BHS Senior Named Outstanding Student Leader

Brentwood High School senior Logan Hawkins has been honored as an Outstanding Student Leader by the St. Louis County Department of Human Services. This prestigious award celebrates students for their community service, leadership, citizenship, personal character and extracurricular involvement.

As part of the recognition, Hawkins joined fellow honorees for a one-day leadership conference hosted by the St. Louis County Department of Human Services in partnership with Washington University in St. Louis. The conference allowed students to work closely with university professionals to deepen their understanding of key issues facing the St. Louis region.

Throughout the day, students were divided into teams and challenged to address real-world issues, including health care, education, housing and economic development. Each team presented its potential solutions to a panel for feedback, gaining valuable insights and strengthening their commitment to making a positive impact in their communities.

“Logan exemplifies the qualities we value at Brentwood High School,” said Dr. Edward Johnson, BHS principal. “His leadership, character and commitment to community service make him a true role model, and we’re excited to see the meaningful impact he will continue to make in Brentwood and beyond.”

Established in 1976, the St. Louis County Outstanding Student Leadership Program recognizes high school seniors who make exemplary contributions to their schools and communities. One senior from each county high school is selected to participate in this distinguished program each year.

Blending Safety, Education and Innovation in Schools

Last month, students from the Washington University in St. Louis Pathfinder Fellows Program toured the Brentwood School District’s three ICC 500 storm shelters, including the newest addition at Mark Twain Elementary School. These state-of-the-art safe rooms, designed to provide near-absolute protection in extreme weather events, underscore the district’s commitment to blending safety with innovative learning environments.

Mark Twain’s storm shelter, now fully integrated into the school’s library media center, provides a safe, engaging space where learning and protection come together. The McGrath Elementary School and Brentwood Early Childhood Center campus includes a gymnasium storm shelter, while the Brentwood middle and high school campus fea-

“Our goal is to create safe, dynamic spaces that serve multiple functions for our schools and community,” said Andrew Hartnett, director of facilities. “Each storm shelter integrates seamlessly into our schools, reflecting our commitment to safety and functionality.”

The current International Building Code requires all new educational facilities with more than 50 occupants to include a safe room to protect students and staff from tornadoes and similar hazards, a requirement in place since 2015. Brentwood’s storm shelters exceed these standards, combining safety with functional spaces that enrich the daily educational experience.

BMS Career Day Inspires Postsecondary Exploration

More than 20 business professionals shared their experiences and insights about their respective fields as part of Brentwood Middle School’s third annual Career Day on Friday, Oct. 11.

From mechanical engineering to health care fields like neuroscience and oncology, this event showcased a variety of career options, offering students a firsthand look at how the skills they are learning in the classroom can be applied in the real world. Many of the professionals had direct connections to the Brentwood community, including parents, residents, business owners and first responders. During the event, students attended five 20-minute breakout sessions to explore different career fields that were represented. The event also included an exhibit hall, which allowed students to engage one-on-one with professionals and ask questions about postsecondary education and career opportunities.

“Seeing our students actively engage with professionals and envision themselves in these careers was inspiring,” said Anne Bosche, BMS school counselor. “We are so grateful to our volunteers for sharing their expertise and helping our students take their first steps toward building their future.”

Benefits of House Hunting in the Fall

By: West Community Credit Union

Spring and summer may be hot times for many real estate markets, but that doesn't mean things cool off entirely once fall rolls around. In fact, buying in the fall has its own advantages. So, if you're out there looking for a home this fall here are a few reasons why this could be a great time of year to make a move.

The Competition Isn't as Stiff

In most areas, there just aren't as many buyers in the fall as there are earlier in the year. That gives fall buyers a chance to do more negotiating with the sellers, who often want to be out of the house before winter sets in. Also, when there's less competition, you can take a little more time to think and really consider whether a particular home is right for you.

Sellers Are Motivated

During those prime summer months, sellers might have put a bigger price tag on their home than people were willing to pay. When the house doesn't sell at that price and the leaves are starting to turn, the sellers often become more willing to deal so they can move before the snow flies. Beyond the weather, sellers can be motivated for all kinds of reasons that have nothing to do with the time of year. Job offers, family events and other things can happen any time, including fall.

There's Less Commotion

In the summer months, everyone involved in the real estate business is just trying to stay afloat. Realtors, title companies, movers, inspectors – they all have more work than they can handle, which can make it tough to get appointments. But in the fall, things slow down a bit, which means it's easier to get responses and you can get more attention and advice than you might during height of buying season.

Great Sales on Home Goods

Fall is when furniture, appliances, flooring and other major items often go on sale as manufacturers prepare for the holidays and the rollout of next year's products. That means there's no better time than the fall to outfit your new house with everything you need to make it your home.

Ready to make your dream a reality this fall? Schedule a free consultation with the West Community Mortgage team today and we'll ensure the home buying process goes as smoothly as possible. For more information on customized mortgage solutions, contact Lisa Boaz with West Community Credit Union at 636.720.2495 or visit us online at westcommunitycu.org.

NOV 15-16
GEORGE CALEB BINGHAM
SYMPOSIUM
 HOSTED BY THE BINGHAM TRUST
 AT THE
 SAINT LOUIS ART MUSEUM
FREE AND OPEN TO ALL

Two-Day Symposium focuses on Missouri Artist and Politician George Caleb Bingham

The Bingham Trust will host a free two-day symposium on Friday, November 15 and Saturday, November 16 that explores Missouri artist George Caleb Bingham's life both as an artist and a politician. The symposium will include presentations by four speakers, including a political historian, art historians, and an art conservator, and will conclude with a panel discussion.

Notably, this event celebrates the 50th anniversary of former Missouri Governor Christopher S. "Kit" Bond's effort to mount a campaign to acquire 112 original Bingham drawings now owned by the People of Missouri. These drawings constitute the largest holding of Bingham's work, and have advanced understanding of his significant impact, both as an artist and politician, in the history of American art and culture.

