About the Auction...

The summer 2022 installment of our Circus Memorabilia Auction offers one of the most diverse collections we have ever presented. There is a tremendous selection of Wild West containing numerous very rare and scarce examples. A dedicated Sideshow segment presents some of the strangest things you will ever see. Complimenting the sale are over 300 posters covering an era of over 175 years in American Circus. A trove of fresh-to-market material has come to us from abandoned storage lockers, forgotten closets and cross-country journeys. Our passion for circus comes from the basic concept of historical preservation. We hope you read the foregoing collections summaries which will give you a deeper understanding of the entire assembly presented.

The auction will be presented live online, and we will once again host an auction watch gathering in our gallery. In the past, the assemblage of folks gathered for the auction watch has included historians, archivists, researchers, performers, owners, John Q. Public and a host of clowns. It is always a fun time for attendees and buyers and we invite you to this year's event. Let the sawdust fly!

Thanks...

We want to thank you for your interest in our auction. Whether you purchase anything or not, we hope you have enjoyed the catalog and the experience. If you enjoy this genre, we encourage you to join the Circus Historical Society. The organization is dedicated to preserving the rich history of circus.

GORDON TURNER

Gordie, to those that know him, lived and worked in Schenectady, N.Y. Now residing in the Chicago area, Turner's love affair with the circus began as a child when his parents took him to the circus and he tells a great "tail" of a escaped lions in his first experience.

Now 87, Gordon was a patent illustrator for G.E. and is an avid circus fan and circus model builder. His collection is offered here and Gordon is excited to see his life's work be shared with those of similar passions.

Featured are one-inch scale circus models, lithographs, programs and paper.

KENNETH HARCK

Ken's passion for circus began as a child, collecting circus posters. A musician by trade, Ken has been a longtime procurement agent of circus artifacts for Howard Tibbals, the Tibbals Learning Center at the Ringling Museum, Sarasota, Florida. If it was good, you could bet that Ken could secure it.

Featured is a great selection of Harck's personal collection including Wild West lithographs, photographs and paper.

DUANE THORPE – “UNCLE SOAPY”

Duane Thorpe (1924-1995), known as Uncle Soapy, was long considered the last of the “old-school” clowns on the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus. Beginning in 1949, his career spanned over 40 years in the business and his work touched many lives.

One was once quoted, “He was the anchor of Clown Alley – a gentleman and a gentleman”.

Featured is a very special collection, a massive archive, directly from the estate of Thorpe including photobooks, scrapbooks, contracts, clown gig sketches and more.

W.H. (Bill) RICE

Bill Rice W.H. Rice was one of the most widely known showmen in America at the turn of the century into the 1930's. With diverse amusement connections, he was best known for his Water Circus shows.

Rice once billed himself in endeavors of exploitation, publicity and raising funds for anything.

We will feature a host of Rice items including personal photos, show photos and ephemera

About Gordon Turner...

Gordon (Gordie) Turner, 87, is a lifelong circus fan and collector. He attended his first circus at age five with his parents, and he shared this tale about that experience. He and his folks arrived at the lot early as trucks were bringing wagons up from the railroad yard. A truck pulling animal wagons hit a bump, the door sprung open, and two lions jumped out. With the lions loose less than 50-feet away, Gordie and his father jumped to safety in an empty wagon. They watched from this vantage point as the lions rolled around in the grass, oblivious to the chaos. Workers soon lured the lions back into their cage, but the thrill of this experience was Gordie's first recollection of the circus, and from that point on he was hooked.

Gordie has a natural creative talent. As a boy of twelve, he began building model circus wagons out of small blocks of wood that he painted red. By the time he was in high school, he had constructed 20 quarter-inch scale wagons. His first exhibition was in his high school gymnasium. What was supposed to be a one-day show was extended for several days due to high interest among teachers and students.

Gordie studied mechanical drawing in high school, and after graduation he landed a job with the General Electric Company in Schenectady, New York. He advanced from the mechanical drawing department to the patent division, and eventually ran the patent drawing room at GE's Research and Development Center in Niskayuna, New York. He saw the industry go from hand-drawn illustrations to computer-generated drawings, and he was successful in both mediums.

Throughout Gordie's forty years with GE, he kept on building circus wagons and displaying his works. He moved from quarter-inch scale to half-inch scale and finally one-inch scale. Gordie didn't just construct circus wagons; he built the railroad cars to carry the wagons and he created a miniature circus to give viewers the feel of a day at the circus. He enhanced his exhibitions with lithographs and photos from his extensive personal collection.

Gordie is considered a premier model circus builder among his peers. Over the years, Gordie displayed his wagons and circuses at schools, department stores, malls, and movie theaters. The pinnacle of his success was a year-long exhibition at the New York State Museum in Albany. Gordie's 50-foot-long exhibit covered all aspects of life. This exhibit, including the half-inch scale model wagons, has found a home at the New York State Museum.

Gordie amassed a large collection of circus memorabilia during his lifetime, including lithographs, posters, photos, and other items. Components of his collection, including many of his one-inch scale models, will be offered at auction this summer. Circus fans will clamor to bid and buy elements of this fabulous collection.
