Horn Fam 🤘🏈

That was a tough loss to a team we played closely during the summer. Our biggest issue right now is effort. Being in position but standing flat-footed and reaching for flags is not going to get it done. We have to move our feet, pursue, and finish.

When I learned who we were playing, my concern was the deep ball—not getting beaten by sweeps and check downs. Offensively, we spent time during the bye working on a play that we failed to execute in the game.

Thursday's practice will focus on pursuit, flag pulling, and moving our feet so teams cannot literally run circles around us.

I can stomach the Clemson loss—it was our first time seeing that type of aerial attack. I loved the fight we showed coming back to tie the Wolverines. But the plays where we lack effort are no longer isolated moments. They are becoming a pattern, and we need to address it together.

Back to the lab. See you Thursday at 5:00 PM at Veterans Sports Park.

We will most likely face a middle-of-the-pack team in the first round of the playoffs. My guess is that one or two teams at the top will be promoted, but that is not confirmed. Whoever we face, our effort and execution need to improve.

Heads up, Horns up, Hook 'Em! 🤘🏈