The symposium, which is free and open to the public, will take place on Friday, November 15 from 2:00pm-4:00pm and continue Saturday, November 16 from 10:30am-4:30pm in The Farrell Auditorium at the Saint Louis Art Museum. No registration is required; those interested can attend one or both days.

Chaired by Andrew Walker, Executive Director of the Amon Carter Museum of American Art, Fort Worth, Texas, the symposium will also feature Claire Barry, Emeritus Director of Conservation, the Kimball Art Museum, Fort Worth, Texas; Amy Torbert, Andrew W. Mellon Foundation Associate Curator of American Art, Saint Louis Art Museum; Joan E. Stack, Curator of Art Collections, The State Historical Society of Missouri, Columbia, Missouri; and Charles E. Valier, Chairman, The Bingham Trust.

The Bingham Trust currently holds 113 original preparatory drawings by George Caleb Bingham and 12 related engravings after Bingham's paintings in trust for the People of Missouri who contributed to the fund that enabled their purchase. Today these artworks reside at the Saint Louis Art Museum, St. Louis, Missouri, and The Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art, Kansas City, Missouri.

NEW LINE THEATRE ARTISTIC DIRECTOR SCOTT MILLER CAN'T STOP WRITING ABOUT MUSICALS!

He has studied musicals his whole life, he's directed more than 100 musicals, he's written twelve musicals, and he's been writing books about musicals since 1994. And he's not stopping anytime soon...

As New Line Theatre continues its 33rd season of wild, unpredictable, adult musical theatre, artistic director Scott Miller celebrates the 30th anniversary of writing his first book about Broadway musicals, From Assassins to West Side Story.

Over the years, he has cranked out collections of deep-dive analysis, history books, humor and novelty books, song books, and more, as well as publishing the musicals he's written over the years.

"I feel like I've learned so much about musicals, working on so many of them over the last forty-plus years, collecting hundreds of cast albums, scripts, scores," says Miller. "And as I see myself passing through middle-age, I realize I want to share everything I've learned, and put it out there to help other people who just may be taking our art form forward in the years to come."

Another pet project of Miller's is out-of-print novels and plays that were the sources for famous musicals, finding and cleaning up the texts, and putting them back into print again at long last, for everybody to enjoy. He started with the 42nd Street trilogy of novels. Miller has also "re-published" the hilarious novel Oh! James! that was the source for No No Nanette. He's also put back in print the original 1925 No No Nanette script, which no one has seen in decades.

He's restored the original non-musical play The Fantasticks, as well as the play A Day Well Spent, which eventually led to Hello, Dolly! One of his favorite reprint projects was George M. Cohan's memoir Twenty Years on Broadway.

Miller has been directing and writing musicals since 1981, and he founded New Line Theatre in 1991. He writes the Bad Boy of Musical Theatre blog, and he hosts the periodic podcast Stage Grok.

He was honored in 2014 with a special St. Louis Theater Circle Award for his body of work with New Line. American Theatre magazine wrote about him, "Miller is, in his quietly ornery Midwestern way, advancing and reifying the American musical-theatre form as it has come kicking and screaming into the 21st century."

The Riverfront Times honored Miller as the best director in St. Louis, writing "Some directors strive to entertain, some seek to tell a coherent story. Very few directors believe it is their calling to channel the playwright's work as a shaman would summon spirits from the other world. Scott Miller falls into this last camp. Mining the fertile fields of the musical, Miller goes into the dark to bring back insights about character, mise en scène and authorial intention — and then presents them to audiences in a different darkened space. His productions are indeed entertaining and coherent, but they also tell us something about who we are as a culture right now. . . . What's most impressive is Miller's habit of pulling back the curtain on his process at his blog, The Bad Boy of Musical Theatre, where you can see him think through the show from the first rehearsal through tech nights, on to opening night and right through the final performance. Miller always has his mind on what each show is about and what it says, and how he can bring that message to the people. He lives and breathes musical theater, and every New Line production demonstrates the value in his dedication."

All of Miller's books will make excellent gifts for the musical theatre fans in your life.

About New Line Theatre

New Line Theatre is a professional company dedicated to involving the people of the St. Louis region in the exploration and creation of daring, provocative, socially and politically relevant works of musical theatre, offering an alternative to the commercial musical theatre of New York and Broadway tours. New Line was created in 1991 at the vanguard of a new wave of nonprofit musical theatre just starting to take hold across the country.

New Line has given birth to several world premiere musicals over the years and has brought back to life several shows that were not well served by their original New York productions.

Altogether, New Line has produced 98 musicals, and the company has been given its own entry in the Cambridge Guide to American Theatre and the annual Theater World.

New Line's 33rd season continues with The Rocky Horror Show, Rent, and the special event Broadway Noir. Single tickets are on sale now -- just click here.

New Line receives funding from the Missouri Arts Council, a state agency, and the Regional Arts Commission. For other information, visit New Line Theatre's full-service website at NewLineTheatre.com. All programs are subject to change.

South Dakota Solidarity

Going to South Dakota camping in the cold, helping a reservation, exploring fantastic sights, and almost dying a few times was not on my 2024 bingo card. I mean, you don't sit down and ponder "Hey, I have a strong urge to go to South Dakota!" Since some of my friends, and other kids through Wespine Study Center, were doing this trip, I thought "Why not?" Luckily, this was one of the best "Why not"s I had made in a while.

Our main mission there was service, and we completed that task by assisting a Native American reservation. Their mission consisted of making cheap, efficient houses, and this was needed heavily (the unemployment rate is 90%!) A lot of manual labor was done that week, whether using concrete to help construct dome-like homes, or just clearing out trash from their warehouse. Whatever we could do to help, we tried putting in maximum effort.

Now, moving away from the service side of things, I want to touch on the places we visited. Although Sioux Falls is delightful and Mt. Rushmore is quite the spectacle, they seemed almost insignificant compared to the extravaganza that was the Badlands. Everything about this barren wasteland enchanted us: the complete stillness, the echoes bouncing around canyons, and the jaw-dropping views. The radiant colors, the rocky cliffs, the raw, untouched beauty; the Badlands transformed into more than just a destination, but rather a profound and lasting impression on the soul.

