

Rising Sophomore Selected for College Prep Program

Brentwood High School student Kyra Williams is one of 50 rising high school sophomores admitted to the ninth cohort of the Washington University in St. Louis College Prep Program. This multiyear initiative prepares high-achieving students with limited financial resources for college.

As a College Prep scholar, Williams will spend three summers studying in Washington University laboratories and studios, attending classes led by university faculty and learning the skills needed to thrive in college. She will also have the opportunity to attend university cultural events and meet with university experts to navigate the college application process.

"I am consistently impressed with the level of thoughtfulness and individuality that our scholars bring to the table, and cohort nine scholars are true examples of that," said Ashley Prince, assistant director of programming and scholar success. "We are excited to learn from them while they learn from us over the next few years."

The College Prep Program was established in 2014 to prepare scholars for success at a college or university that best matches their interests and needs. Graduates of the program leave ready to excel, both academically and socially, with the program continuing to provide scholars with programming opportunities, college visits and ongoing individualized support.

PETCO LOVE AND CARE STL ENCOURAGE PET FOSTERING WITH A FOCUS ON FUN

Nonprofit organizations partner for National Foster a Pet Month to encourage more pet parents to lend a (temporary) hand or home to pets in need during busy summer season

Center for Animal Rescue & Enrichment of St. Louis- CARE STL is teaming up with national nonprofit Petco Love and Skechers with its BOBS from Skechers philanthropic footwear collection, to put the focus on the fun in fostering pets. Pet fostering is lifesaving and critical for animal shelters particularly during the busy summer season. "Ending preventable euthanasia of shelter pets is possible today," said Susanne Kogut, president of Petco Love. "Data tells us that if we could encourage 2% more of the 85-million pet-owning households to foster just one pet a year, we can eliminate preventable euthanasia and save the lives of the 800,000 shelter animals at risk of euthanasia in the U.S. annually."

But fostering can be serious fun, too.

Throughout June, Petco Love will work with its network of partners nationwide to share the fun aspects of fostering while helping pet parents groove through their foster pet goodbyes. In fact, saying goodbye to foster pets – and the fear they'll struggle giving the pet to a new family – is among the most-cited reasons why pet parents don't foster.

Petco Love is taking a humorous approach to saying goodbye to foster pets by holding a #MyFosterBreakUp story contest featuring Foster Breakup Kits giveaways and a curated playlist to help foster pet parents through their goodbyes.

Kits include breakup essentials: cozy, festive socks from BOBS from Skechers, a pint of Ben & Jerry's Ice Cream, Kleenex, the official Petco Love Foster Breakup Spotify Playlist, and a foster tee that reminds you that "Foster Pets are Here for A Fun Time, not a Long Time." Foster parents can enter to win by sharing their breakup letter from their foster pet on Instagram using the hashtag #MyFosterBreakUp from June 1–30 and even win $10,000 in lifesaving funds for the organization they foster from.

CARE STL will also join shelters nationwide for the National Foster Pet Open House event by inviting the public to visit the shelter located at 2700 Walnut Place, St. Louis, MO 63103 during the weekend of June 25-26th for an interactive foster meet-and-greet party for two-and four-legged friends.

Our Foster open house is a chance to meet a wonderful dog or cat to foster, and our staff will help you find the perfect fit! For all fosters, old and new, we supply everything you need to make your experience as rewarding as possible. In addition to helping a pet in need, we will have a "Spin the wheel" game for free for prize for all fosters! We are open for walk-ins from 10-5 pm all weekend.

"We took in 149 animals in 13 days at the beginning of May! For a shelter that is so small and has not enough space to put all these animals that come in daily, and limited staff, we truly need the help from the community to foster our pets waiting for a home" said Weng Horak, CEO & Founder of CARE STL. Through our partnership with Petco Love, we're excited to take part in National Foster a Pet Month and build on this event's positive momentum to help save more lives year-round."

Establishing June as National Foster a Pet Month to increase participation in fostering is just one of the lifesaving actions led by Petco Love in their 23-year history of helping pets, with $330 million invested in lifesaving efforts and 6.5 million pets adopted – and counting. Skechers has contributed more than $8 million to help over 1.5 million shelter pets, including saving 1.1 million rescued pets in the United States and Canada.

The nonprofit also recently launched a new national database, Petco Love Lost, which uses pet facial recognition technology to help reunite missing pets with their families.

Cardinal Ritter Senior Services' Gala Raises Over $200,000

Cardinal Ritter Senior Services (CRSS) – one of South County's largest independent and assisted living nonprofit communities – recently raised $203,993 at its 19th annual Heart & Cross Gala. Proceeds from the benefit will provide social, health, and housing programs and services for those in need.

The gala honored Heart & Cross recipient Jacquelin Naunheim, a former board member and nearly 30-year CRSS supporter. The award is presented by the CRSS' Board of Directors to an individual, group or program who serves senior adults.

Two board members, Joe Downs and Steve Young, were recognized for their service as they termed off the board. Downs has served as the board president since 2018, and Young was on the board for more than 20 years. The evening also recognized the retirement of Catholic Charities president Theresa Ruzicka and CRSS' Ann Jones, who worked at the nonprofit's Our Lady of Life community for more than 30 years.

