President's Message

Written by: Danny Lucero

It is with deep gratitude and humility that I accept the nomination to serve as President of ODFL (Ohio Deaf Friends of the Library). This organization has always stood as a beacon of access, culture, and community—and I am honored to continue that legacy. I recognize the weight of this responsibility, yet I step into it with confidence, knowing that together—with our dedicated officers, committed board, and passionate supporters—we are capable of remarkable accomplishments.

As we look toward the years 2026–2028, I am inspired by the possibilities ahead. My vision for ODFL is bold, hopeful, and focused on securing our future so that generations to come can experience the power of ASL Storytelling in their libraries, homes, and communities.

As President, I am committed to:

- * Establishing a strong fiscal foundation with a dedicated $500.00 storytelling budget to support our artists and program needs.
- * Forging statewide collaborations with libraries across Ohio so our ASL Storytelling programs can reach more children and families.
- * Building an ODFL Storytelling Collection Library, preserving our stories and creating a legacy of Deaf cultural richness.
- * Developing an ODFL home-based office that strengthens our communication, identity, and operational structure.
- * Positioning ODFL as a national model is a shining example for libraries across America seeking to celebrate Deaf culture through storytelling.

But our vision does not end here. I believe that ODFL's greatest strength lies in our collective voice. Your ideas, your experience, and your passion are essential as we shape the future. I welcome your thoughts, your suggestions, and your dreams for what ODFL can become.

Together, we can build something extraordinary—an organization that not only serves today's communities but inspires future generations of Deaf storytellers, families, and leaders.

Thank you for your trust. I look forward to serving with an open heart, a clear purpose, and a shared commitment to the mission before us. Happy New Year.

With respect and inspiration,

Former Ohio Deaf Friends of the Library (ODFL) advisor, Beverly Cain, the State Librarian of Ohio, passed away on November 18, 2025, following a recent medical emergency. She served for the ODFL for three years from 2016 to 2020. # Helen Keller National Center: Walters - Smith Legacy Atrium Ribbon Cutting Ceremony

Written by: Juanita Hall, Co-Editor

There was an exciting event that occurred on November 17th, 2025, from 6:00 pm to 8:00 pm at the Helen Keller National Center (HKNC) with the unveiling ceremony of the Walter-Smithdas Legacy Atrium! Art Roehrig, accompanied by Dawn Watts, was invited to this ceremony. This event honors the extraordinary bond between Barbara Walters and Dr. Robert J. Smithdas, whose lives and friendship shaped the future of accessibility (Helen Keller Services, 2025a).

Barbara Walters is a household name, a trailblazing broadcast journalist who has interviewed global leaders such as Margaret Thatcher, Indira Gandhi; celebrities such as Barbra Streisand, Michael Jackson, Audrey Hepburn, Tom Cruise, and Eddie Murphy, and public figures such as Christopher Reeve, Martha Stewart, and Hillary Clinton (Google, 2025a).

Dr. Robert J. Smithdas is a well-known visionary DeafBlind educator and advocate. He made history by becoming the first DeafBlind person in the United States to earn a master's degree and doctorate. Dr. Smithdas served as the HKNC's Director of Community Education when the Center was established in 1967. He was a passionate advocate for the DeafBlind for 65 years until he retired in 2009. He transformed services for DeafBlind individuals, such as influencing national policy and setting new education and rehabilitation standards (Helen Keller Services, 2025b).

What makes this tribute even more remarkable is the extraordinary friendship between Walters and Smithdas—a bond rooted in mutual respect and a shared commitment to breaking down barriers. Robert and Barbara's friendship started when she interviewed him on the Today Show in 1967, where they discussed his advocacy for the DeafBlind Americans. Dr. Smithdas impacted her strongly as she said this interview was the most memorable of her entire career. He changed her understanding of communication. They developed a long-term friendship (Helen Keller Services, 2025b).

The Walters' estate contributed $1 million to the Helen Keller Services to advance their work with the blind, DeafBlind, and low vision individuals to thrive in life. Their collaboration and advocacy efforts inspired generations that continue today (Helen Services, 2025b).

