

BINOMIAL EXPRESSIONS

Binomial expressions are two-word expressions that are joined together by a preposition or a conjunction.

Complete the sentences using a binomial expression in the box. Change the form of the word if necessary.

done and dusted	part and parcel	high and low	ins and outs
rant and rave	by and large	up-and-coming	null and void
drips and drabs	out-and-out	bits and pieces	wine and dine
hustle and bustle	first and foremost	wear and tear	sick and tired
peace and quiet	leaps and bounds	toss and turn	pride and joy

- Teaching grammar is _____ of being an ESL teacher.
- I am just going to pop into town to buy a few _____.
- Her smartphone is really old now and it is showing a bit of _____.
- _____, I would say that people in my country are pretty friendly.
- All the housework is _____ so we can go out for a walk.
- People arrived at the party in _____ but eventually it was busy.
- _____, I think my country needs to employ more police officers.
- I have looked _____ for my watch but I cannot find it anywhere.
- He really loves the _____ of Tokyo. There is so much to do and see.
- Technology such as AI and Chatgpt has been improving in _____.
- This contract is _____ because you did not sign all the pages.
- Many people would say that our prime minister is an _____ liar.
- She loves working but her kids are her _____.
- David is constantly _____ about politics. It does get a bit annoying at times.
- He is _____ of doing paperwork all day long. It is so boring.
- Julia is an _____ lawyer and I have no doubt that she will do great things.
- They need to _____ the clients and make sure they have a good time.
- I slept so badly. I _____ all night and I couldn't get to sleep.
- It is difficult to get any _____ with kids running around the house.
- You should ask Sarah. She knows all the _____ of the project.