"The gala's generous supporters enable us to continue serving those who need us most," said Cardinal Ritter Senior Services' CEO Chris Baechle. "I am thrilled to say we raised more than $200,000, which will provide a myriad of programs and services to those who live without adequate means." Baechle added that there is no Medicaid coverage in Missouri for assisted living facilities, so "the funds raised help older adults who need our assistance because they may not have safe living options in our community."

Annual Stratford Lane Block Party is Alive and Well

Beautiful weather and a strong desire to get outside and mingle with neighbors made the annual Stratford Lane Block party a rousing success on Memorial Day weekend Sunday, May 29th. After a few years of hibernating and tentative socializing, this year's get-together was a welcome return to "party town" on Stratford.

Over twenty neighbors gathered together for a few hours of food, drinks, prize giveaways, and conversation as the sun was setting and the remaining large trees provided welcome shade. Everybody brought something delicious to share and, once again, there was quite the range of culinary delights. The BBQ pit was hot and ready by 6 pm as burgers, brats, chicken, pork steaks, and other typical holiday entrees were prepared. Appetizers and desserts made it easy to sit back and relax... and stay seated.

As is the tradition, all the guests put their names in a bucket for drawing for an eclectic selection of "yard prizes"—from the traditional lawn pinwheel to the questionable "Toilet Darts" game. Fifteen-month-old Bodhi Hasenmueller was especially excited about his neon green football (as was Carl, his dog).

Included in the news that circulated: Congrats to Jamie Barton and new husband, Travis, on their wedding a week earlier; Congrats to Rick Heinrichs on soon becoming a grandpa (at such a young age); welcome back home for the summer to Josh McGehee from his broadcasting job at Upper Iowa University; and congrats to recent graduates: Elliot Wright from BHS; Jackson Wright from Webster U; Shannon Dulz with a Masters from Notre Dame.

The group also paid tribute on Memorial Day weekend to the veterans on our street (including Mike Emerson) and to the memory of those who made the ultimate sacrifice, including the brothers of Stratford Lane residents Suzanne Riordan and Connie Bock.

The weather and fun conversation made it difficult to break the party up, but we finally headed indoors about 8 pm, confident that we would be back for the annual National Night Out party in October.

Pictorial St. Louis A Topographical Survey Drawn in Perspective A.D. 1875

This is a reprint of the 1971 version of the original book. The book was painstakingly scanned from the original in my collection. Each page is reproduced in high resolution and coil bound so the pages lay flat while viewing. Printed on 12" x 18" high quality acid free paper. A nice edition to your historical book collection. Perfect coffee table book as people are attracted by the cover art.

PICTORIAL ST. LOUIS: The Great Metropolis of the Mississippi Valley A Topographical Survey, Drawn From Perspective 1875.

Illustrations by Camille N. Dry and designed & edited by Rich. J. Compton.

Over 220 pages of illustrations and descriptions of life in St. Louis in the late 1800's. The preliminary drawings for this work were made early in the spring of 1874. After a careful consideration of the subject, it was determined to locate the point of view so that the city would be seen from the southeast, believing that to be the most advantageous in all respects. Accordingly, the point of site was established on the Illinois side of the river, looking to the northwest, and at sufficient altitude to overlook the roofs of ordinary houses into the streets.

A careful perspective, which required a surface of three hundred square feet, was then erected from a correct survey of the city, extending northward from Arsenal Island to the Water Works, a distance of about ten miles, on the river front; and from the Insane Asylum on the southwest to the Cemeteries on the northwest.

Every foot of the vast territory within these limits has been carefully examined and topographically drawn in perspective, by Mr. C. N. Dry and his assistants, and the faithfulness and accuracy with which this work has been done an examination of the pages will attest. Absolute truth and accuracy in the representation of the territory has been the standard and in no cases have additions or alterations been made unless the same were actually in course of construction. In a few cases, important public and private edifices that are not yet finished are shown completed, and as they will appear when done.

All the buildings within the limits of the survey in July, 1875, are shown; and a very large number of those executed or commenced since that date have been also introduced, the pages having been constantly corrected up to the last possible moment before publication.

This book is available from Gene-Del Printing for $75.00. Please call Keith at 314.962.4750 or email him at keith@genedel.com. You may also stop by our office at 9019 Manchester, 63144 in Brentwood to view the book.

Maplewood's Woodside Receives the McReynolds Award from Missouri Preservation

The McReynolds Awards, named in honor of Elizabeth McReynolds Rozier, are given annually to individuals or groups who have made significant achievements in the field or are in the midst of a long-term preservation project, creating synergy in the field of historic preservation. Learn more about the award at www.preservemo.org

The Missouri State Capitol in Jefferson City was bustling on April 19th as award recipients from around the state gathered. The McReynolds award was presented to the owners of Woodside but also recognized the many people that played an integral part in the preservation and restoration of this landmark.

