

SPIRITS/TASTES

San Diego

A Fine Day of Sunshine, Spirits and Tasty Treats

By Josh Kushner.

From the sun drenched beaches to the modern and sleek downtown area, bespoke wine & craft beer bars to renowned Mexican cuisine, San Diego is a city that offers many different experiences all attainable within the span of a day. I have spent plenty of time in San Diego, especially enjoying the wonderful cuisine the city has to offer but I have never experienced anything quite like my last visit there.

The city has seemingly exploded with many new dining options that make it an absolute must to visit, especially if you're in the LA area and craving some different scenery.

We ended our night at the well received Mongolian Hotpot in the Clairemont section of SD.

While the atmosphere was unsuspecting, the food certainly wasn't. We ordered a number of things but the stand out items were the Wagyu Brisket and the Pork Belly.

If you're looking for an easy getaway from LA and are craving some seriously delicious eats, awesome weather and just a different vibe then definitely make your way down to San Diego soon!
