Overview

A home inventory list is a comprehensive list that records all your possessions, personal belongings, and valuable items. It is a vital tool for you to create and uphold. It will help facilitate potential insurance claims, estate planning, safeguarding your prized possessions, and overall organization for an efficient household. It also helps with decluttering, downsizing, and tracking those valuable assets. Maintaining a well-organized list can save time, money, and reduce stress during unforeseen events such as fires, theft, natural disasters, and death.

Compiling this list will require time and effort. Once completed, you will have a priceless resource that provides peace of mind and reduces stress for you and your loved ones during difficult times. In the event of a just-in-case scenario, you'll be prepared, already having a clear record and value of all your possessions.

Your primary focus will be your main home, but don't forget to include the items in other structures on your property or in storage elsewhere. This includes your primary residence, attic, basement, garage, shed, barn, storage units, secondary residence, and any other properties you own or rent. If you own multiple properties, it's a best practice to create and maintain a Home Inventory List for each location.

What's Inside:

- ✓ Location of each item, including a description, with make, model, and serial numbers (if applicable) and the quantity.
- ✓ Purchase date and price, along with estimated current market value.
- ✓ Space for any additional notes if more information is needed for an item.
- ✓ Space for both individuals and couples' belongings.
- ✓ Tracking of Annual Review and Total Overall Value of your inventory.

Before you begin, take a few moments to carefully review this entire Home Inventory List to become familiar with how the charts are arranged and how items are categorized by room or location. (4 Additional Item pages at the end)

Best Practice Tips

Take photographs or videos of specific items or an entire room, inside cabinets, jewelry drawers, closets, garage, etc. It's a good idea to visually document your objects to show their current condition. If you record a video, verbally describe the items in detail as you are recording. State your location and the date, read serial numbers, and describe expensive items, providing as much detail as possible.

Include the manufacturer's name, model, and serial number within your item descriptions. This helps streamline the insurance claim process, provides proof of ownership, and ensures accurate valuation.

Keep receipts and document their values, as this will be helpful for insurance claims in case of damage, theft, fire, natural disaster, loss, or other unforeseen events. It also provides a clear record, aiding in financial planning, estate management, and tax purposes, as they serve as proof of value.

Obtain an appraisal for high-priced valuable items, such as fine art, jewelry, antiques, firearms, furs, coin collections, instruments, etc. Keep your appraisals in a safe and secure location.

Store your home inventory list, photographs, and videos in a protected, safe place. A few suggestions are a fireproof/waterproof safe, a safety deposit box, emailing it to yourself, a family member, a qualified professional, or your insurance agent, or digitally in cloud storage.

Update your home inventory list when you acquire new items or get rid of things, especially if you purchase a new appliance, electronic, or furniture.

Make sure you have adequate insurance coverage. After creating your Home Inventory List and calculating the total overall value, reviewing all your insurance policies is a good idea to ensure that you have suitable coverage. If you believe your insurance coverage is inadequate or excessive, please contact an insurance professional to review your coverage options.

Just In Case!

Ask Yourself,

- ✓ Have you taken all the photographs and/or videos needed?
- ✓ Have you gathered all your appraisals and/or receipts?
- ✓ Have you chosen a safe and secure location to store this Home Inventory List and all your supporting documents?
- ✓ Have you added your Annual Review Date to your calendar?

LAST BUT NOT LEAST! PLEASE have a discussion with your loved one or designated responsible person. In the unfortunate scenario of an accident, illness, or death, it is important to inform someone that you have completed this valuable resource and to let them know where it will be located. Doing so will help them cope better during difficult times.
