. Imagine were Queen Sheba to have a video conference with the Jewish King Solomon instead of travelling all the way from Ethiopia to reach Jerusalem to know his wisdom from the Jewish King Solomon, She could have readily done away with. Today, we don't have to undergo such hardships thanks to the net. In no time, wherever your friend or relative be, whichever corner of the world be, communication reaches him or her in a wink of moment. Today, many telecom companies give unlimited offer pack where you can make unlimited calls or text message. That is the problem. Life made easy, we don't prefer hardships. Meet failures with open arms. To Welcome Failure do you then need any special gut feeling? Shlshee... just a pinch of might.

We cannot go back to yesteryears. Only thing we can do is to exercise prudence. All these illustrations of erudition are only one percent. But most of the benefit, say 99% is that anything can be learnt from the net. The same internet that is viewed as an arc villain disrupting family life, can sometimes save life also. Let me tell how a boy who was mentally prepared to commit suicide took a twist and saved his life when I resent an SMS that I received from a friend of mine which I still preserve.

It was a rainy day and the shower was very sober. The fragrance of the dust traveled with the raindrops to kiss the Mother Earth who was in need of something. Likewise, it was doing in a systematic disciplined way giving a twist to the dusty tree into a different colour and also to the buildings and the other nature ornaments. I enjoyed to the core and extended my arms to get a gentle kiss on my palms. Merrily like music, touch me not sensation and this was the time my cell phone reminded me of an SMS on Arthur Ashe's masterpiece message: "Why Me?".

Arthur Ashe, the legendary Wimbledon player was dying of AIDS due to infected blood he received from heart surgery in 1983. One of his fans asked, "Why should God have to select you for such a bad disease?"

Why not me?" Ashe replied, "Well, all over the world 5,00,00,000 children wish to play tennis, 50,00,000 learn to play tennis, 5,00,000 get professionally trained; 1 50,000 come to the circuit, 5,000 reach the Grand Slam, while 500 are short listed and 50 reach Wimbledon, 4 get to the semi-finals and 2 to the finals but only one wins. When I was holding the Cup, I never asked God,

"Why me?" If no "Why me?" then why "Why not me now?"

Buddy a masterpiece message!.

The message was viral everywhere spreading like wild fire. This, in turn, worked wonders with one of my close associate's son, Mr. Rakesh (name made over). He survived a suicide attempt but that his failure story had to be made up with his parents' consternation. I took the responsibility to counsel Rakesh and asked him to leave the matter to me. I also asked the boy to go and live in a friend's house without informing his parents. I too reached for him and waited on the lawn.

Just then, I noticed an army of ants moving. For a few minutes, Rakesh noticed me while I was observing the ants. I interrupted the movement and in that process, many deviated and moved away in different directions. One fell a prey to my design.

I placed a small stick obstructing the ant's movement. The ant took a right turn. Again, I made an attempt to stall its movement with another stick. The ant, without waiting, turned to the right. I smilingly laid one more stick and the ant once again took a right turn. Finally, I tried to block its move with a fourth stick but to our surprise, the ant performed a super art. It did not take any more turns nor did i try to find out what Rakesh and I were doing. It simply started climbing the stick and continued its journey. We were stunned for a few minutes and looked at each other in silence.

All the birds find shelter during rain but eagle flies above the clouds overwhelming rain

-(Dr. APJ)

I showed him how the ant waded its way without stopping when faced with an obstacle. Without waiting, it just took another turn and moved forward instead of 'blaming' someone who is responsible for obstructing his progress. [LIGHT A CANDLE INSTEAD OF BLAMING THE DARKNESS]. None has taught the ant to act likewise. Ant, not aunt was wise enough to understand that it has no role or responsibility to stall the happenings in and around it but knows how to keep going or keep moving forward cross over the hurdles.

Mother Nature has created all these wonders for the sake of humanity to learn from small creatures instead of sending teachers to teach. She has sent the ant to act, but we comfortably ignore and try to find fault with others. I counselled him saying that if his son has failed this time, then it is only a message to reorient him in the subject he is weak. If we fall from a motorcycle with brake failure, we have learnt a lesson to check the brake before starting the vehicle. If your head accidentally hits the threshold, it is better to be careful while walking instead of blaming. What would happen if Rakesh started questioning his father's failure? Is it because, his father finances his needs, he keeps quiet. No, it is a system of family governance where youngsters cannot question the elders.

These myopic views have not only stalled the growth of an individual but also suppressed the creative minds forever. Look at how Robert H Schuller, a televangelist, a great motivational speaker talks about failures. He says, "If failure is a dead-end of the road, then the humanity would have vanished long back". He adds, "Show me a person who has never failed and I will show a place where man never died". So failures and pains are the gurus to carry the message for us to learn the lesson and resume the journey.