There is nowhere enough room to even touch on the fantastic anecdotes of this trip, because I could probably write a full story on my adventures in South Dakota. As I sat in the back seat of a van driving the long distance there, I did not know what to expect from the trip. There were times of exhaustion, of setbacks, but the merits greatly outweighed any negative portions of the trip. From all the lessons I learned to the friends I made, my experience in South Dakota truly left a lasting impression on me

REVIEW SESSION
Visioning Session on the Brentwood Public Library Space

Mayor Dimmitt called for the meeting to discuss what to do with the vacated space (downstairs from City Hall) in the second quarter of 2026 when the library moves. There is 7,000 sq. ft. Navigate Building Solutions offered a cost to look at renovation of the space, but this option was tabled.

We know it is not feasible to renovate for Police and also very costly – so this workshop is a way to gather ideas.

Director Gummersheimer shared a Power Point presentation (available in BoardDocs) that examined the existing library space and potential uses. It noted the floorplan, current space features, pictures, and sizes of current departments and sq. footage.

Director Kelly shared a memo on zoning, noting this building is zoned PD (Planned Development Overlay District) and the parking lot is zoned Single Family Residential. The Permitted uses, conditional uses and parking restrictions were noted – and any renovations for restaurant or business use will take significant building modifications. (Bathrooms are not ADA compliant).

Mayor Dimmitt had shared information with Dr. Amy Zielinski (Superintendent of Brentwood Schools) asking if this space would serve any needs for the school district.

Dr. Zielinski shared some opportunities for partnership.

They have a joint program with Ladue and Clayton called the Catalyst program (which prepares students for post-secondary education) that is housed in Hanley Industrial right now. The space is exploding, and they are at maximum capacity. They are not done brainstorming ideas but would be interested and are intrigued by the space option. (Program is wanting to expand) Kids could walk. It was noted that this space is also more secure than current location that they are renting.

Alderman Gould inquired about the Parks Master plan and the possible need for space for parks staff.

Director Gruenenfelder stated that the Parks Master Plan will be presented on the 21st. They (the department) could use meeting space – large meeting rooms – as currently they cannot accommodate all requests.

They have also looked at several options for current office space – not sure yet.

Alderman Wegge noted that we only have about 15 years left on this building, so should not spend lots of money on renovations. He feels it should be used for citizens – a public benefit. He likes the school use or rental space for larger meetings/events.

Alderman Gould agreed – likes the public/community use space over the sue for city hall business. Feels the food service ideas should be taken off the table – not a good idea.

Could even be used during the day for students and in the evenings for event space.

Good options. Alderwoman Sims agreed as well.

Mayor noted there is plenty of time to decide. He agreed on no food service or moving council chambers.

Alderman Lochmoeller asked if we used space for community would there be any code changes. Director Kelly said probably, but we would need to talk to the building official. They may be minimal renovations.

It was asked if there was any consideration to move the Post Office?

The City Administrator stated this would require some extensive conversation. Useful life of building is not that long – a short term use is best. Next major debt is paid off in 19 years.

She noted that office space is short-term and that Finance, Planning and HR are all in spaces that need more room or better accommodations.

Alderwoman Harter asked about the Fire Bay/Garage area.

Director Gummersheimer stated that they have looked at that in the past – there is asbestos issues, pipe issues, no cooling, and big garage doors. Really not an option for renovation.

The Mayor noted there is no direction needed at this time – but stated that the shared use for school/event space is open for consideration.

It was asked how much the library pays us now for this space – approximately $500 plus utilities and a percentage of the building space.

The general consensus was to keep the open space, (no food service, no court or council chambers), prefer the shared use space, not spend too much money on the space, and that it is too early to hire Navigate to prepare any considerations.

NEW BUSINESS

Standing Water Problem - 2443 Mary Ave.

Alderman Gould shared that work is being done on Mary Ave. There is pooling water in front of the residence and in the street. He would like to address the problem and speed up the process for fixing this problem and save money while contractors are there. He noted that this project is #9 in the public priority list that was prepared by Gonzalez.

He stated that the area holds most of the water of the street and it gets icy in the winter. It should not cost $70,000 as suggested in earlier bid information. We just need to modify the slope to the NE side of street where there is an inlet. The minimal cost was suggested at $8200 and is a good way to save money in the long run.

Director Gummersheimer talked to the contractor today and they are pouring concrete today and will mill and overlay next week. They can put asphalt cap on concrete already poured at later date later if needed, or we can wait until scheduled in 2026. He is not sure how much pavement will be disturbed or what this fix will do. Changing the slope should help, but he is not sure how successful this will be. He might recommend Gonzalez and the larger drainage.

Alderwoman Tice wants to help but the problem with doing this now is we are not sure it will work, and the project was ranked #33 in overall project list. While we don’t know what MSD is doing in 2 years, she feels there is a better solution if we wait and work with MSD.

Alderman Lochmoeller stated there was no problem in 2017 – but the contractor who did construction on Manchester did not take anything into consideration. He thinks we should spend $8000 now and raise the height of that side of street while they are doing the mill and overlay. He thinks we can solve the problem and move water to the drainage area.

Alderman Wegge asked what assurances we have once MSD comes in?

Dan noted that HDR is doing the design drawings for MSD, but he is not sure how close they are yet on their final drawings.

Alderman Wegge stated that the vision was to work on things as they come up. While he is concerned that they (MSD) may take it out in a few years when they do their work, he thinks for now it is good and agreed with plan to move forward.

Alderman Gould stated that now is a good time to do this (raise the slope on the west side to drain to the east side of street) as it will cost much more in the future. It was confirmed from Dan that $8200 is the bid and they will invoice us later. (It is 110 feet in length and ½ the street width) It was noted that this is a good price.

Motion was made by Alderman Gould and seconded by Alderman Lochmoeller to approve staff to spend $8200 in fiscal year 2024 to do the mill and overlay on the 2443 area of Mary Ave.

Discussion: Alderwoman Tice asked where the money was coming from to do this project.