Woodside (2200 Bredell) was built c. 1849 as the home of Charles S. and Mary Warder Rannells and is believed to be the oldest building in Maplewood. In June 2016, the City of Maplewood sold Woodside to Brendon D. Papineau and Elizabeth (Libby) M. Farmer with preservation covenant restrictions, the culmination of a 15-year effort by Maplewood preservation advocates to save the home.

Unfortunately, despite all of the community's efforts to save and preserve the old farmhouse, by the time Papineau and Farmer stepped forward the building was in dire condition. The frame house was leaning, the mortar in the stone foundation had turned to dust, the wood beams that formed the sill plate for the exterior walls had been crushed, and a portion of the foundation had fallen. The list of structural issues was extensive. Papineau and Farmer consulted with preservation professionals, including Maplewood resident, Jennifer Sims Taylor of Fendler and Associates.

The renovation project began with house movers jacking the house up (a precarious project considering all the structural rot/damage to the wood beams) and replacing the basement/foundation walls. Then, the wood sill plate was replaced, the damaged wood beams were sistered and steel beams were added to support the house structure. The house was lowered back down off the jacks—now resting at about the height it was in the early historic photos instead of crushed down into the ground.

MISSOURI BOTANICAL GARDEN TO OFFER FREE ADMISSION ON JUNETEENTH

Admission free at all three Garden sites, Garden to offer special activities

The Missouri Botanical Garden will offer free admission to all visitors on Sunday, June 19 in honor of Juneteenth. Visitors can spend a restful and restorative day in the Garden and partake in special activities planned for the day. Admission to the Children's Garden will also be free for the day. Visitors to the Children's Garden will receive an okra plug for a "pot-a-plant" activity while supplies last. Okra has strong ties to the African American experience. It was brought to America through the transatlantic slave route, likely as provisions for enslaved people. It is one of the few crops from Africa that could grow in the American climate. It is still used abundantly in Southern cuisine, one of the hallmarks of African diaspora in American cooking.

Dr. Jessica Harris, acclaimed author and featured guest on the Netflix series "High on the Hog," talks about the history of okra and other important foods in the African American community in her presentation "The History is on the Plate: Deconstructing African American Food History." Harris gave this free virtual presentation for the Garden in February. A recording of the presentation will be played in the Garden's PlantLab from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Sunday, June 19.

The Garden will also share an interpretive visitor guide highlighting significant contributions of African Americans to advance botanical science throughout history. The guide will also offer opportunities for onsite exploration at the Garden, self-reflection, nature journaling, and meditation. Visitors are invited to explore the George Washington Carver Garden, dedicated to Missouri-native scientist Dr. George Washington Carver who greatly influenced 19th and 20th century agriculture and education.

Admission will also be free for all visitors at the Butterfly House in Chesterfield and Shaw Nature Reserve in Gray Summit on Sunday, June 19.

The Butterfly House will screen a film created by the University of Wisconsin-Madison that celebrates historic Black entomologists throughout the day.

The Missouri Botanical Garden's mission is "to discover and share knowledge about plants and their environment in order to preserve and enrich life." Today, 163 years after opening, the Missouri Botanical Garden is a National Historic Landmark and a center for science, conservation, education and horticultural display.

NEW LINE SEEKS MULTI-RACIAL CAST OF WOMEN ONLY FOR "NINE" AUDITIONS JUNE 13 and 20, 2022

New Line Theatre will hold open auditions on two Monday nights, June 13 and 20, 2022, for the multi-award winning musical NINE. The auditions will start at 7:00 p.m. both nights, at the Marcelle Theater, 3310 Samuel Shepard Drive (63103), just three blocks east of Grand in the Grand Center Arts District. Performers need to come to only one of the dates. No appointment is necessary.

NINE will run twelve performances over four weeks at the Marcelle, March 2-25, 2023, no Sundays and no matinees.

NINE will have a cast of 16 women (the role of Guido has been cast). New Line is looking for a multi-racial cast of intelligent, fearless, singing actors. We do not cast anyone under 17. We are very eager to cast actors of color, and we are open to cross-gender casting. Performers are asked to bring a prepared contemporary theatre song, with printed piano music for our pianist (no karaoke tracks and no a cappella). Performers may also be asked to sing from the score. There will not be a dance audition.

The other two shows in New Line's 2022-2023 season have been cast already, before and during the pandemic. More info can be found on the Auditions page of New Line's website. For more information, call us at 314-773-6526 or email us.

We are proud to be part of a diverse community, and our stage will represent that inclusivity.

REHEARSALS

New Line rehearses on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 10:00 p.m., plus every night the week the show opens. Rehearsals are at First Congregational Church of St. Louis, in Clayton, and at the Big Muddy Dance Studio on Washington.

Rehearsals for NINE begin the first week of January 2023.

ABOUT THE SHOW

Based on filmmaking legend Federico Fellini's legendary (semi-) autobiographical film 8 1/2, NINE is a psychoanalytical roller coaster ride through the brain of a troubled, self-doubting genius. Underneath, it's a story about creation and creators, the sacrifices and compromises and demons, and the mysterious, delicate process of making great art.