If somebody pelts a stone at you, convert it into sixer if you can't use it for construction of the house. It means all these failures are messengers, guides, gurus, solutions for all these problems so that you are going to be infallible. Commit new mistakes and endorse new failures because failures are the roadmap to success. If suicide is the only solution to all failures, I think I might have died long back and wouldn't have written this story at all. I feel the solution lies not elsewhere but within. Failure is an obvious result. But only a few welcome it.

It is the parent's responsibility to stand at all times, motivate the children and trust them and prod them forward. Do you know when my son could not get through the civil services, I hosted a dinner at a big hotel and my wife made fun of me? "It is the heightened stupidity; how can you celebrate son's failure by hosting a dinner party?" she vented her anger. I did so as I was

Anyone who has never made a mistake has never tried anything new.

- Albert Einstein.

fully aware that he knows why he failed and where should change and take a new course of action. For the third time he succeeded and today, he shows his pride by serving the Government of India. I never say that the parents should allow them face failure and explore to learn things better as well as show them how failures help them advance with sturdy strides towards progress.

During dinner, I asked my driver a simple question, "How many run overs?" He very innocently replied, "I'm a born driver, Sir. I inherited the profession from my father. The moment I lay hands on the steering...". *Pl. read Art of Communicating... Series books 11-15. "If he answers 'not a single accident' I know he is lying. I would not employ him because a man cannot be a good driver unless he encounters some experiences which make him learn how to avoid an accident. I know he would spoil my vehicle. Had he encountered accidents, I am sure my car would be safe because a smooth sea never makes a good sailor and similarly unless one undergoes trials and tribulations he will not be able to face the hardships to lead a life of his choice. Do you know what Thomas Alva Edison said to himself when he could not invent the electric bulb even after 10,000 attempts? His statement was, “Now I know how the bulb will not work 10,000 times.”

These stories are unending and I can give you umpteen examples to demonstrate how failures come to you as blessing in disguise. These failures bring to you the experience of how every individual depends on failures to script success story. Unless you encounter failures, you will not be able to find solutions and unless you find solutions, you cannot realise your goal.

So, if you encounter a failure, thank a million times to learn the tricks of the trade from the others and if you can learn out of somebody's failure you are intelligent. If you are going to attempt failures, you are learning new lessons, you become super intelligent. The choice is yours to face the failures or avoid failures. Here again it does n't mean that a failure through hard work emerges successful; it's only said: learn from failures..... not emerge successful from failures.

Learn from Failure; Rejoice from Success

Sometime back in the television there was an ad for Gulab jamun. The wife states the reason that the child has stood second in the race. Asked how many contestants, the little son informs that “two only participated” (set aside the ambiguity in the sentence).

Failure defeats losers inspires winners–

The three categories of people

- (I) Compliant - desperate with passive acceptance of failure;
- (ii) Complainant - blaming others and god inclusive; and
- (iii) Competent - aspirant about turning every misfortune into fortune. One awaits opportunity; the next uses it while the third creates one, he is the entrepreneur.

Who Fails in life?

The one, who pretends sleep; sleeps like Rip van Winkle- desperate with passive acceptance of failure, A bad works man blames his tool. He is fatalistic-a pessimist. The other is a cynical that often keeps complaining his circumstances, people around and time.

There is a special category of man called the ‘tragic hero’ ending in Catharsis, a catastrophic death- the most optimistic. One who weathers the oddities of life despite dire or adverse conditions.

Our concern is to turn the former two into the third. In this regard we shall call forth the famous American novelist Earnest Hemmingway’s ideology: Man may be destroyed; not defeated. Under the calamitous conditions of pessimism, man survives in his death. In his novelette, *The Old man and the Sea like the great mythological king of Srilanka, Ravana, he exhibits immense grit to kill the whale.

When does he fail?

When do the four villains assail him from within? Who are they? How to deal them? The inner enemies: diffidence, suspicion, inferiority complex and self pity. The past and the future are no more existent if so how can one worry about these two traitors? While past memories kill our enthusiasm, the future fear eliminates the possibility of overcoming hurdles. Man in his status quo has to challenge the four aforesaid (1) diffidence with confidence, (2) suspicion with trust, (3) inferiority complex with equipoise and (4) self pity with self discipline to forge forth in life.. Every action of his is governed by any or every of these barricades.

Why does he?

- Fear/ of everything
- Diffidence/ lack of confidence
- Stoicism/lack of retaliation
- Indifference/reluctance
- Impudence/arrogance

Anecdote

Once there was a vendor who set out to sell corn flour in the wind he never prospered because everything was whiffed off by the Westerly. On the other hand, the man who ventured to sell salt flourished. The man changed his mind to optimism and also changed the product to salt. So in rain everything got melted and once again he lost his business. There are two things to be observed.