Director Gruenenfelder stated there are other options. but his recommendation is the stormwater parks fund where there is money for the design package, since we are not sure what that cost will be. Eric asked about following the purchasing policy – since we typically would get quotes – and the city attorney and finance director both agreed that this is being added on to work at the work site (like a change order) and is more of an emergency in nature to complete with work already being done.

The city attorney did note that since contractor is doing work for Mo American Water that we have all the prevailing wage requirement covered.

Roll Call:

Alderwoman Tice – No
 Alderman Wegge – Yes
 Alderwoman Sims – Yes
 Alderman Gould – Yes
 Alderman Lochmoeller – Yes
 Alderman Erger – Yes

Motion carried by a vote of 5 (Yes) to 1 (No).

Adjournment

The Mayor noted there was no further business and meeting adjourned at 3:21 PM

Rob Cerfolio Looking Forward to Challenge of Bringing Back “The Cardinal Way” to Team’s Farm System

Rob Cerfolio was in the same position as a lot of recent college graduates when he completed his undergraduate degree at Yale University.

Now what?

Through those college years, the plan had been for Cerfolio to go on to medical school. His father was a surgeon. His mother had been a nurse. His grandfather had been a surgeon.

“That was really kind of all I knew,” Cerfolio said.

A phone call from his college baseball coach, former Cardinal John Stuper, and randomly seeing a job listing online from the Cleveland Guardians changed the direction of Cerfolio’s career path.

“It was complete dumb luck,” Cerfolio said. “Stuper had reached out to me asking if I had ever thought about trying the front office side of things. He got me in contact with Mike Elias (who also had played for Stuper before going on to become the general manager of the Orioles).

“He gave me a little intel on what that looked like and I was like, ‘That could be interesting.’”

Cerfolio had completed the MCATs exam, and had applied to a couple of medical schools, when the job listing from the Guardians popped up on his computer.

“I just stumbled upon the Guardians job online,” Cerfolio said. “It was an organization I had heard really good things about, how they conduct their business, the type of people they have. For some reason they brought me in and kept bringing me back every year.”

When Cerfolio joined the Guardians as an intern in 2015, the plan was still to go to medical school. He was accepted by a couple of schools but was able to defer his start day while completing his internship.

A conversation with his father helped Cerfolio decide that he wanted to pursue a career in baseball instead of in the medical world.

“It was after my intern year and I was trying to use his advice and experience to figure out where I was going to go in this whole thing,” Cerfolio said. “During that conversation I remember him asking me, ‘How happy are you waking up every day and contributing toward what you are doing?’”

“I remember thinking about that question and being really energized about the kinds of things I was working on. At that point I was very much doing whatever it took to have an opportunity – getting people coffee, it didn’t matter to me. I wanted to show up and be a part of a team and compete. Those were the parts of the job that I love.”

Cerfolio turned down the medical school invitations and launched a career that a decade later brought him into the front office of the Cardinals, hired on Oct. 22 as the team’s assistant general manager in charge of player development and performance.

It’s been a quick rise for the 32-year-old Cerfolio, a journey that began when he was being recruited by Stuper and Yale from his home in Alabama.

“Playing the game the right way”

Having been a product of the Cardinals’ farm system, where he was tutored by George Kissell and Whitey Herzog among other legendary instructors and coaches, Stuper developed a passion for the game that led him to being hired as the coach at Yale in 1993.

“The Cardinal Way” meant something to Stuper during his playing career in the 1980s and it’s a philosophy that stayed with him throughout his three decades at Yale.

“I don’t know if I remember the very first time I heard him use that exact language but I know on my recruiting trip as a 16 or 17-year-old trying to figure out where I was going to go for four years to play baseball he talked about the winning culture that the Cardinals are and have always been,” Cerfolio said. “I just thought it was a really cool set of experiences that he had – a lot of what he ultimately tried to preach at the team level when I was playing for him.

“He was all about playing the game the right way; a bunch of guys there for the organization more than they were there just for the name on the back of the jersey.”

At the time, Cerfolio – a lefthanded pitcher – was thinking more about his own playing career than a possibility that his future might be working in a team’s front office. He was drafted by the Dodgers in the 33rd round in 2013 following his junior season but didn’t sign, then hurt his arm and didn’t pitch as a senior the following year.

“Rob was the kind of a guy who was a killer on the mound,” said Green Campbell, one of his teammates. “He was as intense of a competitor as I ever played with. You knew if it was game day and Cerf was on the mound we had a chance to win no matter who we were playing.

“He is the kind of guy who always rises to the occasions and I mean that sincerely. We could be playing the number one team in the country and if he was on the bump we had a chance to win, not because he threw the hardest or had the nastiest stuff but just because of how great a competitor he was.”

Campbell, and another teammate, Kevin Fortunato, who was one of Cerfolio’s roommates, also saw a skill developing in Cerfolio which they knew would make him successful in whatever career he decided to pursue.

“When he was pitching, if a ball was kicked around on the infield, he would be the first guy to say, ‘Let’s get the next one and I’ve got you,’” Fortunato said. “He was amazing at that. His mental side was always the most impressive aspect of his game.

“No one will ever say a bad thing about him ... He’s going to relate to everyone. He’s super smart. He can relate to the players and the front office, which makes him good at his job. He’s just a dynamite guy.”

Fortunato and Cerfolio remained close after college; Fortunato spoke at his wedding. The two often talk now about the challenges of parenthood, as well as their jobs.

“I work in finance and I met him in Philadelphia for a game this summer and I brought our largest investor to meet him because the guy loves baseball and wanted to meet Rob,” Fortunato said. “We talked a lot about the mental side of the game and the books he reads and what he implements.

“If you ever spent time with his dad you would get it right away. He’s big on mental fortitude and big on competing. It’s more important than the talent side of things.”

That was one of the traits of the Guardians which Stuper admired. Now retired and living in Florida, Stuper said watching the Guardians play reminded him of the Cardinals’ teams of his era.

“If you watch how the Guardians play, they do things like old school teams at times like hit and runs, squeeze plays,” Stuper said. “They don’t act like other teams act.”

