Brandon Wallis, producer, composer, and CEO of Gothic Sasquatch, releases his latest single, 'Dream Kush,' on August 2, 2024

Jul. 23, 2024 (NASHVILLE) — Brandon Wallis, producer, composer, and CEO of Gothic Sasquatch, releases his latest single, “Dream Kush,” on August 2, 2024. This bass-laden track features dubstep dance elements, a deviation from Gothic Sasquatch’s two recent melodic house singles “Rainbow Bridge” and “Dream Dance 46.” Following a two-year pilgrimage to Denver, “Dream Kush” is Gothic Sasquatch’s 7th Nashville-based release, and the first single for fans after July’s alt rock track “That Divine Beat.”

After seeking composition and sound design instruction from Will Darling in 2023, as well attending a Veterans Affairs-sponsored workshop hosted by award-winning country music artist and songwriter Lance Carpenter, Brandon is excited to move forward in the music business and showcase his own stories.

“I recently collaborated with autism advocates Max and Jake Tilk, brothers featured in the new television series “Traveling the Spectrum,” he said. “Being neurodivergent, I often rely on my own journey and struggles as inspiration for my compositions. Finding a means to give voice to others has also been healing.”
