FROM DAVE NOLL: If you have one of these, please bring it to the next NAPCA convention as it would sure make a great display! You might even win an award....

102,410. Ellis, R. E. (Cooke, C. J.) Feb. 16, 1916.

Aiming - rests for; stocks; sighting accessories; firing - appliances applicable generally; breech actions, sliding breech - block; breech actions, sliding barrel and breech - block; small-arms combined with other articles. — Consists in providing an automatic pistol a with a spiked rod d, for supporting it above the parapet of a trench, a deep magazine b, a hyposcope h, and means such as a cord k for pulling the trigger. The pistol is so mounted on the rod that its height can be adjusted. A steadying-spike g is provided on the rod. A recess is provided in the hyposcope to receive the recoiling part of the pistol. The rod d and spike f can be used as a weapon.

FROM CRAIG BROWN: With respect to the ongoing discussion about the use of small bore weapons in the KLs, it would be useful to know what types of empty casings have been recovered at KL sites and where those casings were recovered at each site. Perhaps inquiries should be made of the appropriate curatorial staffs....

DWM military Luger dated 1910 with matched mag; 1911 dated Erfurt Luger with matched mag. Herman Kafura hgk@netnet.net

FROM PETER HISCHIER to JOE WOTKA: In response to your latest comments about the use of caliber .22 pistols in the death camps, let me make the following brief observations. First, Pery Broad had an American father, spoke English, and was interrogated by British Army Intelligence, so I believe that his "original" statements were in English. A German language version you just presented is thus a translation which a German-speaking friend tells me contains many mistakes. Second, in the "Naked Puppets", page 91, it states that the 3 executioners "hid their already loaded weapons behind their backs..." and this could only be done with pistols. Third, Mr. Wielgus now provides a new reference from another book "The Auschwitz Chronicle", page 74, with the words "The SS men kill them with shots from a short, small-caliber gun" which is the description of a .22 pistol. Fourth, you have revealed that Auschwitz Commandant Hoes used the phrase "a small caliber revolver" to kill inmates, and this is a reference to a .22 caliber hand gun. I would note that the British (his interrogators) often refer to all forms of pistols as "revolvers". Fifth, John Pearson has provided references to several Walther caliber .22 pistols that are documented as having come from various death camps. I believe that taken together these facts offer clear proof that caliber .22 pistols were used to kill inmates in the death camps. I am sure that other types of guns and many other methods were also used to kill in the death camps. I now feel that this issue has been resolved and I plan on making no further comments on this topic.
