

Tulsa Community Survey

The City of Tulsa has contracted with the CNA Center for Justice Research and Innovation to conduct an evaluation of Community Policing. The goal of this project is to identify what community policing should look like in Tulsa and develop a roadmap for how to get there. CNA is using multiple methods for seeking input for the evaluation. This includes four community co-researchers who are part of the project team, who are Tulsa residents, and who provide input on all project activities. We are also providing a survey for Tulsa community members to complete on their perceptions and outlooks on TPD. It will take approximately 15 minutes of your time and is completely confidential. The information you provide in this survey will help inform our work.