Having been promoted over the years to become the director of player development, Cerfolio – Stuper knew – had a direct role in seeing that the game was taught that way to the players in the Guardian’s farm system.

He was happy for Cerfolio – and was even more excited one night a few weeks ago when he was at home and his phone received an incoming text message.

“A really good fit”

Cerfolio wanted to let Stuper know that he had been contacted by the Cardinals and Chaim Bloom, another Yale graduate, in their search to hire a new assistant general manager.

“I really see a lot of the Cardinals in the Guardians and that’s why I see Cerf as a really good fit,” Stuper said. “I think one of the reasons they are bringing him in is to kind of modernize the organization. I think he’s a really nice combination of kind of old-school with that modernization. I think the two can co-exist.

“I don’t think analytics should be the be-all and end-all but I think it should be a tool in your toolbox. I think that’s what Cerf will bring to the organization.

“I’m excited for him. Elias began as a Cardinals scout and I am in touch with him a lot. Now I’ve got another guy with the Birds on the Bat and I am really excited about that. I know he’s really good at his job and he’s an amazing guy.

“Rob is one of the best people who ever walked through the doors of my clubhouse.”

Despite the offer from the Cardinals, it was not an easy decision for Cerfolio to leave the Guardians. He liked his job, he liked the people he worked with, he liked the challenge of trying to build a team that could win the World Series.

“At least for me, any time you’ve been working on a project for 10 years; the amount of staff members I helped hire or recruit to what we were trying to accomplish there,” Cerfolio said. “It’s the people you build connections and relationships with that made it such a difficult decision, in a good way.

Cerfolio also spent time talking with Fortunato about the decision, and what it would mean to uproot his family – wife Jaime and young son Cooper – and move from their home in Cleveland to a new city.

“We talked a lot about it,” Fortunato said. “You put so much effort into something, and he had a great run. He was at the point now where he had developed all of the talent on field at the major-league level. He was really excited about what they had built and it was natural to want to see it through.

“But with the Cardinals, it goes back to the opportunity. This isn’t pick a club, a random program. It’s the Cardinals. He had just built a house. He has a young child. He met his wife out there. He had a lot of roots. But it just speaks to the opportunity.”

The excitement of the challenge

Ultimately, it was the excitement of the challenge that convinced Cerfolio to accept the Cardinals’ offer. Once the beacon of how an organization was supposed to be run, the Cardinals’ farm system had lost its way. Too many of the teachers and coaches had retired, or jobs were eliminated and didn’t return following the pandemic.

With the backing of ownership and Bloom, who will succeed John Mozeliak as the team’s president of baseball operations after next season, Cerfolio will get the chance to set the blueprint for the future of the organization.

His goal, in simple terms, is to help rebuild “The Cardinal Way.”

He will be relying heavily on the lessons he first learned at Yale from Stuper, the ones he worked to implement with the Guardians.

“Those years playing for Stuper were really informative,” Cerfolio said. “What I saw was the sense of unity as a team and really pushing yourself beyond your comfort level to try to get better as a player.

“I’m really proud of what we were able to accomplish (in Cleveland) although I wish we had played a little better the last week; some of the things we tried to instill in the culture at the team level and the best in class in how we were thinking about our development effort with what we put in front of players and how we were always trying to find the thing that was most unique to them to help them get to the big leagues and help us win.”

Cerfolio has spent his first weeks with the Cardinals trying to get an understanding of the organization, believing that knowing the way it has worked in the past can only help as he forms his ideas and plans for the future.

The immediate task is to hire a farm director and a team director of performance, positions that will report directly to him. The next order of business will be to fill out the minor-league staff with coordinators, instructors, managers and coaches, as well as identifying the necessary technology upgrades.

“I want to know what the people here think is working well and where are the areas for opportunities moving forward,” Cerfolio said. “I think it’s really hard to do all of that overnight. I want to have a good understanding of where things are today and how I can use my experiences from Cleveland. What are the things we need to do to build great athletes and great players who hopefully will reach the majors and help us win.”

One of the reasons Stuper is excited to have one of his players in charge of that work for the Cardinals is that he sees Cerfolio as the perfect person to blend the old-school and new-school approach.

“I’d like to think so,” Cerfolio said. “There are certainly things I believe in in both buckets. I think you have to pull those two elements together and bring in staff that have those values. Ultimately you are trying to build a team that wants to learn and grow – helping create a room full of people that want to learn from each other and service the player. That’s ultimately why we are here.

“I think that’s really the fun part of the job – to get the right people who think along the same lines.”

TURKEY WEIGHT	SERVINGS	COOKING TIME

How to Cook a Turkey in 5 Easy Steps

- 1. Prep:
Remove the packet of giblets from the cavity of the bird and save them for gravy or stuffing. Next, use paper towels to pat dry the bird inside and out.
- 2. Truss & Brush:
Tie drumsticks together with string, and brush the skin with melted butter or oil.
- 3. Roast:
Place the turkey on a rack in a roasting pan, and into a preheated 350 degrees F (175 degrees C) oven and follow the cooking times above based on the weight of your bird.
- 4. Tent & Baste:
Roast until the skin is a light golden color, then cover the breast loosely with a foil tent to prevent further browning. During the last 45 minutes of roasting, remove the foil tent to brown the skin. Basting is not necessary, but does help promote even browning.
- 5. Rest, Then Carve:
When the turkey is done, remove from the oven and allow to rest for 30 minutes before carving. This allows the juices to redistribute throughout the meat, and makes for easier carving.

Important Notes:

- Turkey is done at an internal temperature of 165 degrees F (75 degrees C).
- Allow the turkey to rest for at least 30 minutes before carving and serving.
- Using an oven thermometer and a meat thermometer to get accurate temperature readings is recommended.

How Much Turkey to Buy

The general rule is 1 to 1 1/2 pounds of turkey per person, depending on how much you love leftovers! If you're not going to make turkey soup or sandwiches, 1 pound per person is all you will need. If you look forward to leftovers almost as much as the main event, definitely go for 1 1/2 pounds per person.

