Captured in Wool: Water in a Glass Jar

3-day class taught by Valerie Begeman, nationally known hooking instructor.

May 14-16, 2026

Bowmont, Idaho

(7 minutes south of Nampa on Hwy 90)

In this three-day traditional rug hooking class, students will explore how to confidently interpret and hook water in a glass jar using wool fabric. Through guided instruction, demonstrations, and plenty of hands-on application, participants will learn how to create depth, movement, light and transparency in water - bringing a simple still life to life.

Designed for rug hookers of all skill levels, this class offers a relaxed, supportive learning environment where students can strengthen technical skills, experiment with color and texture and develop greater confidence in their personal artistic voice.

Registration Fee $295

Hand-Dyed Wool Kit available for $90

Registration fee includes: three days of instruction, Summer's Glory pattern designed by Valerie Begeman (14"x37") on serged linen, lunch each day and snacks.

Additional costs may include ATHA membership ($32) and High Desert Fiber Artists Chapter membership ($20) if not already a member.

Class size limited to 15 people.

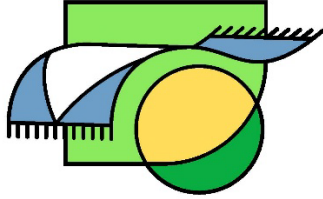

Registration initial deposit due March 15, 2026

Final payment due April 15, 2026

Please complete the attached student registration form.
