Roosevelt Patterson Jr. is a native of Prichard, AL. He is a graduate of Vigor High School where his team won a state championship and a national championship his senior year. These championships opened the door for many college offers. He accepted a full ride scholarship to the University of Alabama (UA) under Coach Bill Curry. During his junior year at UA, his team won a national championship under Coach Gene Stallings. It was after this game that Sports Illustrated took the iconic photo of him carrying a meat pole. Roosevelt was blessed with many great opportunities to play football at every level including the National Football League (NFL) Canadian League (CFL) and the North American Football League.
