Lawful bases and data protection rights

Under UK data protection law, I must have a “lawful basis” for collecting and using your personal information. There is a list of possible lawful bases in the UK GDPR. You can find out more about lawful bases on the Information Commissioner’s (“ICO”) website.

Which lawful basis I rely on may affect your data protection rights which are in brief set out below. You can find out more about your data protection rights and the exemptions which may apply on the ICO’s website:

- Your right of access - You have the right to ask me for copies of your personal information. You can request other information such as details about where I get personal information from and who I share personal information with. There are some exemptions which means you may not receive all the information you ask for. You can read more about this here.
- Your right to rectification - You have the right to ask me to correct or delete personal information you think is inaccurate or incomplete. You can read more about this here.
- Your right to erasure - You have the right to ask me to delete your personal information. You can read more about this here.
- Your right to restriction of processing - You have the right to ask me to limit how I can use your personal information. You can read more about this here.
- Your right to object to processing - You have the right to object to the processing of your personal data. You can read more about this here.
- Your right to data portability - You have the right to ask that I transfer the personal information you gave me to another organisation, or to you. You can read more about this here.
- Your right to withdraw consent – When I use consent as our lawful basis you have the right to withdraw your consent at any time. You can read more about this here.

If you make a request, I must respond to you without undue delay and in any event within one month.

To make a data protection rights request, please contact me using the contact details at the top of this privacy notice.

How long I keep information

I will keep all information for a period based on the limitation period applicable for bringing claims against me in respect of any advice or any other legal services I undertake for you. This to ensure that I preserve evidence relating to your matter to ensure that a court has full information and to enable me to put forward my defence. The combined effect of the primary and secondary limitation periods is to restrict action against me for a period of up to 15 years running from the date that your right to take action arose. As ordinarily you would have 1 year from the date of issuing court action formally to serve proceedings on me, I will keep all information for 16 years.

How to complain

If you have any concerns about my use of your personal data, you can make a complaint to me using the my formal Complaints Procedure which is available at chrismillercompliance.com and which should be sent using the contact details at the top of this privacy notice.

If you remain unhappy with how I've used your data after raising a complaint with me, you can also complain to the ICO.