The Walters-Smithdas Legacy Atrium is more than a commemorative space; it is a model of accessible design, incorporating cutting-edge features to ensure full inclusion for individuals who are DeafBlind. From tactile signage and high-contrast visual elements to advanced assistive technology, the atrium sets a new benchmark for universal design in public spaces (Helen Services, 2025b).

ASL Story Time Storytellers in the Public Libraries

Written by: Dawn K Watts, The Deaf Reader Chairperson & Slideshow created by Juanita Hall, Co-Editor

A few months ago, the ODFL Library Advisory, led by Ms. Levine from Cleveland Heights Public Library, collaborated with Danny L. on a grant from the Federal Institute of Museum and Library Services and Technology Act (LSTA) by the State Library of Ohio for the ASL Storyteller project. Additionally, Advocate for Kids partnered with us on this initiative. We were awarded a $10,000 grant to support the program.

Initially, we launched the project at three public libraries, providing three Deaf ASL Storytellers and interpreters for a three-month period. The response was overwhelming, with many attendees, including children, expressing enthusiasm and interest in having more ASL Storyteller programming in the future.

There were three story times, one in Coventry Village Public Library, Cleveland Heights by Liliana Pokorny, Dayton Public Library by Danny Lucero, and Westerville Public Library, by Christine Stepien.

Enjoy watching the recent ASL Story Time slideshow: <https://youtu.be/OE0DqoB6Fuo>

In the future, the ODFL President Danny and Dawn Watts are very passionate about ASL Storyteller, we strongly believe that Deaf individuals as ASL Storytellers need to work in the Public Library. Danny and Dawn had a meeting with Canton Public Library for ASL Storyteller. We have our new ODFL Representative, Alma Sepulveda. We are looking forward to increasing the number of ASL Storytellers for the public libraries. Also, we will meet with a new ODFL Advisor at the Dayton Public Library on Jan 23, 2026.

If you are interested to be ASL Storyteller, please contact Dawn Watts at dawnwatts7@gmail.com.

Gallaudet University Chapel Hall Honoring Indigenous Awareness Month

Written by: Dawn K Watts, The Deaf Reader Chairperson

November is Indigenous Awareness Month, and we invite you to revisit and celebrate the powerful exhibition We, Native Deaf People, Are Still Here! at the National Deaf Life Museum. While this month offers a moment of reflection and recognition, Indigenous stories and artistry deserve to be celebrated every day.

It's hard to believe it's been one year since this groundbreaking exhibition first opened its doors. Building, installing, and curating such a monumental display was no small feat — and it took a remarkable team of community curators, artists, and museum staff to bring it all to life.

Last fall, the National Federation of the Blind Ohio Chapter Conference held in Westlake, Ohio, invited Kacie Weldy, HKNC Regional Representative 5, as well as Jason Judy and Dawn Watts, to discuss the SSP/CN Pilot Program Service. They provided us with ASL interpreters.

Many attendees were unfamiliar with our service program, and we provided detailed responses to their numerous questions. HKNC offered additional information to meet their needs.

A Trip to the American Council of the Blind of Ohio State Conference and Convention

Written by: Janae L. Miller

The American Council of the Blind of Ohio held its annual state conference and convention from November 4 through November 16 at the Best Western Hotel in Strongsville, Ohio. The event brought together members and leaders from across the state for several days of collaboration, learning, and celebration.

The first day of the conference began with the Board of Directors' annual meeting, where we discussed the conference layout and the schedule of programs and activities. After the morning session, attendees enjoyed boxed lunches before heading out for a fun and educational group tour of the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. The visit offered a fascinating look into the history of music and its many genres—an experience we all truly enjoyed.

That evening, my family and I had dinner at Pickle Bill's restaurant, where we shared great food and wonderful company. It was the perfect way to unwind after a full and exciting day.

Saturday was a particularly memorable day, filled with both business and celebration. Our business meeting was held in person and via Zoom, making it accessible for members throughout the state. During this session, we conducted elections for board members—welcoming new faces to the team and recognizing those continuing their service to the organization.

Later that evening, the organization hosted its annual dinner honoring individuals who have made significant contributions to our community—whether as Teachers of the Visually Impaired (TVIs) or as dedicated service providers who make a difference every day. The evening also featured our annual auction, a wonderful tradition that raises funds to help the organization continue growing and serving its mission.

One note I'd like to share is that I currently serve as the Chapter President for the Columbus, Ohio Chapter of the American Council of the Blind. I also serve on the state affiliate's Board of Directors, as well as on a national level through my appointment to the Multicultural Affairs Committee—a group selected by the current national president to help ensure diversity and inclusion remain core values within the organization.

Overall, the conference was both productive and inspiring. It provided a meaningful opportunity to reconnect, reflect, and refocus on our shared mission to serve and advocate for the blind community across Ohio.

Warm regards,

Dawn Watts' Interview in CantonRep.com | The Repository on Marlee Matlin

Written by: Dawn K Watts, The Deaf Reader Chairperson

In one of her books, she wrote, "I'll Scream Later." I completed reading this book within 12 hours, and I found it to be very engaging. Previously, I did not have a strong impression of Marlee Matlin; however, after reading her autobiography, my perspective changed. I developed great admiration for her, especially for her courage in speaking out before the U.S. Congress about the importance of closed captioning years ago. Her personality remains energetic and dynamic. Following her presentation, I had the opportunity to ask her questions. She acknowledged my raised hand and gestured to me.

I introduced myself as being involved with Language Equality and Acquisition for Deaf Kids (LEAD-K) in Ohio and mentioned to the audience that our local Ohio legislator, Senator Casey Weinstein, supports the LEAD-K initiative. This initiative focuses on children aged 0-5 who are deaf and their hearing parents, many of whom are unfamiliar with sign language. I inquired whether she has plans to write another book about LEAD-K. She was enthusiastic and pleased to respond to my questions. At the conclusion of her remarks, she encouraged me by saying, "Do NOT GIVE UP!" and signed ILY! I also asked the audience to contact Senator Casey Weinstein to support the LEAD-K initiative. Most of them showed me their hands, waved in the air, and clapped! One of the reporters caught and interviewed me. (next page)

'Always dream big.' Academy Award winner Marlee Matlin inspires Canton Palace crowd

Updated Nov. 7, 2025, 6:18 a.m. ET

Key Points

- Marlee Matlin, the first deaf actor to win an Academy Award, was the featured author Nov. 6 at a Stark Library event at Canton Palace Theatre.
- Matlin, 60, is also an advocate for closed captioning in television and streaming platforms.
- A documentary about Matlin's life was released this year and is on PBS, YouTube and various streaming platforms.

CANTON – Marlee Matlin summed up her mantra for life in three words — courage, dreams and success.

"Courage plus dreams equal success," the deaf actor and advocate for the deaf community said Nov. 6 through an interpreter at the Canton Palace Theatre. Her appearance was part of the Stark Library's Dr. Audrey Lavin Speaking of Books Author Series.

To emphasize the message, Matlin, 60, taught a near capacity crowd how to sign each of the three words.

'CODA' actor Marlee Matlin inspires Canton, Ohio crowd with life story

Dawn Watts, 70, of Columbus is deaf and serves as president of the nonprofit Ohio Deaf Friends of the Library. An interpreter for the deaf and blind, she's working to get legislation passed in Ohio that would help deaf children in the education system and with their language needs.

Watts said through an interpreter that Matlin is an inspiration.

"I realize she went through difficult times like myself," said Watts, who wore a purple sweater because it's Matlin's favorite color. "I don't feel like I'm the only one."

Watts also had asked Matlin a question about efforts to assist deaf children with their education.

Matlin said language deprivation is a critical issue.

"It's very important to give (deaf) children the education they need," she said. "Language is vital; language is the top concern."

"We must give them everything they need and the equivalent of their hearing peers."

Mentors are Henry Winkler and Whoopi Goldberg

Matlin said during her remarks that attending a public school was challenging.

