These jokes were allegedly originated in Rugby school in Rugby Town of UK.

These jokes have really nothing to do the Rugby game, but they were called so because listening to them produces the same abrasive effect on the psyche of a civilized soul, as though it was caused by watching the game of Rugby.

This refers to a futile or foolish quest or exercise. Its origin is

- a wild goose is difficult to be caught
- once caught, it turns out to be of little value; being too tough to eat & digest

Especially, the pursuit of it seems to be something of a waste of time. And explanation refers to an early form of sleight chasing. In a kind of follow-my-leader game, one horseman would gallop off across the fields, choosing the most difficult course he could, in the hope that the riders following him would be thrown off somehow by a fence or hedge or trench or ditch.

This game was known as "wild goose chase"

Since the group of riders could be spread out - as a way (in the center) a skin of wild goose ⁱⁿ flight

Ombudsmen

Sir. — The illuminating evaluation of the headless ombudsmen by Mr. Justice V. R. Krishna Iyer ("why stultify judges' status?" The Hindu, June 5 and 6) should serve as an eye-opener to the Legislature and the Executive. The author's criticism is well-founded and justified and he has rightly called the forum without chairman as a boneless wonder.

The word ombudsman ordinarily means a commissioner appointed by a legislature, as in some Scandinavian countries, New Zealand and elsewhere, to hear and investigate complaints by private citizens against government officials or agencies. It should be a high level, impartial, standing judicial tribunal to investigate and report on complaints of administrative wrongs and corruption. It is a poor man's tribune having two-fold functions, namely, dealing with the grievances of the people arising out of maladministration and combating corruption at the administrative and political levels. The most important factor is the selection of ombudsmen who should be outside the government influence.

An ombudsman would be a success in small countries like Sweden. The concept has gained worldwide acceptance and it is said that we are in the grip of 'the ombudsmen fever'. In India it is only at an experimental stage and the institution of ombudsmen cannot be regarded as a substitute for a court of law.

The Kerala Lok Ayukta Act, 1999 is wide enough to bring maladministration of local authorities also within its ambit. One fails to understand the necessity for a separate seven member ombudsmen for local authorities. The object of creating such institutions should not be for providing berth for retiring judges and administrative officers. No doubt smaller fields can be selected for appointment of ombudsmen on an experimental basis to fight corruption and enhance transparency in administration.

V. K. Sathyavan Nair,
Kottayam (Kerala)

Sir. — In his article, Mr. Justice V. R. Krishna Iyer takes the view that "creating deemed justices of High Courts with equal status and salaries suggests an oblique bypassing of the Constitution."

Assault on the Constitution and the rule of law is a favourite pastime these days. While in Fiji Mr. George Speight needed an armed group to overthrow a democratically elected Prime Minister and to keep him captive, in Kochi on May 31, a group of people without resort to arms was able to prevent the General Manager of the RBI and the supporting staff from entering the premises for public service and, what is more, was able to break the police cordon and 'seize' the RBI and make one of their leaders, an advocate (who ought to know the laws) the General Manager of the RBI. So, we have not only deemed justices but also deemed GMs.

Kochi (Kerala)

NIGHT MARE

A nightmare is a frightening dream. The word "DARE" refers to a certain evil spirit in its female form in Medieval England.

It was believed that the female spirit would lie upon the chest and suffocate or haunt people during their sleep.

Further down the history lane, we find the English word "DARE" was derived from pre-historic German word "MARA".

In English, "night" + "MARE" were put together and pronounced as NIGHT DARE referring to a bad dream.

(The word must have been derived from HORSES' NOURTH)

(Also may be the dream may mar your night)

Oliver Twist is a famous character of Dickens novel by the same name. He was dumped into a hostel for juvenile delinquents, where he was not fed adequately. His enormous appetite could never be quenched & so he finally protested against the hostel manager & quit the hostel for good. Later he became a famous writer.

Quoting this instance, our Government has described our State Government as a kind of unquenchable OLIVER TWIST, despite of heavy deployment of national finances under the no credible equitable distribution of TAX & Revenue.

THERE are occasions when Chief Ministers gather en masse in New Delhi for interacting with the Prime Minister for participating in the sessions of National Development Council. However, the presence in the national capital on Wednesday of as many as 16 chief ministers, nine from non-BJP States and seven from the North-Eastern region, was a rare occasion indeed. The fact that all of them shared a common objective, namely, to persuade the Centre to part with funds, made the event even more noteworthy. In India's federal set-up, the states have always been supplicants, demanding, like the famous Dickens character Oliver Twist, "more soup" from the Centre. The States have enormous appetites, and their agenda of interaction with the government of the day at the Centre is always loaded with appeals for grants, loans, credits, concessions, and reliefs. Since the Centre is always complaining of resource crunch itself, the situation makes for hard bargaining for both sides. Chief Ministers of the North-Eastern States have

In ancient Greek legends the lotus plant is represented as indicative of dreaminess and a distaste for active life.

Tennyson's poem describes ULYSSES the king of ITHACA, coming across the land of lotus eaters; during his voyage, he found two people here to be indolent, pleasure-loving and averse to hard work, preferring to eat on the lotus plant.

The term has since become synonymous with a life of indolent enjoyment. It is a term to describe someone who is careless about his responsibilities and lives only for pleasure.

The term "Blue Blood" is a literal translation of the Spanish term "SANGRE AZUL".

In Europe, aristocratic Englishmen have been traditionally pale & fair skinned because of their life style.

Blue Blood became a sign of Royalty (synonymous colour) because of the visible blue coloured veins of the aristocrats.

In contrast, the commoners, however, had tanned complexions, like their veins not so visible.

A Soldier is a person who serves in an army & works 24 hrs in spite of difficulties.
 The word SOLDIER is derived from Latin word SOLIDUS = means solid

A soldier's heart implies a person's solid, bold, enduring capabilities without unimpaired mental faculties, stability.

A heart which is:
 as large as the sky,
 as deep as an ocean
 as tough as a rock
 as clean as a mirror
 as beautiful as a flower as long as a mother.