Nine follows Fellini avatar Guido Contini who suffers a monumental breakdown, just as he turns forty and cameras are ready to roll on his next film, which Guido hasn't even written yet. The entire show unfolds inside Guido's frantic, chaotic mind as the many women in his life begin to rebel against his casual use and abuse of them, and as he examines the many relationships in his life. Finally, Guido has to learn the hardest lesson of all for an artist - he has to grow up.

For other information, visit New Line Theatre's full-service website at www.newlinetheatre.com. All programs are subject to change. New Line's current season closes with Urinetown throughout June 2022.

From Brentwood Police Department: Flock Cameras

The City of Brentwood has partnered with Flock Safety camera systems to install several license plate reader cameras in and around Brentwood. This new technology provides Brentwood police officers with immediate notifications when a vehicle that is wanted for a crime enters the Brentwood jurisdiction.

Since the installation of these cameras, Brentwood officers have interrupted countless car break-ins, identified stolen vehicles, and made several felony arrests as a direct result of notifications from Flock. As private businesses and neighborhood associations begin to show interest in these cameras, the Police Department looks forward to continued success in using this technology to assist with protecting the City of Brentwood.

As a reminder: To help discourage thieves from coming to Brentwood, lock your car doors and keep valuables out of your vehicles; this includes firearms, extra keys, electronics, purses, wallets, garage door openers, and anything else of value.

Brentwood Receives $300,000 Grant for Wetland Project

The City of Brentwood received a $300,000 grant from the Missouri Department of Resources’ Division of Environmental Quality, Soil and Water Conservation Program. The grant will allow the City to design and construct an extended wetland pond north of the confluence of Deer Creek and Black Creek.

With this grant funding, Brentwood can enhance the design of the confluence point to aid in flood mitigation as well as to confer significant water quality benefits.

The .75 acre pond will have .25 acres dedicated as a wetland for water quality treatment. The design will incorporate a varied topography to allow pockets of runoff to form shallow semi-permanent to permanent pools for optimal plant and wildlife habitat.

Installation of shallow emergent zones with native species and a heterogeneous mix of plants will improve the biological diversity of the site.

Construction on this project is scheduled to begin in spring or summer 2022, as weather permits.

The veteran and the rookie: how Cardinals Albert Pujols and Juan Yezpez are building a special relationship

By Rob Rains

When Juan Yezpez walked into the visiting clubhouse in Kansas City almost a month ago, ready to make his major-league debut, he was welcomed with a long bear hug from Albert Pujols.

The two, the seasoned veteran and the wide-eyed rookie, have almost literally been joined at the hip ever since.

“I think he (Pujols) allows him to go to the bathroom by himself and that’s about it,” said Cardinals’ manager Oli Marmol.

The way Pujols and Yezpez have formed such a quick bond since that hug on May 4 has not surprised Marmol, who hoped from the day the Cardinals signed Pujols that the future Hall of Famer’s influence on the team’s young players, such as Yezpez, would be one of the extended benefits of the move.

“When we decided to sign Albert in spring training, I pulled Yezpez in the office and told him, ‘This move obviously directly impacts you making the club, but you can go in two directions. You can be frustrated by it or you can latch yourself to one of the greatest righthanded hitters ever to play this game and take advantage of the fact that he’s going to be in the same building as you.’

“What he (Yezpez) has done since day one is extract as much value from Albert as possible.”

Yezpez was optioned to Memphis to start the season, but when Edmundo Sosa had to be placed on the Covid IL, it opened a spot on the roster and Yezpez has taken full advantage of it – to play, and to learn.

What Yezpez quickly learned was that Pujols, despite his gawdy career numbers and a big difference in their ages, was willing to make himself available anytime Yezpez had a question or needed help with something.

“He asks a lot of questions,” Pujols said. “I love it. He’s a really humble kid, and really fun to be around.”

The fact that Pujols has been so open to helping Yezpez, and the Cardinals’ other young players, is something that Yezpez quickly come to appreciate – and something he certainly is not taking for granted.

“He was like, ‘Don’t be shy to ask any questions, I’m here for you,’” Yezpez said. “Since that day I’ve just been asking questions.”

The questions have run the gamut – from checking on what Pujols saw in a particular at-bat to big picture thoughts about the game, or about life. Pujols has welcomed them all, even though he jokes that he is glad when Yezpez goes onto the field to play defense so he can get a little bit of a break.

“He’s said a couple of times that I talk a lot and ask a lot of questions,” Yezpez said, “but he’s told me he had a lot of people he would talk to and ask questions.”

That, indeed, is one of the reasons Pujols is happy to take the time to answer all of the questions from Yezpez, who was just a 3-year-old toddler in Venezuela when Pujols made his major-league debut in 2001.

“When I see him I see myself,” Pujols said. “I see myself walking into old Busch Stadium and asking questions to the veteran guys. Sometimes I know I felt I was asking a little bit too much but those guys enjoyed it. It helped me out to become who I am today.”

“My teammates that I had had a big impact in my life and my career. This is part of my responsibility any my role.”