Parental support was key.

"They taught me to own who I was at the same time the world around us made little accommodations for deaf people," she said.

Government's Anti-Diversity Policy Affects Deafblind Children

Written by: Juanita Hall, Co-Editor

There are roughly 10,000 deafblind children in the United States, along with other disabilities who rely on government grants for equipment, specially designed phones, technology, books in braille, etc., to be able to have a fulfilling life in school, home, etc. (New York Times, 2025). Due to the current Government's anti-diversity policy, various multi-year grants for deafblind children's programs funded by the government have been cut or stopped, leaving these Deafblind children and parents without the funding they need to provide their children the support, education, and tools they rely on for communication, life skills, and education. Some of these funds were in the middle of their five-year grant cycles when they were terminated. The states mostly affected are Washington, Oregon, Wisconsin, and New England (Google, 2025).

These funds were cut because the grants had language about diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI), even though the government said they wouldn't cut special education. Therefore, due to the public outcry, the Department of Education decided to reroute some of the funds to an alternative organization for one year (Google, 2025).

To learn more about the individual deafblind children affected by these cuts, read this New York Times article: <https://www.nytimes.com/2025/12/15/us/trump-dei-funding-deaf-blind.html>

The Nation's First Driver Refresher Course for Adults 50+

Written by: Dawn Watts, The Deaf Reader Newsletter Chairperson, and Juanita Hall, Co-Editor

I am a member of Deaf Seniors of America and the AARP Executive Director agreed to collaborate! For 10 years, I have been a member of the AARP. The AARP Smart Driver™ course is designed for individuals aged 50 and older, offering an opportunity to refresh driving knowledge and skills. This program helps drivers stay informed about changes in road conditions, vehicle technology, and personal driving abilities that occur over time. By enrolling, drivers can learn strategies to improve safety and confidence behind the wheel (AARP Driver Safety, n.d.).

As the nation's first driver refresher course for older adults, the program is beneficial for all ages and does not require a driving test. Upon completion, participants receive a certificate, which is nice to have as many use to qualify for auto insurance discounts. In fact, approximately 91% of surveyed drivers who took this course reported using their certificate to obtain such savings (AARP Driver Safety, n.d.).

The course emphasizes practical, up-to-date information and evidence-based techniques to promote safer driving. Some of the beneficial topics taught in this course include managing distractions, understanding the effects of medications, and using modern safety features effectively. These resources aim to help drivers maintain independence and reduce risks on the road to maintain driving safety (AARP Driver Safety, n.d.).

Book: Breaking Barriers: Deafhood and Empowerment

Written by: Geo Rinker

This book explores the unique mental health challenges faced by the deaf community, emphasizing systemic barriers such as communication gaps, cultural misunderstandings, and stigma that limit access to effective care. Highlighting the critical importance of culturally competent services including ASL fluent providers and the recognition of deaf culture as a vital component of care. It advocates for systemic reforms like increased funding, accessible resources, and inclusive policies. ### Legislative Updates - LEAD-K Ohio– by Dawn Watts

On Tuesday, October 14, 2025, Senator W and his assistants met with Dr. Lou at the Ohio School for the Deaf. Attendees included Anthony Coy, Principal; Julie Stewart, Assistant Principal; Cedar Wells, Cheryl Prunsinski, myself, and one additional individual.

Cheryl delivered an insightful presentation on language deprivation among Deaf children, supported by statistics and research from the National Association of the Deaf. The research indicates that approximately 70% of Deaf, DeafBlind, DeafDisabled, and Hard of Hearing children lack adequate language access. She shared her report via email.

The next step involves a meeting with ASHA at the Ohio Statehouse with Noah Turoff, Senior Legislative Aide.

Dawn also attended the Marlee Matlin presentation at the Canton Public Library on Thursday, November 6th. She discussed parts of her book, "I Am Not Alone Anymore," which is straightforward and can be read in a day. This book focused on language deprivation and how it impacted her life. There was a discussion on the LEAD-K initiative, and Marlene Maltin supported it and hoped that it went through for Ohio.