- One, a desperate mind is devil's den; in haste your body chemistry floods negative chemicals thus one takes hasty decisions and fails.
- The other, learn to swim with the current. If the world is bad you too have to be bad, lest should you drown. Be more worldly-wise.

If the Civil Service Examinations are not designed for failures most of the aspirants would not have made it after first attempt. You can appear for the exam ten times and thus there are candidates who have made it even after the eighth attempt and write IAS. Rise above the enemy. Know the weakness of the enemy and strength of the friend. True, it is to keep an eye on enemy and both the eyes on the friend.

Why?

Keep asking the question why? Why don't you succeed? Have a solution found out for hidden within the fragrant flower the nectarine sweetness. It is the aspirant mind that urges how to tackle failure. Welcome failure with both arms thrown open.

Success, Failure Turned Inside Out?

The triple concepts of
TIME, CIRCUMSTANCE & PEOPLE
FAILURE= MAN+ MINUTE+ MILIEU

It is rightly said: one out grows failure or failure out does one. Even if you fail keep trying for trial causes nothing; If life is a failure you live through your failure emerging heroic; your enemy might have overthrown you but there won't be any heroism in defeating a person with money, might, manpower, or even exorcism because no positive energy or courage or one's individuality is reflected.

Time

Time is integrated with
CARDIO-PULMONARY RESUSCITATION

CPR saves life. [Curbed Procrastination Rescues]
A million death can be abated only when timely care is tended. Time is a sweet villain; bitter hero.

For, it makes one run behind it. The quintessence of quality is juxtaposed against the test of time. Only when things stand to posterity their worth is better acknowledged. Most of us are complainants about good and bad time. There's actually nothing so. The potentiality is brought forth if time plays its part well. In the sense, the one who utilises his time the best reaps good harvest. What you become or don't depends on how much time you allocate for a task to accomplish. A person may be adept but lack the art of managing time* (Art of Managing Time by the same author) efficiently which is why he/she fails in his/her career/ pursuit.

“Procrastination is the thief of time” says William Shakespeare. Time is the worst culprit yet the best master. All experiences either triumphant or unsuccessful have been determined over a period of time.

Man

Every individual is unique in himself; the difference is in the beauty of sense of humour.

A known enemy is better than an unknown friend. The best critic must be least coveted friend. But, please change that attitude. It is the other way round. The yielding tree gets the most peltings. Grapple those critics as your bosom friends if you wish to flourish. Everybody boasts of freedom struggle and Mahatma Gandhi's endeavour but many do not know what happened behind the iron curtains (with Nethaji). Yet India is number one in *Nuclear armaments in the millennium. (Nuclear-most pivotal, devastating nations and families). Nobody was afraid of Gandhi's starvation. Rather definitely of India's weaponry *never to forget once America hired Indian soldiers to fight American war of Independence.

Milieu (Circumstance)

Accept the circumstance which is not in your hands. Think you are in traffic jam and you have an important obligation / assignment / meeting/ appointment or anything whatsoever is considered most urgent. At this point what one needs is not self-pity but patience; perseverance and persistence for, “Patience is an art well learnt when one is at the mercy of Nature”. Quietly chant names or tune your mindset to the conference scenario; how best you’d sieve the information to the time constraint in the best possible way. This shall rejuvenate you to face the situation coolly and casually lest should you be perturbed. When pressure surmounts you should have the forethought, presence of mind/ quickness of perception to make up for the situation. Nothing is served in golden platter, especially victory. So it is the human will to tide over the Men, Milieu and Minutes that pose stiff challenge. In this context let’s cite an interesting anecdote from the life of the famous Tamizh song composer, Shri K. Kannadasan:

It was a crucial juncture that the movie* had to go for the final take but for a song. As usual, poet Kannadasan was late to the spot.

Director Viswanathan mumbled, “God knows where the drunkard fellow has tumbled out!” The assistant overhearing it hearsays it to Kannadasan on his arrival. When pressurising circumstance surmounts at the most excruciating hour, when people become unwieldy it is only the “gut feeling” call it optimism or auto ignition that works wonders. Kannadasan who was haggling with words for the song burst out with the trigger of the rock buster song: sonnadhu nee thana.... (Were it you to utter thus...?) Lo and Behold! He had overwhelmed failure with the superimposing positive energy: composed the song; won laurels as well retorted Viswanathan’s slander (Hit the negative with the positive).