Gems = precious or some precious minerals.

These minerals like Iron, Zinc, Sulphur, phosphate, ZINC OXIDE, Aluminum, Copper, Nickel etc.

If worn close to the skin or body, the body gradually starts absorbing them in small doses to make up for mineral deficiencies.

This cures ailments caused by such deficiencies. The shape, size, colour, clarity & combination of gems are of prime importance. Wrong prescriptions prove, often counterproductive.

Hence one should only consult an experienced gem therapist. Cure ailments by absorbing, reflecting, refracting, dispersing & scattering different kinds of radiation from space. Their support & influence life on this planet.

Knee-jerk reaction

The government's decision to stop registering seven-seater autos appear to be a knee-jerk reaction. The vehicle has been certified as safe by the competent authorities.

But it should be noted that the safe certificate was issued with proviso that the vehicle should not carry more than seven passengers including the driver. Unfortunately this directive being flouted in connivance with police. A vehicle designed for load of seven is carrying a load twelve to thirteen passengers.

Therefore not correct to blame lack of stability. If as the lights in it, Centre of India, Srinivasa Rao and V. Transport Corp. carrying torches and shouting slogans against the State government and demanding immediate Crossroads to Narayana Corp.

The government should not lose sight of the fact that these autos have solved a long standing problem of over crowding of public buses.

Banning them from the roads is going to aggravate the problem than sorting it out.

When the knee is semi flexed, a sharp tap on the patellar tendon causes contraction of quadriceps muscle and leg jerks up. This is called a KNEE JERK.

(Reaction made on the spur of the moment - such as the hammer 7-seals within cities)

A sharp tap on the patellar tendon causes a stretch in the muscle spindle of extensor muscle and afferent impulse (i.e. an impulse from the muscle to the central nervous system) goes to the spinal motor neurons through afferent fibres.

The fibres synapses with alpha efferent fibres (carry impulse from central nervous system of the spinal chord. to the muscle)

The impulse thus passing the spinal chord stimulates the alpha motor neurone, & therefore

RICHTER SCALE

(SEISMOGRAPH) is an instrument used to measure the intensity or magnitude of energy released by an earthquake.

WORK TO DO

It was devised by Charles Richter in the year 1935. It consists of a pendulum at the end of which is fixed a pen whose point touches a card/paper rolled over to a cylinder.

Called Seismograms
PHONES

In the event of an earthquake zig-zag lines are marked & from these the intensity of waves and distance from the place of origin can be understood.

In order to find out the direction towards which the earthquake shock has occurred several seismographs are used & are kept in different directions. By comparing their readings, the true direction of the earthquake is also found out.

large star has completed its lifecycle it disintegrates. What remains is a core with a very heavy density. Gravity is so strong that even the protons or light rays are not able to escape it. This makes the star totally invisible. The gravitational force is so intense that any thing which comes into contact with it gets sucked in. Such regions are formed by nuclear fusion called BLACK HOLES.

A black hole is formed when a giant like star dies into horizon as the Hydrogen starts depleting the star starts expanding.

An English breakfast ~~is~~ menu consists of two to eight course meal and the order of the courses is the same as the classical French Meal.

For instance stewed fruits, cereals, fish, eggs, meat etc.

Notes

A Continental breakfast is generally of a much lighter food and usually consists of a hot toast, butter, preserves and a coffee or Tea.

Generally a Room Tariff of five star hotels includes a continental breakfast as p/o of the deal. But the English breakfast has to be ordered separately & paid for extra. It is an exclusive affair.

Pygmalion

Pygmalion was the King of Cyprus.
He was a hobby of sculpting statues.

He made a maiden statue, whose features were so beautiful that he fell in love with her.

Pygmalion then prayed to APHRODITE
(Also known as VENUS) (Goddess of Love) who granted him his wish, by making the statue come alive.

The maiden was named GALATEA and Pygmalion finally married her.

So Pygmalion effect is the art of making of a beauty from rough material & making it attractive as to get loved by living beings.

A good example of the Pygmalion effect was depicted in the story "The Lady's Lover" written by George Bernard Shaw's novel "Pygmalion".

Certain signals are transmitted at particular high frequencies which are not easily caught by normal dish antenna. It needs a special instrument called RECORDER to catch such frequencies.

To acquire such decoder you have to pay for concerned channel.

A pay channel is a channel you have to pay for before watching. While other channels are free to the air, and can be caught by domestic dish antennas, it takes a decoder to unscramble the signals before you can watch the channel on your TV set.

THE TIMES OF INDIA

NO. 33, VOL I

A Thought for Today

Some comrades apparently find it hard to understand that democracy is just a slogan.

— MIKHAIL GORBACHOV

Hobson's Democracy

A command higher than the high command? Now, everybody knows that's an oxymoron; in the order of commands, high is as far as you go. The Congress party knows this even better and that is why it borrowed the evocative military phrase for common political usage. The message was quite simple really: Yours was not to reason why. So, what happens when a minor functionary down the chain of command defies this code? The faithful will move to denounce him in no uncertain manner, as indeed the hapless Jitendra Prasada discovered within moments of deciding to challenge Sonia Gandhi. In the past 24 hours, Mr Prasada has been variously called a feather-weight, traitor, opportunist and even a dictator. Though it defies conjecture that anybody can at once be a light-weight and a dictator, none of this is even mildly surprising. What seems more out of place is the collective intellectual breast-beating over the lack of democracy in the Congress. Earlier in these columns, we had talked about the futility of imposing any one kind of political system across the world — the United States is a democracy as much as Singapore and India are, though the system of governance in each country is distinctively its own. By this logic, even democracy cannot be exempt from India's 'we are like that only' spirit. Externally we are as vibrant a democracy as we are not internally. Our elections are a carnival where people participate joyously and in greater numbers than even in the self-appointed 'greatest democracy': Haven't we gloated enough about this? But within each political party, a benevolent leadership absolves the rank and file of the burdensome onus of choice.