Among the players a young Pujols turned to for advice and answers were Placido Polanco, Jim Edmonds, Edgar Renteria, Mike Matheny and even the late Darryl Kile.

“He (Kile) was one of the guys who told me, ‘I’m doing this for you’ and he wasn’t even a position player,” Pujols said.

“He said, ‘I know you are going to do it for somebody else’ and that stuck with me for the rest of my life.”

What Pujols has appreciated about the questions from Yezpez is that they all revolve around the same goal – the quest for knowledge about the game, and about what he can do to become a better player.

“He’s willing to be open and to listen,” Pujols said. “He wants to learn and he wants to get better. You don’t see that with a lot of young guys right now.”

“If I don’t have the answer I try to find out. I just want to try to make him comfortable. This game is a game of making adjustments. He’s aware of that, and he knows what he needs to do. He’s a good player with talent and he knows what he wants to do at the plate and with his approach and that is something that is really good. He’s really mature for his age.”

Part of that maturity is illustrated by the respect that Yezpez had for Pujols long before they met in person, before Yezpez would allow himself to consider Pujols his teammate and friend.

“For as long as I can remember I’ve seen Albert Pujols and heard of him,” Yezpez said. “He is a legend. Being here and having him treat me this way helps me. It’s a God thing. He put him here for a reason and I’m here for a reason. It’s pretty special.”

“I was talking to my family and I was like, ‘He’s the machine. He’s the legend.’ It’s hard to see him as a teammate. I see him more as kind of a father figure. My ears are wide open listening to what he has to say to me.”

Part of Yezpez’s respect for Pujols comes from all of the work that Pujols has done for his foundation and other charities.

“I told him I was so proud of what he did on the field but also what he did off the field,” Yezpez said. “I wanted to tell him how I looked up to him.”

Much of their time together has been spent discussing the proper mental approach that Yezpez wants to take into each at-bat. Having the physical tools necessary to succeed at the major-league level is something that Pujols knows – and Yezpez is learning – isn’t always enough.

“One of the things he told me was to be aggressive and not to take any at-bat for granted,” Yezpez said. “He’s been helping me relax. When I go out there I feel relaxed because he is there telling me how good I am. Albert Pujols telling me how good I am is pretty special.”

What Marmol has observed about Yezpez’s relationship with Pujols is that the benefits of all the time they are spending together can’t be measured by the results of one particular at-bat or even what happens during one game. Some of the benefits might be apparent immediately, resulting from a piece of advice that Pujols shared, but sometimes they won’t be that obvious.

“It’s a great relationship of one of the greatest to ever do it teaching the next guy up what it looks like,” Marmol said. “Albert has made himself extremely approachable not only to Yezpez but to everybody in that clubhouse. It’s an amazing trait.”

“Some stuff that they talk about will come into play immediately and some of it will take time.”

Pujols realizes that because of his accomplishments in the game, and the age difference, some younger players might be reluctant to approach him for help. He’s glad Yezpez wasn’t like that.

“One thing you need to learn is that you can’t be intimidated by anybody in this game,” Pujols told him. “I’m not going to force you to listen to me just because I have experience. I can tell you about the adjustments that might have helped me, but you have to figure out what is going to help you. You have to find that out for yourself. But my goal is to be open and willing to help.”

Yezpez didn’t take long to learn that.

“I will keep reaching out to him but at the end when you go out there you are alone, just you against the pitcher,” Yezpez said. “I am trusting what got me here. I just want to play the game and have fun, trusting my abilities.”

“Sometimes I still have some butterflies, but I definitely feel more comfortable now. I know there are ups and downs in baseball and everybody has stretches where it’s hard. He (Pujols) has helped me relax and remember it’s just a game.”

From what Pujols has observed, and learned, about Yezpez, it’s a game that Yezpez should be good at for a long time.

“He’s got the talent,” Pujols said. “There still is a long ways to go but he’s going to be OK at this level as long as he sticks with his approach and what he wants to do at the plate.”

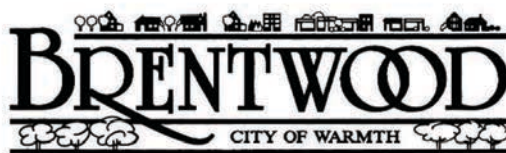

Pujols also knows there also will likely come a day when a new player, fresh up from the minor leagues, will be asking Yezpez for advice and suggestions.

“I’m not going to be around forever,” Pujols said.

While Pujols is here, however, it won’t be hard to find him – just look for Yezpez and Pujols likely will be standing right next to him.

“I’m very thankful and really appreciate all the time he is taking with me,” Yezpez said.

URBAN CHESTNUT RELEASES NEW SEASONAL STL ZOO BIER BIG CAT GOLDEN PILSNER

To raise awareness about the importance of animal welfare and conservation, the Saint Louis Zoo teamed up with Urban Chestnut Brewing Company (UCBC) in 2019 to create STL Zoo Bier, the first official beer of the Saint Louis Zoo.