The negativity in Ravana is killed by the divine Rama hence, it is said "Man may be destroyed not defeated". We are the authoritarians of our situations. Your failure is the pen to your success story whether you wade through time, circumstance or people or object. We can emerge successful even in fall not get defeated.

Therefore, the saying:

In fall is the spring of sprouting hidden so does phoenix rise from its ashes..

For instance, during the deluge of 2015 when the world of communication was dark didn't the Indians survive? They had their routine carried out despite that wilderness.

The author himself is a live example for this statement: in every fall of his he has seen to it that he has n't been defeated rather risen phoenix like. Sure, you should accept the fact though bitter, when he writes this pocket series he may not be an ordinary person but "the most haunted by ailments" of every sort. Still his aspiration to take his success story to that forlorn and lonely brother/sister to heart again only depicts that you are not the first to suffer there have been many in the line some tragic some comic, still the influence of fortune has its percentage of share. Be it Mahatma Gandhi or Indira Gandhi, they never recorded their victory in the midst of fortune, fundings, fondling but in the midst of turmoil, torment and trouble.

Understand

- Failure doesn't mean that you are defeated; It means you are striving for success.
- Failure doesn't mean that you haven't achieved anything in the journey of life; it means you have learnt some lessons along the way.
- Failure doesn't mean that you have lost your self-respect; It means that you have the courage left to make any fresh attempts.
- Failure doesn't mean that you have nothing left; It means that you can now forge new paths.
- Failure doesn't mean that you should give up trying; It means you have to put more strength and work hard.
- Failure doesn't mean that you can't achieve. It means that certainly, you will if you have the patience and the grit.
- Failure doesn't mean that God has deserted you, it means that He has an alternative roadmap for a better future.

- Failure does not mean you are fooled, It means you have enough faith to experiment.
- Failure does not mean you are disgraced; It means you have dared to try.
- Failure does not mean you are inferior; It means you, like others, are not perfect.
- Failure does not mean you have wasted your life; It means that you have an excuse to start over.
- Failure doesn't mean that you have missed the bus; It means you are finding your wings to fly.
- Finally, failure is nothing but a postponement of success.

While concluding, let me remind you one thing. You have unique qualities, potential which you can unlock with persistence, perseverance, and tenacity. Strive continuously till you become fit-executives, professionals, entrepreneurs. Ready? Thumbs up?

Resistance in any form has multiple landmarks. Resistance in a road makes your travel hard, however, a road to success is never smooth. Unless the whetstone obstructs the knife it will never become sharper. When a river flows very smoothly, it makes its presence its voice. Look at a diamond. The number of cuts (wounds?) adds to its value. Anything that undergoes a torturous process ends up having immense value. All these examples point to one simple truth that resistance/ speed-breakers are for betterment. When somebody says something, and you go on saying yes then the conversation may end very soon. The moment you say “why” or ask questions like “why not” then this resistance opens new windows of opportunity to know more about a subject. In one of the advertisements Tata Group, it says that “you say no, we pay you.” Saying no (resistance) will trigger many ideas in the mind of the listeners so that the company can perform or improve its exceptional value.

So, failure is a resistance, and all the success stories stem out of resistance. A life without any resistance is like stagnant water. A Life with resistance is like a running river and you know very well a running river accumulates many features like experience, energy, resources, power, and whatnot. The word failure is often taken very painfully. However, failure in an examination or failure to achieve a medal in a game happens only to make you make your attempt differently. It only reemphasizes your need to change the way you have been playing or the way you have been writing the examination. This failure, the so-called failure, is nothing but a message to change the course of action. We rarely hear about athletes committing suicide or an athlete crying when he or she loses a game. So, one of the best mechanisms to overcome failure is to be like a sportsperson. So, unless you welcome failure, you will not be chosen to take part in a game of life. And listen to the story of any successful person. They have thousands of stories to tell the way they were insulted, their injury, agony, and torture, and still, they will say that cumulatively all those experiences culminated into worthy knowledge or wisdom to avoid such events in the next course of action or journey. All of them will swear that failure is nothing, but success in progress. As Henry Ford said :“Failure is the opportunity to begin again more intelligently.”So, think twice before turning failure into a pain but a part of success. It is only the opportunity to find an alternative roadmap so that ultimate success belongs to you.

22. Whenever I experience any form of failure, I smile to myself. For out of it comes an even stronger desire and determination to be more. Love more, forgive more, more to rise from the ashes like a phoenix, and show the world who I am.

23. Remember failure is not the opposite of success. It is a part of success.

Hence Arise awake and make every failure a stepping stone on the ladder of success!

*Participation is itself winning
Success is failure turned inside out
Failure is failing an attempt;
rather failing to attempt
So be up on your toes, get set go....*