How to Thaw Turkey

Keep in mind a whole turkey can take several days to thaw and the above cooking times are for a completely defrosted bird. In general, after placing the turkey in the refrigerator you need 24 hours of thawing time for every 5 pounds of turkey

How Long to Cook a Stuffed Turkey

A stuffed turkey takes longer to cook than an unstuffed turkey. Roast a stuffed turkey for 15 minutes per pound at 350 degrees F (175 degrees C). It is important to check the temperature of the stuffing; it should be 165 degrees F (75 degrees C) when you insert the thermometer into the center of the stuffing. Neglecting to check the temperature of your stuffing could lead to foodborne illness.

An Out-Of-This-World Diner

Just 38 miles north of St. Louis is a very unique dining experience. A quick drive up I-55/ Route 66 to Livingston, Illinois brings you to the Pink Elephant Antique Mall (see Sue McCarthy's travel article in this addition of the Pulse). The mall is also home to the Mother Road fudge Factory and Candy Shop, and the Twisty Treats Diner.

The fudge Factory is a 1950's themed candy store that sells homemade fudge, roasted nuts, vintage candies, salt water taffy, chocolates and Rt-66 souvenirs. I am working on losing some weight, so I resisted the temptation to sample their wares. If you have a sweet tooth, this has everything you need to satisfy your cravings.

My cravings demanded I enjoy the offerings of the Twisty Treats Diner. The diner takes its name from a giant two-story soft ice cream cone at the front of the building. You may enter the diner from the antique mall or the parking lot.

The diner also has a 1950's themed decor with hot pink and pale blue colors, and lots of chrome. You will also find statues of Elvis and the Blues Brothers as well as a bench made from the trunk of a 1957 Chevy. A cool jukebox, musical items and a life-size picture of the world's tallest man, Robert Wadlow of Alton, Illinois (he was 8'11" tall), tops off the retro design.

The diner serves both lunch and dinner with lots of comfort food specialties. As well as soft serve and hand scooped ice cream. Sue had a burger and it was a perfect example of what a burger used to be. Crispy, juicy and served on a butter toasted bun. We split an order of fried cheese curds served with ranch dressing, YUM.

They also offer a central Illinois favorite usually associated with the city of Springfield, a Horseshoe sandwich. A Horseshoe sandwich is a platter with two pieces of toast topped with a protein; two burger patties, chicken, ham, roast beef, shrimp etc. This is then piled high with French Fries and drenched in a melted cheese sauce. This is a true piece of Americana! A Pony Shoe is the same thing with only one piece of toast, protein, fries and sauce. I ordered a pony shoe and it was a bit different than I expected as it was served in a bowl rather than on a plate. It had the same great taste, but it was a bit more difficult to get a bite of everything at the same time. I would still recommend it if you are really hungry.

As we ate our lunch we saw a number of incredible ice cream items being served to other customers so we decided to try one ourselves. We split an Elephant Boat. It is a chocolate brownie, covered with ice cream, hot fudge, marshmallow sauce, chocolate sauce, whipped cream and chopped nuts. WOW! You must save room for this.

Later in the day you will probably see families in line outside waiting to order ice cream items from the walk-up window. This is a true family destination. You will love the nostalgia, and it is a great way to explain to the kids how it was "back in the day".

Diner hours are 11:00 AM - 7:00 PM (Grill closes at 6:50PM); Candy Shop 9:30 AM - 5:00 PM . Saturday: Diner 11:00 AM - 8:00 PM (Grill closes at 7:30PM); Candy Shop 9:30 AM - 5:00 PM

Be sure to get a picture of the huge pink elephant and the flying saucer home while you are there.

New Coffee Table Art Book Showcases the Window Display Art of Linda Edwards at Blueberry Hill

A new full-color coffee table book comes out at the end of November, showcasing 38 years of beloved corner window displays by Linda Edwards at Blueberry Hill Restaurant & Music Club.

Linda opened Blueberry Hill in 1972 with Joe Edwards and in 1986 began staging her visually striking displays with innovative live performances in the corner space of the building with expansive windows facing onto the street on two sides.

The one-of-a-kind creative displays range from holiday tours de force like Trimming Santa's Tree, Easter Bunny's Kitchen, and Irish Bachelor on St. Patrick's Day to off-the-wall concepts like Rosemary's Baby Shower and The Terrifying Dentist's Chair on Halloween.

Linda's corner window displays and live shows electrify passersby in the Delmar Loop arts and entertainment district. Her window is a powerhouse of drama, wit, humor, and style. She has used her public art space to stage over 200 visually-dazzling display windows that pack a ground-breaking creative punch, by turns stunningly elegant and drop-dead hilarious.

This book details her oeuvre with beautiful full-color photographs and a fun, succinct one-paragraph analysis of each show window. The high-quality art coffee table book will cost only $25 for one, $40 for two and will be available for purchase at Blueberry Hill beginning mid-November and on Blueberry Hill's website now.

Book Signing Event Inside the Famous Window on November 30

There will be a book-signing event inside Linda's famous window at Blueberry Hill with Linda Edwards and her daughter Hope Edwards, who wrote and designed the book, on the Saturday after Thanksgiving (Small Business Saturday on November 30) from 1 pm to 4 pm. It's a fabulous affordable gift for the holidays.

Elevate Your Holiday Dishes with Heavy Whipping Cream

As the holiday season approaches, kitchens across the country will be buzzing with activity and filled with festive meals and delicious treats. One ingredient that consistently plays a starring role in holiday cooking is heavy whipping cream. Whether you're blending velvety sauces, creating fluffy toppings, or crafting rich desserts, heavy whipping cream is a versatile and essential ingredient that brings a touch of indulgence to any dish.

The Magic Behind Heavy Whipping Cream

Heavy whipping cream is a dairy product known for its luxurious texture and rich flavor. "The secret lies in its high fat content — typically around 36 to 40 percent — which gives it the ability to thicken and whip into soft peaks," said Maggie Cimarolli, a nutrition educator with the St. Louis District Dairy Council. This makes it perfect for everything, from adding body to soups and sauces to putting the finishing touch — or dollop — on holiday pies.

How It's Made

Heavy whipping cream begins with fresh milk sourced from local dairy farms. The milk is separated in a centrifuge, a process that divides the cream from the milk. The cream that rises to the top is collected and then pasteurized to ensure safety and extend its shelf life. "The result is a liquid that is rich in butterfat—the key ingredient that allows heavy whipping cream to achieve its smooth consistency," Cimarolli said.

Elevate Your Holiday Cooking

During the holiday season, heavy whipping cream can bring a variety of dishes to new heights. Here are easy ways to incorporate this ingredient into festive cooking plans:

- Whipped Toppings: Nothing complements a slice of pie or a cup of hot cocoa like a generous dollop of freshly whipped cream. Simply whip heavy cream with a touch of sugar and vanilla until soft peaks form for a decadent topping that is sure to impress.

- Rich Sauces: Use heavy whipping cream as the base in sauces to drizzle over pasta, meats, or vegetables. Its creamy richness adds depth and flavor, making even the simplest dishes seem luxurious.

- Decadent Desserts: From cheesecakes to rich chocolate ganache, heavy whipping cream is a key ingredient in many holiday desserts. The ability to hold its shape when whipped makes it ideal for fillings and frostings.

- Soups and Sides: Adding heavy whipping cream to soups, mashed potatoes, or casseroles can enhance their creaminess and create a comforting, satisfying dish perfect for any holiday spread.

As you prepare for the upcoming holidays, make sure heavy whipping cream is a staple in the kitchen. Its versatility and richness make it an indispensable ingredient that can elevate both sweet and savory dishes. From the first course to the last bite of dessert, heavy whipping cream is sure to add a touch of indulgence to holiday celebrations.

For more information about heavy whipping cream and other dairy foods, visit www.stldairycouncil.org or contact Maggie Cimarolli at 314-835-9668 or mcimarolli@stldairycouncil.org. ## Homemade Whipped Cream

Elevate your holiday desserts with this simple and delicious homemade whipped cream recipe, using rich and versatile heavy whipping cream. Perfect for topping pies, hot cocoa, or any sweet treat, this whipped cream is a must-have for your festive celebrations.

Ingredients:

- 1 cup heavy whipping cream
- 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Instructions:

1. Place your mixing bowl and whisk or beaters in the refrigerator for about 10-15 minutes. This helps the cream whip faster and gives it a better texture.
2. Pour the heavy whipping cream into the chilled bowl. Add the sugar and vanilla extract.
3. Using a hand mixer or a stand mixer, beat the cream on medium speed until it begins to thicken. Then increase the speed to high and continue whipping until soft peaks form. This means the cream should hold its shape when the beaters are lifted but still be soft enough to gently fall back into place.
4. Be careful not to over-whip, as the cream can turn into butter. You're looking for a smooth, airy texture that's perfect for spooning or piping onto your favorite desserts.
5. Serve your homemade whipped cream right away or store it in the refrigerator for up to 24 hours. If storing, give it a quick whisk before serving to restore its fluffy texture.

PICTORIAL ST. LOUIS: The Great Metropolis of the Mississippi Valley A Topographical Survey, Drawn From Perspective 1875.
Illustrations by Camille N. Dry and designed & edited by Rich. J. Compton.

Over 220 pages of illustrations and descriptions of life in St. Louis in the late 1800's. The preliminary drawings for this work were made early in the spring of 1874. After a careful consideration of the subject, it was determined to locate the point of view so that the city would be seen from the southeast, believing that to be the most advantageous in all respects. Accordingly, the point of site was established on the Illinois side of the river, looking to the northwest, and at sufficient altitude to overlook the roofs of ordinary houses into the streets.

A careful perspective, which required a surface of three hundred square feet, was then erected from a correct survey of the city, extending northward from Arsenal Island to the Water Works, a distance of about ten miles, on the river front; and from the Insane Asylum on the southwest to the Cemeteries on the northwest.

Every foot of the vast territory within these limits has been carefully examined and topographically drawn in perspective, by Mr. C. N. Dry and his assistants, and the faithfulness and accuracy with which this work has been done an examination of the pages will attest. Absolute truth and accuracy in the representation of the territory has been the standard and in no cases have additions or alterations been made unless the same were actually in course of construction. In a few cases, important public and private edifices that are not yet finished are shown completed, and as they will appear when done.

All the buildings within the limits of the survey in July, 1875, are shown; and a very large number of those executed or commenced since that date have been also introduced, the pages having been constantly corrected up to the last possible moment before publication.

This book is available from Gene-Del Printing for $75.00. Please call Keith at 314.962.4750 or email him at keith@genedel.com. You may also stop by our office at 9019 Manchester, 63144 in Brentwood to view the book.

2024 Girls in Aviation Day Encourages Young Women to Explore Aviation and Aerospace Careers

Approximately 130 young women from 18 St. Louis area high schools and organizations recently gathered at St. Louis Downtown Airport for the 2024 Girls in Aviation Day event, where they had the unique opportunity to learn about the aviation industry and related career fields. The event, which was held on Oct. 28, is hosted annually by St. Louis University's Oliver L. Parks Department of Aviation Science, in partnership with Women in Aviation International. The goal of Girls in Aviation Day is to educate girls and young women about the aviation industry and encourage them to pursue careers in aviation and aerospace, with the aim of increasing the number of women working in the aviation industry.

"SLU's annual Girls in Aviation event is really a great way to get females from around the St. Louis area introduced to the aviation world," said Michelle Scheipeter, Aviation Operations Manager at SLU's Center for Aviation Science. "There are so many different aspects of aviation, including jobs that range beyond flight attendants and pilots, that the students get to experience. It's pretty exciting."

The event featured interactive, hands-on activities, including the opportunity for attendees to experience the thrill of flying in high-tech flight simulators.

"Aviation wasn't really on my spectrum, but doing the simulation seemed really interesting," said Nael Yeye, a senior from Parkway North High School. "I haven't had that much exposure to too many fields, but events like this help me think more about if I want to do this instead."

Flight instructors were also on hand with various aircraft used by St. Louis University's certified flight instructors for pilot training, and students had the opportunity to climb into each plane, check out the cockpit and learn basic flight controls. One aircraft on hand that isn't typically at SLU's hangar was a LearJet, flown in by Major Alicia Canetta of the United States Air Force. She is also a former SLU student.

"It's been 15 years since I started in the flight program here at SLU, so being able to bring in my airplane back to where it all started definitely means a lot," Canetta said.

Sophia Polito, a freshman at Nerinx Hall who is interested in pursuing a career as a pilot, was impressed by what she was able to experience at this year's event. "Not only did we interact with planes provided by the Air Force and SLU's Aviation program, but we also learned how to enter the aviation industry and the opportunities it offers," she said. "Everything about this event encourages us to become pilots too."

"Connecting with female leaders in aviation and learning about all the opportunities available within the aviation field helped encourage young women attending the event to see themselves as leaders in aviation," said Allie Ivory, a junior at Nerinx Hall, who is interested in pursuing a mechanical engineering career in the aviation industry. "As women, we can do this. It's not just a man's workplace. It's so good to be here and see representation from women thriving in the aviation field."

A panel discussion was held during the event, featuring four female Flight Science majors at SLU. Breanna Booth, Jocelyn Ciotti, Elizabeth (Libby) Sehnert and Sarah Jelliss shared stories about how they became interested in aviation and provided insight about their individual career goals and the steps they are taking to pursue careers in aviation.

To learn more about Girls in Aviation Day or opportunities to participate in future events, contact Michelle Scheipeter at Saint Louis University's Oliver L. Parks Department of Aviation Science via email at sseoutreach@slu.edu.

which aims to raise awareness and funds for endangered species and threatened ecosystems.

This fall, Butler's piece will be showcased alongside the work of notable artists at exhibition events in Edinburgh and London. These exhibitions celebrate the power of art to highlight the urgency of conservation, making it a unique honor for Butler and the Brentwood community.

"Lizzy has a knack for creating art that is both exceptionally rendered and very aesthetically pleasing," said Tim Rempel, BHS art teacher. "Her work not only reflects her technical skills but also her passion for creating meaningful art that speaks to global issues."

Since its founding eight years ago, the Sketch for Survival initiative has raised half a million dollars for conservation projects across 30 countries. This year's competition drew participation from 94 nationalities, with 69 schools from 19 countries contributing to the junior category.

"We're incredibly proud of Lizzy for representing our school and community on such a significant platform," added Rempel. "Having her work included in an exhibition that supports conservation efforts worldwide is a remarkable achievement, and we're excited to see how far her talent will take her."

School Leaders, First Responders Join Forces for Safety Exercise

Brentwood School District administrators recently participated in a school safety tabletop exercise led by the Brentwood police and fire departments.

A school safety tabletop exercise is a low-stress simulation that guides participants through an emergency scenario, detailing the actions school leaders and first responders would need to take before, during and after an incident.

The exercise evaluated and strengthened safety and security measures across all five Brentwood school campuses, providing valuable recommendations for protecting students and staff. It also reinforced the roles and responsibilities of district administrators and first responders, ensuring they are prepared to collaborate effectively in any emergency.

"Our partnership with local first responders is crucial in creating a safe learning environment for our students and staff," said Dr. Amy Zielinski, superintendent of schools. "By regularly reviewing and refining our safety protocols, we strengthen our ability to respond effectively to any situation that may arise."

Moving forward, district administrators and first responders will conduct regular tabletop exercises to continuously review safety protocols and support ongoing staff training throughout the school year.

105.7 THE POINT PRESENTS THE URGE

St. Louis-based ska-punk-alt-rock outfit, The Urge, announces the support acts for their annual concert at The Pageant.

David Grelle's Playadors and The Breakdowns will each take the stage on Friday, November 29 before The Urge performs. Show time is 7:30 p.m. Tickets start at $39.99 and are available at Ticketmaster.com. This year, a portion of the ticket sales will benefit Ronald McDonald House Charities of St. Louis.

The Urge was formed in 1987 by vocalist Steve Ewing and bassist Karl Grable, with the current lineup of Matt Kwiatkowski, Bill Reiter, John Pessoni, and Jerry Jost solidifying in the early 1990s. After independently recording and releasing four albums - "Bust Me Dat Forty" (1987), "Puttin' the Backbone Back" (1990), "Magically Delicious" (1992), and the live "Fat Babies in the Mix" (1993) - the band's raucous live reputation, as well as radio airplay, brought them to the attention of Immortal Records, who released their 1995 cult-classic, "Receiving the Gift of Flavor."

THE PINK ELEPHANT ANTIQUE MALL

By Sue McCarthy

We frequently drive north on I-55 (Rt. 66) on the way to visit family in Heyworth, IL.

Many times we have said, "We need to stop at that interesting antique mall in Livingston." It isn't hard to miss since there is a giant pink elephant and flying saucer near the highway. We decided this time to make it a point to actually stop in for lunch (see husband Kevin McCarthy's article) and tour inside. I usually write about destinations, but in this case this is a destination you don't want to pass by.

The 30,000 square foot mall, owned by Tonia and Wayne Pickerill, has been located in Livingston since 2005. Guests have come from all over the world. Be sure to get your photo taken with the fiberglass giants, the giant pink elephant and the Futuro Spaceship house.

The UFO Futuro House was conceived by a Finnish architect, Matti Suuronen, to be used as a ski chalet. The house was built out of fiberglass reinforced plastic. The retractable entry staircase added to the spaceship look. The Futuro House had an electric heating system to heat the house from -20 degrees Fahrenheit to 60 degrees in 30 minutes. The owners are considering turning it into an Air Bnb.

There are other fiberglass figures that include a green alien, a Big Boy statue, a green dinosaur from Sinclair Oil, a Harley Davidson Muffler Man. There is also a giant tricycle. This year a giant Donald Trump was added. Of course since the mall is located on Route 66 you will find a lot of collectible memorabilia for Route 66.