The brand-new brew for 2022 is STL Zoo Bier Big Cat Golden Pilsner. The striking, colorful label features an Amur (pronounced AH-mer) leopard, one of the rarest, most endangered cats in the world. Big Cat Country is home to the Amur leopards at the Zoo, including two female cubs that were born on April 21, 2022. See more info on this significant birth.

The pilsner-style beer will be available at the Zoo beginning this weekend and next week at grocery stores and beer retailers in St. Louis City, St. Louis County, St. Charles County, and the Metro East area. For every case of STL Zoo Bier sold at area retailers, Urban Chestnut will donate $3 to the Saint Louis Zoo to support its animal care and conservation work.*

"This unique, local partnership with Urban Chestnut provides important support to our worldwide efforts to save animals from extinction," said Michael Macek, Director, Saint Louis Zoo. "We greatly appreciate the brewery's generosity and partnership over the last three years, donating and raising over $37,000 for conservation and animal-care efforts at the Zoo. Adults can enjoy a quality, St. Louis-made craft beer while helping wildlife, which makes for a great collaboration."

Since creating the partnership in 2019, 4,269 cases of STL Zoo Bier have been sold.

"As an animal lover and life-long advocate of the St. Louis region, this partnership means a lot to me and to the team at UCBC as well," said David Wolfe, co-founder of Urban Chestnut Brewing Company. "The Saint Louis Zoo is such a significant organization, both locally and globally, and we're thrilled to continue this partnership, especially at this point in time when it's more important than ever to support our community."

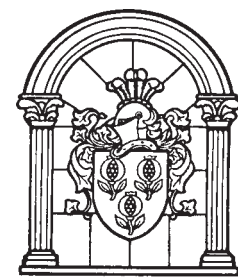

STL Zoo Bier, sold in 4-packs of 16 oz. cans, is an easy-drinking, light golden pilsner, at 4.8% ABV, according to UCBC.

Remembering is important.

From Brentwood Fire Department: It's OK to Call 911
The Brentwood Fire Department staff enjoys speaking with residents, but there are times when it is best to call and speak with the 911 dispatchers. Instead of calling the fire station to report instances of someone injured or not feeling well, powerlines down, smell of smoke in a home, fire alarms "beeping" or activated, calling 911 is the best option.

Area 911 dispatchers are trained to quickly determine the severity of a reported situation and to direct the closest and most appropriate resource to manage these situations, whether help is needed quickly or not. It is OK to call 911. Fire and medical units regularly train away from the firehouse or can be away helping others and would be unavailable to answer the phone. Rather than calling the Brentwood firehouse for help, save precious time and call 911 to report an emergency or request for service.

Be Warned About the Weather: CodeRED Notification System Weather Warning Alert Option
Brentwood's CodeRED Community Notification System includes CodeRED Weather Warning, which provides residents and businesses with automated severe weather alerts. Those who choose to opt in to this service will receive flash flood, tornado and severe thunderstorm warnings just moments after an alert has been issued by the National Weather Service.

Residents and businesses who have already signed up for Brentwood CodeRED notifications and wish to activate the Weather Warning Alert options will need to register for CodeRED again. To activate these severe weather warnings, click on the "Brentwood CodeRED" icon on the home page of brentwoodmo.org or text WARMME to 99411 from your mobile phone. There is no charge to residents or businesses for this service.

Residents and businesses who have not previously signed up for CodeRED notifications may do so at any time by clicking on the "Brentwood CodeRED" icon on the home page of brentwoodmo.org.

The City of Brentwood will continue to send other public safety notifications, such as road closures or specific emergency situations, through the CodeRED system. The City of Brentwood CodeRED Assistance Line is 314.963.6710. Please leave your name and phone number, and a staff member will return your call as soon as possible.

Report a Concern, Make a Request
Main requests (such as vacation checks or household item pick-ups) or submit concerns through the MyGov request-tracking system via the home page of brentwoodmo.org. Click on the "Report a Concern" button, choose a category and submit your request. You'll receive feedback when the request is received and also will receive updates as the request is investigated by City staff.

Reminders to Homeowners
Brentwood homeowners are responsible for mowing and maintaining the area between the street and the sidewalk along their property. Overhanging brush, overhanging tree limbs and high weeds need to be cut back to ensure a clear and safe passage along the sidewalk, per Municipal Code sections 505.070 and 505.090.

Brentwood's Municipal Code also prohibits short-term rentals.

RESTAURANT REVIEWS

By Kevin McCarthy

Central European Dining In Central St. Louis County

I think by now you know I like to indulge my hunger with different styles of cuisine. I find Central European dining to be a never ending combination of many types of western European staples with middle eastern spices and methods of preparation. What more could you ask for?

By the mid 90's St. Louis became the home to the largest Bosnian population outside of Europe. They brought with them their work ethic that has reclaimed and rejuvenated more than a few St. Louis neighborhoods. They also brought their unique recipes and styles of cooking, including the preparation of food in wood fired ovens.

The Balkan Treat box started as a food truck and has evolved into a brick and mortar property at 8103 Big Bend Blvd in Webster Groves.. There you find a group of hungry people waiting for them to open at 11am Tuesday through Saturday and they are open "until they sell out".

When you enter the restaurant you are given a menu so that when you reach the counter you will be ready to order. You are given a number for your table. You then get your beverage of choice, have a seat, and your lunch will be delivered to you in a matter of minutes.

Sue ordered the Pide, a Turkish Flat Bread, cheese, Ajvar, kajmak, herbs, with a side of cabbage salad. It comes in many styles including Beef, chicken, daily vegetable, vegetarian, vegan and cheese. Like most items, it comes fresh from the wood fired oven.

I had the Cevapi, grilled Beef Sausages in Somun, Kajmak, onion, with a side of cabbage salad. It can also be a half order and I should have ordered that. The whole order was humongous!

Other items include a "Balkan Burger" a number of items that resemble a "wrap" sandwich and more. I think I may have to keep going back until I have tried everything on their menu.

We had no room for a dessert, but the rice pudding with pistachio and rose petals sounded delightful.

I realized I am late to the game after seeing the nationwide coverage they have already received such as: Bon Appétit, the Chicago Tribune, Condé Nast Traveler, Delta Sky Magazine, Esquire, MSN, Forbes, Food & Wine, Food Network, James Beard Award Semifinalists, Men's Journal, PBS, New York Times, Southwest Magazine, Travel + Leisure, USA Today: the Wall Street Journal, the Washington Post, Yahoo, ZAGAT and literally every media outlet in the St. Louis area. I might add that all this recognition is very well deserved.

Free parking is available just behind the restaurant. They will ship orders nationwide, and you may also order on line and pick-up on site.

There is nothing pretentious about the Balkan Treat Box. It is just great international style food at a reasonable price. Give it a try, you will love it.

How to Save at the Pump as Gas Prices Soar

By: West Community Credit Union

While you may not be able to entirely escape soaring gas prices, there are several strategies you can implement in your everyday routine to help you save money.

Use a gas price app

If you do only one thing, this is it. Shopping around on a gas app will quickly show you the cheapest gas in your area or along your intended route. While GasBuddy is perhaps the best-known gas app, there are others available. And you can filter the results to show the price of different fuel grades and which stations offer diesel.

Join a fuel rewards program

Grocery store loyalty programs have been and continue to be a great way to save money on gas. And now even gas stations are getting in on the game and offering their own gas rewards programs.

Pay with a credit card that offers a good rewards program

Getting extra cash back or points for gas station spending is great because you reap rewards for money you would spend anyway — and big gas spenders will rack up more rewards than average. But remember, if you are using a credit card, pay off the entire balance or the interest will wipe out any gas price savings.

Slow down & drive more efficiently

This might be a no brainer, but driving at slower speeds can save you money. It may increase the length of your trip so consider how much longer you'll spend driving if you're cruising at 50 mph versus the speed limit on the highway. Additionally, speeding up quickly and braking suddenly can reduce fuel efficiency. Using cruise control can help improve fuel efficiency.

Combine errands as much as possible

Your fuel economy is worse when your engine is cold than when it is warmed up. So, several short trips taken from a cold start can use twice as much fuel as a longer, multipurpose trip covering the same distance.

Maintain a healthy vehicle

Get regular maintenance checks to avoid fuel economy problems due to worn spark plugs, dragging brakes, sagging belts, low transmission fluid, or transmission problems.

Fixing a serious maintenance problem, such as a faulty oxygen sensor, can improve mileage by as much as 40%. Other things you can do include:

Use the grade of motor oil your car's manufacturer recommends. Using a different grade of motor oil can lower your gas mileage by 1%-2%.

Inflate your tires to the pressure listed in your owner's manual or on a sticker that is either in the glove box or driver's side door jamb. This number may differ from the maximum pressure listed on your tire's sidewall.

Don't ignore the check-engine light—it can alert you to problems that affect fuel economy as well as more serious problems, even when your vehicle seems to be running fine.

Switch to a fuel-efficient vehicle

Are you looking to make a bigger and lasting change? Switching from a car that gets 20 MPG to one that gets 30+ MPG amounts to $1122 per year (assuming 15,000 miles of driving annually and a fuel cost of $4.49). That's $5,612 extra in fuel costs over five years! And fuel-efficient models come in all shapes and sizes, so you need not sacrifice utility or size.

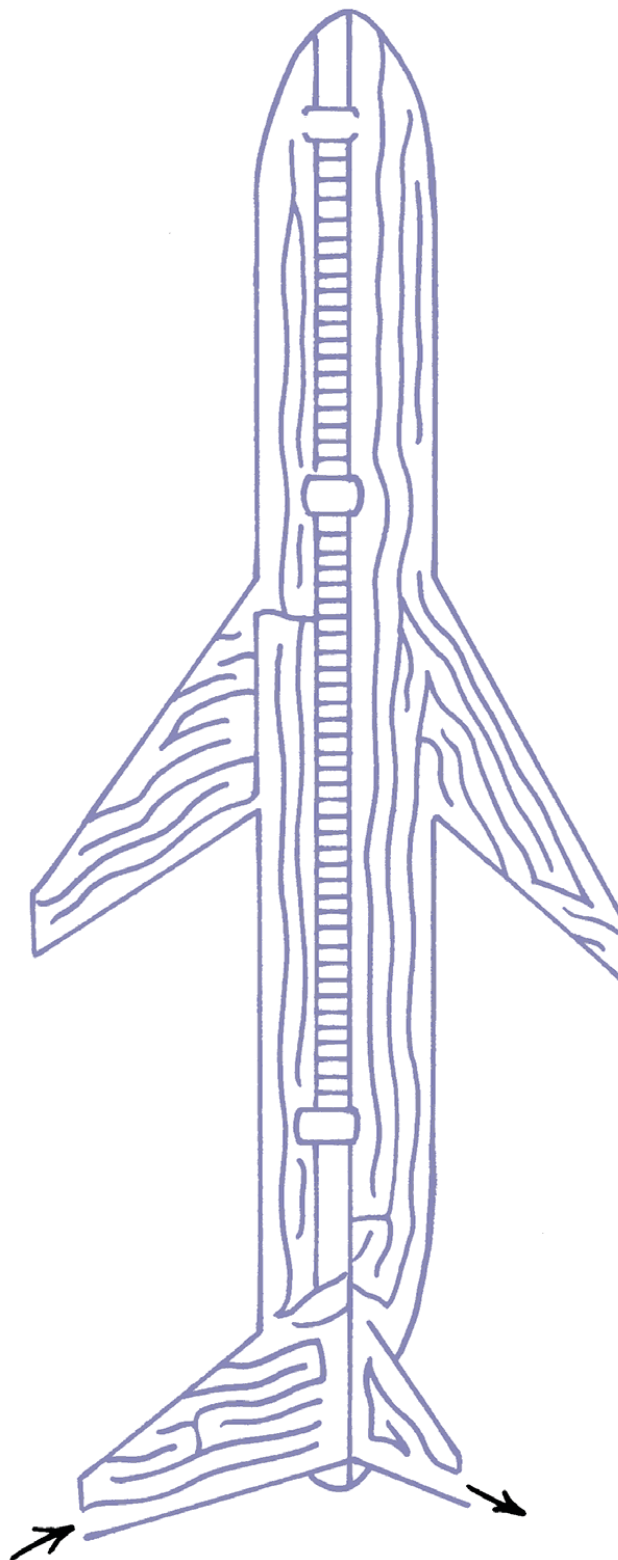

Bottom line

While it's unclear how long high gas prices will stick around but getting a gas rewards credit card, enrolling in a gas loyalty program, hunting down cheap gas and making tweaks to how you drive could all help you save dollars when filling up your tank. For more information on customized financial solutions, visit West Community Credit Union online at westcommunitycu.org. or call Member Services at 636.720.2400.

KFC/SANDERS CAFE & MUSEUM

By Sue McCarthy

With summer here and families taking off on road trips it is time to think about food on the road.

Kevin and I recently headed off to eastern Tennessee. On our way back home we stopped at a very interesting restaurant to eat and to tour the unique museum. As we exited the highway ramp we were beckoned by a large white bucket trimmed in red with the face of Colonel Harlan Sanders of Kentucky Fried Chicken fame. Colonel Sanders 1890 – 1980. The title “Colonel” was honorary not the military rank. During the Depression he began selling his fried chicken from his roadside gas station motel restaurant in North Corbin, Kentucky. He developed his famous “Secret Recipe” and his patented method of cooking chicken in a pressure fryer. He recognized the potential of restaurant franchising and opened the first KFC franchise in South Salt Lake, Utah in 1952. He devoted himself full-time to franchising his fried chicken throughout the country.

The museum is filled with all kinds of KFC memorabilia. Kevin’s favorite was the big wall with 192 spices and the eleven secret spices were there too...you just couldn’t tell which they were. KFC is the world’s most popular chicken restaurant chain. It all started with one cook who created his finger lickin’ good recipe more than 75 years ago using his secret herbs and spices. The chicken is prepared by real cooks by hand in more than 20,000 restaurants in more than 125 countries.

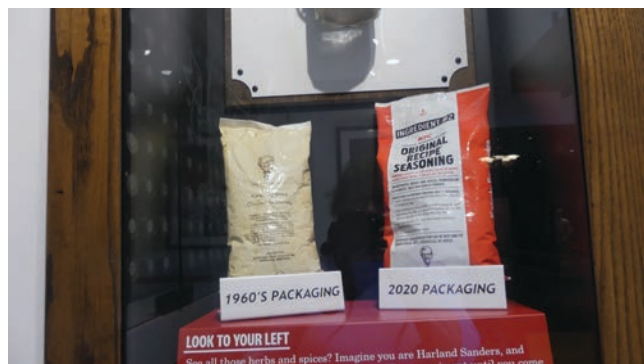

The original 1940’s building was restored and it was added to the National Register of Historical Places in 1990. There is a model of his original kitchen and a hotel room. To find out more go to www.KFC.com

“I’ve only had two rules. Do all you can and do it the best you can. It’s the only way you ever get that feeling of accomplishing something.” - Colonel Sanders