Let's be honest. All political parties are chary of internal democracy. To their credit the Congress and the Shiv Sena are upfront about it; this is implicit in their unwritten articles of association. And contrary to popular impression, in the Congress the trend existed even before Indira Gandhi, though under her sycophancy flowered and prospered to encompass the whole family: Can one ever forget the wonderful sight of an obsequious N D Tiwari carrying the footwear of Sanjay Gandhi on his head? But to go back in time, Gandhi anointed Nehru his heir-apparent, Nehru, in turn, groomed his daughter who groomed her son. Subhash Chandra Bose contested and won against Pattabhi Sitaramiah. And yet, his working committee stood disbanded — because Gandhi was unhappy with the result. The Shiv Sena, of course, doesn't believe in any of these formalities. Why go to the trouble of fighting elections, when it is by far simpler to appoint Bal Thackeray president for life? Sure, this is blatantly undemocratic. We remember a disapproving note from the Election Commission back then saying precisely so. But rule by consensus is the rule rather than the exception in these parts. In the BJP, the leadership will go to any length to prevent election to the highest post in the party. The same goes for all the regional parties — from Jayalalitha's AIADMK and Mayawati's BSP to Mulayam Singh Yadav's Samajwadi Party and Chandrababu Naidu's TDP. Like Hobson, who offered the choice of any horse from his stable, except it had to be the one nearest the door, Indian political parties offer only one choice. Like it or lump it.

too severe seldom executed.

Hobson's Choice

A touch of summer madness appears to have crept into the pre-poll campaigning in West Bengal. Paranoia has marked the exercise, with the Left Front upping the ante weeks earlier, when it accused the rival Trinamul Congress of hatching a diabolical plot to discredit the ruling party and government. The redoubtable state secretary of the CPM, Anil Biswas, had then gone to town, alleging that Trinamul Congress activists were capable of assassinating their own leaders to generate a backlash or, at the very least, a sympathy wave. Mamata Banerjee has now chosen to reply in kind by publicly exhorting her supporters to ensure that her 'dead body', if indeed Left Front supporters manage to kill her, is not cremated till the Left Front is thrown out of power. She has further squared the pitch by refusing to use bullet proof vehicles and by forbidding security personnel from getting too close to her. The state government has been prompt in lodging a complaint with the Election Commission, pointing out that policemen deployed to protect the Trinamul Congress chief are being heckled, abused as 'CPM stooges' and forced to follow Ms Banerjee's cavalcade. One hopes the leaders will learn to exercise some restraint, if only for their own sake. Violence of any kind may not only discredit the ruling party but it almost certainly will boomarang on the Opposition as well by forcing pro-Opposition voters to withdraw indoors into a safe cocoon.

It is easy to see why the campaigning in West Bengal has been so tense, bitter and theatrical. The stakes have seldom been higher, with both the Left Front and the Congress-Trinamul combine fighting with their backs to the wall. While a defensive Left Front has been claiming that the choice lay between a 'change for anarchy' and a 'democratic and repentant' Left Front, Mamata Banerjee is convinced that it is going to be 'now or never'. But with less than two weeks to go, only partisans, pundits and pollsters will hazard a guess as to the outcome of the poll. It is a different matter that none of the three outcomes may provide much comfort to the people at large. The prospect of a Left Front government, which has stretched its credibility by remaining in power for 24 uninterrupted years, is a prospect that excites only the establishment. The possibility of Ms Banerjee's rag-tag coalition coming to power despite heavy odds, though desired by a number of the electorate, seems to frighten them at the same time. The very real possibility of a hung House is something that may cause anxiety for the politicians but has little but despair to offer to the voters. There are undoubtedly strong undercurrents working against the incumbents. But whether the sentiment will translate into votes on the day that matters is a question for which there is no ready answer. However becoming increasingly clear is that it may well be a choice for the people of the state.

In early 19th Century of England,
 Cotton Manufacturers of Manchester began facing a number of problems
 So on March 10th, 1817, about 5000 of these cotton manufacturers assembled at St Peter's field, each carrying a banner & a blanket.
 They proposed to March to London to lay their grievances before the Prince Regent.

Since each one had a blanket
 they were nicknamed as 'The Blanketeers'.
 The assembly alarmed the authorities so much that they imposed an
 'A Blanket Ban' on all gatherings suspending the Habeas Corpus Act, arrested & jailed all leaders of the Blanketeers.

Ever since then a "Blanket Ban" has meant a total Ban. There is ban imposed against "IPS" & "BUTS" and almost any exception is known as a Blanket Ban, just like the no way of light houses or escape through a blanket none can escape from a Blanket Ban.

Kidney Stone is not any real stone exhaled from the kidney

When we consume our food (which may contain carbohydrates, proteins, calcium etc) due to the inability of our body to deal with calcium, proteins & uric acid, excessive amount of calcium in the blood, insufficient intake of water and deficiency of magnesium are some of the reasons for stone formation in the kidneys

eg: Calcium oxalate stones Phosphate stones & uric acid stones

Kidney stones are more often found in non-vegetarian middle-aged older persons than vegetarians.

The phrase "spin doctors" originated in the context of American Political scenario.

In the US, political managers are called as "spin doctors".

These are cunning media savvy people, who can propagate a biased information in a credible manner so as to portray a favorable impression and gain political advantage in form of their masters.

The word "SPIN" was chosen because it refers to creating a tale or article to suit a given situation.

A Scape goat is a person longly made to shoulder the blame for other mistakes and then punished as a result.

The term has its origin from a biblical incident in which Achan confessed all the sins of the children of ISRAEL over the head of a live goat, which was sent into wilderness, symbolically bearing their sins on the Day of Atonement.

It was called the ~~SCAPE~~ GOAT for AZAZEL (the desert demon) 27

Like the passage of time, the term got corrupted to "goat for escape" or "goat for escape" from one's sins & future for Atonement to "SCAPE GOAT"

Because it lets others to escape!

Hawala is a system of bypassing TRADE ^{official} the foreign exchange channel

Operations in the hawala take payment in rupees and supply dollars/foreign currency against it abroad.

The hawala runs through a network of agents. Payments made in dollars abroad can also be transferred to India & the beneficiary paid in rupees.

In common parlance, Hawala means "Reference" but w.r.t. black money, it means exchange of foreign money into local currency clandestinely and at slightly higher than the official exchange rate.

It is an expression used to describe a WOMAN with superior literary & intellectual tastes.

The term had its origin in 18th Century. literary parties hosted by a London Society Lady Elizabeth MONTAGUE.

Another Benjamin Stillingfleet who was a popular speaker at such gatherings, always wore a blue worsted stockings. At such parties became popular, blue stockings clubs started all over London.

The expression applies only to women these days, perhaps some men have been dubbed blue or otherwise.

In the medieval period,
a calamity used to be considered the creation of a supposed witch of the locality.

The superstition-driven men would then get into the act of hunting for the witch.

Invariably, some old woman who had become a burden on the family or somebody else would be the target of attack & come to death.

Once considered a liability in the family & considering her exit as a good riddance to the family other family members would join the act of lynching the hapless

"One for sorrow, two for mirth/Three for a wedding, four for a birth/Five for silver, six for gold/Seven for secrets, never to be told/Eight for heaven, nine for hell/And ten for the devil's own self". Thus went the childhood rhyme signifying what awaited you if you saw a certain numbers of crows or magpies when you stepped out of the house. Exigencies of modern living and commuting have taken their toll of superstitions. But human nature being what it is invents new superstitions and omens to replace the old ones. For some writers and poets like Goethe, superstitions were "the poetry of life", while others like Edmond Burke, made of sterner stuff, saw them as "the religion of feeble minds". Space scientists in the Soviet Union were bemused when Indian scientists at the Baikonur launching pad, broke coconuts and offered incense as the countdown began for the blast-off for a satellite. Niels Bohr, the Danish physicist, was asked whether the horseshoe nailed on his laboratory wall was for luck. "Of course, I don't believe in it", he said, adding "but they say it brings luck, whether or not you think so". A recent survey of the foibles and fetishes of writers in Britain revealed that while some complain that the advent of the word-processor has "taken the romance out of the writing process", others apprehend that "a whole new caboodle of superstitions and premonitions is developing around users of PCs". Writer Beryl Bainbridge has been "talking to her word processor for 15 years now, and she never, ever switches it off", keeping her writing room out of bounds for kibitzers. Novelist William Boyd concedes that with some writers, habits take on a "talismanic importance", though those who suffer from these obsessions call them manic ones. Hilary Mantel likes to work with a minimal of dress on "because it helps in flow of thought"; while the fully clothed Anita Brookner says, "Writers make up eccentricities for marketing and the thing to do is sit down and get on with the writing". V S Naipaul regrets the "loss of magic" and modesty which forbade him from numbering the pages of his manuscript and writing his name when he sent his book to the publisher. "Then it seemed too arrogant to do so. Now, I have become shameless and number my pages and write my own name". New gadgets bring new omens.

In English history, Yeoman is a class of people, intermediary between gentry and the labour communities.

A yeoman is usually a landholder, but could also be a guard, attendant or a subordinate official. The word appears in Middle English as YEMEN or YOMAN, and is perhaps a contraction of YONG men or YONG man, thereby meaning a young man, or attendant. Subsequently, another word, "yeomanry" originated from "yeoman". This meant a voluntary cavalry force raised from the yeoman class in the 19th century by Britain. Because ranked by the yeoman gave rise to the phrase "Yeoman Service".

JOHN CHAUCER'S CANTERBURY TALES depicts a yeoman as a forester. He guards at TOLONIX Tower which is known as YEOMAN WARDENS.

The name originated from the story of ADAM & EVE, when EVE gives ADAM an apple from the tree of knowledge in the Garden of EDEN. While eating, it got stuck in ADAM'S Throat, so the enlarged cartilage was named ADAM'S Apple.

So the Adam's apple has come to be known as a prohibited fruit.

A peeping TOM is a VOYEUR or a man who delights in secretly looking at women as they undress for bath/changear.
It is derived from the name of legendary English Tailor.

The legend goes that when LEOFRIC, 11th Century Lord of Coventry imposed crippling Taxes on his people, his wife LADY GODIVA pleaded with him to ease the burden on the people.

Leofric agreed on condition that LADY GODIVA agreed to drive naked on the streets of the city.
She agreed, & did so having urged all citizens to keep the streets closed. Everyone respected her wish, except the Tailor, TOM who peeped and was struck blind.

Hence the term PEEPING TOM

Quick sand is not a type of sand; but just a flow condition occurring when a cohesionless soil, when its effective pressure is reduced to ZERO, due to upward flow of water. So the water flows in the upward direction. The seepage pressure also acts upwards. In this case, it becomes equal to the pressure due to the submerged weight of soil acting in the downward direction. Thus, the soil loses its shear strength making it unable to resist sinking of any heavy object falling on it.

The popular myth that Quick sand engulfs any one falling in it is untrue. It is nothing but a flow condition and one can swim out of it, of course with some difficulty.

Quick sand is a kind of slush normally found in such river banks and ~~on~~ shores where the earth's crust contains layers of clay and huge quantities of sand above.

Quick sand is the geological fusion of falling in love; once you start falling you keep on falling. — because of the Q.S.

England fought a war of WVS like Holland in the late 17th century.

Because of strained relations with Dutch, there are several derogatory references to the Dutch people by the English.
that crept in English language.

Dutch courage is one of them which means courage shown under the influence of alcohol.

DUTCH

There are a number of phrases in English which refer to references to certain imagined characteristics of Dutch people. They are all derived from the 17th century when the Dutch & the English fought a long war for control of maritime trade & without supremacy. The expression "to go Dutch" is just one such example of men to pay just for oneself.

WORKED BY process called them names

Other examples are:

The formation of Acid Rain starts as soon as polluting chemicals viz, Nitrogen & sulfur oxides emissions from factories & car engines are sent up to the atmosphere. When these pollutants reach the atmosphere, they combine with existing water vapour, oxygen & sunlight.

The reaction creates a diluted soup of highly dangerous sulphuric, nitric & hydrochloric acids. When it rains, it washes down the highly dangerous acidic soup on us which is known as acid rain.

Acid rain changes the soil nutrient content, kills large stretches of forests & can also cause some skin irritation.

AMBROSE Phelps, an 18th century English poet, used to write about rural life in an idealised manner

People who found his sentimental pastoral writings dry and unwholesome nicknamed him as NAMBY - PAMBY

DOG TIRED

The term "DOG TIRED" means means "totally exhausted". The term has its origin in ancient Egypt. The days between the beginning of July & mid August, when excessive heat made people tired very early — were known as DOG DAYS.

This was because this period was heralded by the rising of the DOG STAR SIRIUS. (also known as ALPHA CANIS MAJOR)

There are two types of cells called RODS & CONES - light and sensitive elements of the RETINA
(The Screen of the eye).

It is estimated that the human eye contains about 20 million rods and about 6 million cones.

CONES are active when there is day light & are responsible for colour vision. The rods are responsible for vision in dim light i.e. during night.

Due to deficiency of Vitamin A both cones & rods may be weakened thus impairing day, colour or night vision.

When the rods cells are affected predominantly, it results in night blindness. Weak ^{cone} cells result in colour blindness.
One should take yellow fruit milk & milk products and eggs to avoid it.

Brand Equity is defined as a set of Brand Assets & liabilities linked to the Brand - its name & symbols - that add value to or subtract value from a product or service.

The assets include: brand loyalty, name awareness, perceived quality & associations & proprietary assets.

The core brand equity is the loyalty of its customer base. A product can be copied by a competitor, but a brand is unique.

Indubitably it is the name of a game one has to play to succeed in one's own business.

Strictly speaking all large co's are equal, but some companies are more than equal because of their BRAND EQUITY.

A Blue Moon is the second full moon in a calendar month. A blue moon occurs on an average once in every 2.7 years. The last blue moon was seen on July 30, 1976 & on April 30, 1999.

On Sep 26, 1950 also, in Edinburgh a seafarer, Charles Wilson focused his telescope on the Moon & measured its spectrum — its breakdown of colours. He found that the moon on that night was blue, caused by oily particles floating high in the atmosphere. They came from a Canadian forest fire & were intensely hot & smoked dust — were swept thousands of meters up in convection currents.

Blue Moon occurs only when this happens. The red light vanishes against the blackness of the night sky & we see the phenomenon — A Blue Moon. This is a rarest phenomenon. Hence the phrase in the rhyme — "If they say the Moon is BLUE, we must believe 'em, it is true"

Just as poor people sell their ware / goods in a push cart, Car owners keep their goods in the rear luggage space of their vehicle called the BOOT stop the vehicle at some vantage point where lot of people assemble & transact their business, so that they can open their door & sell their ware / goods.

This is known as CAR BOOT SALE

This is more economical to the buyers as well, because the car boot comes closer to them & they need not go to shopping & at the same time profitable to the seller by saving overheads

The "Gunboat" is related to Japanese History. It refers to Japanese boats unwillingly to have any relations with other foreign countries. It means exerting political pressure through the use of force to gain a desired diplomatic objective.

On one occasion, when some Americans in a ship sought the permission of the Japanese coastal guards to land, they were not allowed to do so. The next time the Americans reached the coast they threatened the coastal guards. Ultimately the Americans were allowed to land.

It is diplomacy supported by the use of threat or military force.

A cock + bull story means a tale which is too absurd to be credible. It comes from

"Purton's Anatomy of Melancholy" (1621)

which uses the expression in a similar sense. Sometimes the delight is — to tell about a cock + bull war a pot" which the expression refers to an affair in which cock + bulls and the animals spoke in human language.

William Freeman believes that the phrase is a corruption of a "cocked + bull story"

Bull = from the Danish word BULLEN = which means exaggerated

In our part of the world a fable where a cock + a bull figured out a most improbable story was presented as a Truth.

Woodoo is a unique combination of African, Roman, Catholic & even some American Indian beliefs plus traditional occult practices from Europe. Its deepest roots are in Africa and it began when many African slaves are brought to Haiti by the French.

Woodoo is a fundamental religion like its own gods & forms of worship but it has also its sinister side black magic, murder, raising the dead and sorcery & superstitions.

Wood is essential to such ceremonies; which usually involve the sacrifice of animals, such as pigs, hens & cockroaches.

Woodoo culture concerns superstitious beliefs & practices of African origin. It was included in the list of religions, human sacrifice & sorcery. Today it is confined to and practiced in the mountains of Haiti.

In contrast to blood relationship relatives through son & daughter connected by law are called IN-LAWS

They are not connected by blood, but bound legally or by the law of marriage. Hence the suffix "in-law" is the one attached to relative of the spouse of son or daughter to constantly remind the relatives that they are not close like they say "IN" as long as you abide by law. After that they become outlaws.

In the medieval period of England a citizenry used to be considered as a creature of the supposed WITCH of the locality or village.

The superstitions driven men would then go in the act of hunting for the supposed witch, usually an old woman, who had become unwanted & burden on others and so done to death on that premise.

Usually such woman will be called a family & would be treated as a burden on the society by the same family members.
Considering it as a good oddance even the family members would join in the act of lynching the hapless woman.

Never was there any real witch who was caught & nobody is there but it looks like so when somebody hunts for something or one of, it is called a WITCH HUNT.

who plotted to kill her mother to avenge her father's death.

The Electra complex is a girl child's desire for her father and rivalry with her mother for the father's affections.
This theory propounded by SIGMUND FREUD, the father of modern psychology has not been substantiated / verified conclusively but has been acknowledged. The word over.

According to SIGMUND FREUD
the famous (and) psychologist every individual undergoes 8 certain psycho sexual stages.
During his third stage (phallic stage - 3 to 6 yrs)
the preening of the opposite sex forms the child's first love object.
The boy gets attracted to his mother & the girl to her father.

A Vulnerable or weak point
It's seen in Greek mythology that by dipping one's infant heels of Achilles into the magic waters of the River Styx, his mother Thetis, rendered him invulnerable, except in the heel by which he was held.

Therefore an Achilles heel has come to mean a weak spot.

As it was found in Achilles' case he was killed by a person's arrow that hit the heel which he had not seen rendered vulnerable —

Draco was a Greek law maker of ancient Athens who made the first written code of law in 621 BC. For the first time, the government was made responsible for punishing a murderer. Earlier, punishment was meted out by the victim's family and bloody feuds erupted. This became common. The purpose of the code was to replace the old system of justice which favored the nobility.

ಕವಿವಾರಂ 28

Draco's code was said to be written in blood because it made almost all crimes punishable by death. In 594 BC the code was replaced by Solon's.

Split personality or multiple personality is a rare disorder in which one personality becomes so fragmented that two or more relatively independent sub-personalities emerge. These normal persons show pronounced changes in style, behavior & reactivity as they move between different social roles. This disorder is associated with a history of a severe abuse during childhood, where fantasy is the only escape from painful reality. One should not confuse multiple personality with what is called SCHIZOPHRENIA. The condition of multiple personality is an abnormality of degree & not of kind. Stockholm syndrome

Sir. — The recent appeal by Mr. Rajkumar that the governments should concede the demands of his abductor Veerappan is a clear case of his psychological conversion — what is popularly known as 'Stockholm syndrome'. The origin of this phrase dates back to the year 1973 when a gang of robbers looted a bank in Stockholm, Sweden, and while fleeing took a few bank employees hostage. Even though the hostages were released a few days later, two women who were among the captives became emotionally involved with their captors, one of them became so much emotionally attached to one of the captors that she even broke her engagement with some other person and remained faithful to her captor even when he was arrested later and put in prison. This strange case gave rise to the term "Stockholm syndrome". This expression now means an inexplicable bond that sometimes develops between the hostage and the terrorist.

Psychologists say that this bond develops because the captive lives in the shadow of death. He gradually feels that the captors are the only people who can save him. With this feeling, any small courtesy shown to him by the captor makes an impressive impact on him. His mind becomes so receptive to their ideas that he becomes sympathetic to their cause.

A Catamaran is actually used for catching fish in the coastal waters of AP/TN/Kerala

The basic difference between Catamaran & Normal Steamers is that Catamarans are used for fishing whereas the steamers are used for public and cargo transportation

In steamers the steam is released by the engine, whereas in a Catamaran it gets released from the boiler

Cloud seeding is the induction of rainfall by an artificial method. In this process, silver compounds or dry ice are sprinkled in the sky at a high altitude, which helps in the formation of clouds leading to rain.

This method has been tried in Indonesia & China in order to develop clouds artificially to fight forest fire.

Catch 22 is the title of a novel by Joseph Heller (American novelist) during second world war. II

The story deals with a group of five brave pilots who are stuck in dangerous bombing missions, from which it was impossible to get relief from combat duty.

But in order to get relieved, the pilots had to prove they were insane & unfit for combat duty.

As the pilots could not prove their insanity, they had no option except to continue.

The pilots were caught in a NO WIN situation. If they pleaded insanity, they were adjudged sane & not released.

That was the TRICK of the CATCH hidden in the assignment.

The expression CATCH 22, which is used in an everyday context, has come to mean a NO WIN situation.

No matter what you do, you fail.

People have only experienced people who can employ every talent a job.

It is really a catch 22 situation.

Getting a famous name to act in your film is a catch 22 situation.

Samuel Augustus Haverick was a wealthy land lord who lived in Texas (USA) in 19th century. He had all land and he too owned number of cows.

In those days the farmer practice was to brand their animals using a hot iron to burn the animal's skin on the side of the animal.

But Haverick left his animals unbranded. He owned all those animals unbranded as his own. So the original meaning for Haverick was "unbranded animal".

Later the expression applied to people also. When you refer to a person as MAVERICK, it means that he/she does not follow the usual conventions. Someone whose ideas & ways are different from other people.

Ex: 1) Jayo Salita became like a Maverick in paying his son's marriage. A maverick is a person whose ideas are radically different from those of other party.

Golden elixir of Midas recreated

Philadelphia, Sept. 20: Science may never produce the nectar of the gods but a team of US archaeologists has managed to recreate the Golden Grog of the legendary king Midas.

"King Midas' Golden Elixir" sparkles like champagne and tastes like hard cider. And it is about as close as the modern world is likely to get to the brew Midas and his ancient people, the Phrygians, made by mixing fermented grape juice with beer, honey, meal, herbs and spices 2,700 years ago in central Turkey. With help from a Delaware microbrewer, the University of Pennsylvania's Museum of Archaeology and Anthropology has sought to recreate the Midas libation from leftovers of the great king's funeral feast, which scientists discovered after unearthing his iron age tomb near Ankara. Penn archaeologists have been excavating the site of ancient Phrygian capital Gordium, legendary home of the Gordian knot, since 1950. In 1957, they discovered the wooden tomb of Midas complete with his skeleton. Now university officials hope to turn Midas' famous golden touch to good use, using the elixir to promote a lavish banquet at the museum. (Reuters)

The Midas Touch

Women love it and men too find it a fine fashion accessory. New designs and varieties are much welcome everyday. So why not try your hand in jewellery designing as it is turning out to a hot career?

To him who surrenders unto me totally I shall be ever indebted.

WHAT distinguishes Sharbati from others is her innate sense of design.

showcasing cross-cultural influences ranging from Hindu mythological figures to Egyptian themes and the exclusivity she ensures with every piece.

In 1991, when she started her formal ethnic wear for men, she did not think about its commercial viability but concentrated on expressing her creative urges and on providing sartorial options to men sourced from Indian heritage. She entered this area at a time when there were no other contenders to match her intelligent revival of the art of embellishing men's traditional outfit. Now of course even a small stockist of kurtas, pyjamas and dhotis in Calcutta will insist on showing a "Sharbati-type" coloured dhoti. She has set a trend and influenced people's taste. "And this is why I feel I have been successful as a designer," says Sharbati. "A designer's job is not limited to creating clothes but also to influence people's taste. The latter is of utmost importance."

Once again she has set out to create a trend in men's jewellery and accessories by launching her brand of intriguing pieces such as the sacred thread, sehra (the face cover usually worn by grooms in northern and other parts of India), kamariand (waistband), armlets, glove studs, collars to be worn with sherwanis, kurtas or jackets, pocket covers, suspender holders and buckles. Her foray into this field is a logical extension of her designer clothes for men.

Till now the usual pieces of jewellery and accessories for men were limited to finger rings, necklaces, cufflinks, tie-pins and ear studs - the latter, of course, worn only by the young and the trendy. Sharbati claims that she is attempting to revive the traditions which existed before colonial rule. History shows that Indian men not only dressed with great care - not only in brocade and embroidered achkans, but also wore heavy necklaces, bracelets, armlets, ear-rings, crowns, finger rings, waist bands and anklets. What she has done is, of course, very contemporary with unusual designs. She has, at the same time, given a new identity to ritual necessities like the sacred thread and Beyond mere cufflinks...

the sehra, besides having experimented with the jewellery pieces commonly worn by men. Thus necklaces have been given the Sharbati touch with exquisite pendant designs. Crafted by skilled goldsmiths each piece is a one-of-its-kind. She does not repeat designs, unless asked to do so.

Her jewellery line is being crafted roles from a high-flying executives to a doting nappy-changing father, a person who knows what to do when and what to wear when. Her branded jewellery can be worn both with traditional attire and western wear. An Aztec figurine designed as a button can adorn a denim jacket front or a zari-embroidered kurta. Some of the pieces can be worn to semi-formal occasions but most are for formal occasions.

Horse Sense

By R RAMANUJAM

IT was early 20th century in Srirangam, a temple town in Trichy district of Tamil Nadu which is home to generations of my family. Automobiles had just made an appearance in India, but it was still fashionable for the rich to own horse buggies. No wonder then that Ranga, a well-heeled local lawyer, indulged in the luxury of a horse-cart. It would transport him from his house in Srirangam, to the law courts in Trichy. On its daily sojourn, the equine would majestically cross the elegant bridge over the Cauvery river, and halt on its way back at the club or the bazaar, where Ranga would alight proudly from the couch. The horse could gallop like a gale, easily overtaking the other carriages and sometimes even the occasional car that crossed its path. It was the envy of local residents and the claim to fame of Ranga's family.

But the winds of change could not be shut out. His brother coaxed Ranga into buying a car, citing reasons of modernity and easy maintenance. The horse was sold and replaced by a gleaming new automobile. The memory of the horse blew away quickly, almost like the dust the animal used to kick up while galloping along the countryside.

Nearly five years later, Ranga was on his way to a village in Vellore district, to attend a family wedding. Katpadi was the railway station closest to the venue. From there, one had to take a cart, to reach the village. Outside the station were dozens of horse-carts, their drivers noisily urging weary travellers to climb on to their coaches. Ranga hailed one of them. He placed his luggage into the coach, adjusted his dhoti and had barely clutched the wooden support to lift himself up, when the horse suddenly neighed loudly. Ranga stepped back, startled. The horse shook its head vigorously, raised its two front legs and snorted and fumed, almost overthrowing the cart. The driver was nonplussed. He began to cajole the beast, and a little later, caned and yelled threats at it. But it continued to behave strangely.

The driver stood still for a while, looking thoughtful. A few minutes later, he came to Ranga and said "Sir, I have a hunch. Could you come near the horse?" With trepidation, Ranga took a few steps forward. "Sir, please stroke the horse", the driver requested. Uneasily, Ranga complied. And suddenly the horse calmed down as though it had received the touch of a miracle-healer.

"Sir, did you own a horse at any time?" the driver asked. Ranga answered that he had owned a horse in Srirangam but had sold it a few years ago. "Then, Sir, this is the one you sold", said the driver, his face flushed with the excitement of discovery. Ranga looked at the horse closely.

"Yes..." he said slowly, his voice betraying amazement. "This is the horse I sold". He could see traces of tears in the animal's eyes, and he stroked it in affection, trying to fight his own.

Hole-in-the-sock syndrome shows up

Hyderabadis are supposed to be suffering from HISS — the hole in the sock syndrome. Let's elaborate for those who haven't understood, on how this phrase came about. Apparently at one particular meet, in walked a man, smartly dressed, intelligent, had a great sense of humour, was knowledgeable on every topic, etc etc. But he had a tiny hole in his sock.

So whenever someone spoke highly about him, people around said, "But he has a hole in his sock," refusing to overlook that minor flaw. Now people say that's how we Hyderabadis are. You can give them the works, but after an event or programme, they will have to go back talking about the one odd error. Worse still is the fact that they go on and on about it. They have something to crib about perpetually. First they crib saying Hyderabad is starved for theatre. "There are no good plays here, unlike Mumbai..." they go on and on and on. Last week when Taj Krishna staged Lillet Dubey's Siren City, people went but came back saying, "the play was great, but the hospitality was pathetic." They cribbed about how Taj hadn't served them the best of snacks and drinks.

The other day, Grand Kakatiya staged a play, The Star Spangled Girl, by Expressions which happens to be a local group. As always, especially when the invite is free, the place was packed. People stayed till the end, enjoyed the snacks, drinks and food, but when asked how they enjoyed themselves they said, "The play was bad, terrible in fact, but we had a blast as the food, snacks and drinks were superb." When asked to comment, Kakatiya GM, Dhunji, said, "Well, I am GM of ITC Hotels, not Shakespeare and Co. Our idea was to promote local talent. There is no need to run them down like that."

Now for some tongue-in-seek?

Researchers at the University of Wisconsin at Madison are developing a device that will allow people to see the world with their tongues. They say the tongue is an effective portal to the brain because of its sensitivity, and electrical impulses created by a camera and a computer can allow users to sense objects in space, as impulses from working eyes do naturally.

"Initially, when you first start training on it, you feel everything on the skin," says Dr Paul Bach-y-Rita, a professor of rehabilitation medicine and biomedical engineering at the University of Wisconsin. "But after about 10 hours, you forget about the skin and feel everything in space."

After being trained with the device, subjects are able to sense their surroundings and react to them automatically, Bach-y-Rita says. New users tell him the array of electric stimulators on the tongue feels "like bubbly water, or champagne bubbles," though the sensation fades into the subconscious as users become accustomed to it. For the vision-substitute devices, subjects still are carrying a camera and are tethered to a computer that turns the images into electrical impulses, Bach-y-Rita says. But he envisions a system not too far in the future where a camera and computer are mounted in specialized glasses, and FM signals are transmitted wirelessly to the retainer's stimulators. He predicts that if funding sources come through, schools could be training blind children in visual spatial concepts with the devices in two years; and the general blind population could be using them in five years.

Schizophrenia is a severe mental disorder or group of disorders characterized by a disintegration of the process of thinking, the reality & emotional responsiveness. The sense of being persecuted is usually found in such patients. The patient feels that his thoughts, sensations & actions are shared & controlled by others. He becomes socially withdrawn and loses energy and initiative.

The main types of ~~schizophrenia~~ ^{SCHIZOPHRENIA} are simple, hebephrenic and catatonic. This can be treated with drugs like PHENOTHIAZINES and vigorous psychological & social management and rehabilitation.

The cause may be genetic as well as environmental.

SCHIZO = split
PHRENIA = mind } meaning split mind

Usually it is the genes of the parents especially the mother's that play a crucial role in the parents' psyche.

Subs. real life not the long.

A DICKENSIAN DISTRESS

86

CHILDREN CONTINUE TO work despite a law and a court order. In 1996, the Supreme Court called for the enforcement of the Child Labour Act passed a decade earlier. But the evil did not disappear. A recent report says that 48,000 girls are employed by multinational companies in their Andhra Pradesh hybrid cotton seed farms. In fact, another 350,000 girls are to be found in such fields in and outside the State. An International Labour Organisation study is even more disturbing: there are nearly 15 million toilers below 14 in India out of the world's 250 million. And many of them spend a good part of each day in some of the most dangerous professions, such as the match and fireworks factories in the South, and the glass manufacturing units in the North. For these unfortunate souls childhood is just about a mirage, working as they do in dark, dirty and suffocating holes often for 14 or 15 hours. Despite pressure — both internal and external (child-made rugs are boycotted) — children struggle trying to earn a pittance. If education is a far cry for them, a decent existence too eludes them.

If it is a shame that India has not been able to, after more than half a century of independence, eradicate child labour, the fact that big firms are partners in this crime is scandalous. Equally reprehensible is the system of hiring very young boys and girls for household chores. Invariably underpaid and sometimes abused, they grow up into illiterate, ill-informed and maladjusted individuals. The very thought that thousands of such people are being added every year to an already whopping number of uneducated (often the benchmark for literacy is one's ability to sign his or her name) evokes a sense of revulsion. And now, with large international chains turning slave drivers, one can clearly hear the alarm bells. With their money and might, these organisations can be ruthless in their pursuit.

However, the Government is ultimately responsible for all this: see the way rules are flouted in this country. Those who head or run a commercial establishment violate laws with their eyes wide open and a dare-you attitude, and if that earns them the cheap services of teenagers, the fault lies, at least to a large extent, with a system which is selfishly callous to the pain and suffering of a voiceless group. Admittedly, this is a gigantic problem with no easy solutions. But the question is, has the administration even made a decent beginning in addressing it. Child labour in India, as it is elsewhere, is linked to poverty. As someone once remarked, there are at least no beggars and prostitutes in Sivakasi, where firecrackers and matches are made. This, in any case, is hardly a consolation for turning out hundreds of thousands of young men and women who get desperate and despondent after years of backbreaking grind. Certainly, nobody below 14 must work, and those above have as much a right to education as those younger. Big companies must contribute here: perhaps they can teach their young employees not quite literature and science, but how to read and write, and vocational subjects. There is now a move to set up a National Commission for Children, and when this happens, it must make it a point to tackle child labour. But before that, it is imperative that our policy makers and functionaries try and understand the obligations an adult has towards a child. Otherwise, the millions of its ilk will continue to wallow in Dickensian distress.

An English breakfast is more substantial compared to Continental B/F. An English B/F menu consists of a two to eight course meal and the order of the courses is the same as a classical French Breakfast Menu.

For instance, stewed fruit, cereals, fish, eggs, meat etc whereas a Continental breakfast is generally of a much lighter nature & consists of a hot toast, butter, preserves & coffee/tea.

Generally Room Tariffs of hotels, include a Continental B/F as part of the deal. But the English B/F is an exclusive affair. One has to pay for it over and above the room Tariff for it.

Scape GOAT

A Scape goat is a person in a guilty mode to shoulder the blame for others' mistakes & often punished thereby.

The term originated from a Biblical incident in which AARON confessed all sins of the children of ISRAEL over the head of a live goat which was then sent into the wilderness, symbolically bearing their sins on the day of Atonement. It was called the goat of "AZAZEL" (the desert-demon).

Over the passage of time, the term got corrupted to goat for "EZAZEL", or the goat for escape (from one's sins), further shortened to (E)SCAPE GOAT.

(because it lets others or real culprits to escape)

Split personality or Multiple personality is a RARE disorder in which one's personality becomes so fractured that two or more relatively independent sub-personalities emerge. