Pheasants Forever & Quail Forever and partners hire Farm Bill Wildlife Biologist in Houston, Missouri.

Sarah Ashbrook will serve South Central Missouri landowners.

Houston, MO– December 15th, 2025 – Pheasants Forever and Quail Forever in Missouri is excited to share that Sarah Ashbrook was hired for the Houston, MO Farm Bill Wildlife Biologist position. Her official first day in the office was December 1st.

Farm Bill Wildlife Biologists on the Missouri Team are partnership positions supported by the Natural Resources Conservation Service, the Missouri Department of Conservation, and the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation. Ashbrook will work with private landowners in Texas, Dent, and Howell counties, providing technical assistance and expertise in wildlife management planning and securing funds to implement those plans.

“We are excited to have Sarah join the PF/QF team here in Missouri. Sarah has a record of success with the Organization in various landscapes and ecosystems,” said Farm Bill Manager Haley Lockard. “Her diverse experience will serve the private landowners of her counties very well as they improve wildlife habitat.”

Sarah previously worked with Pheasants Forever for four years, serving in Colorado and Nebraska, and is excited to have recently transferred to the Missouri Quail Forever and Pheasants Forever team. She comes to the team with two degrees in wildlife biology and management and a range of wildlife experience across the U.S. She looks forward to bringing her knowledge to the region while continuing to learn more about it.

“In the short time I’ve been here, the beautiful landscapes and warm people have already made my husband, our many dogs, and me feel very welcome,” said Ashbrook. “We are very excited to be part of this community.”
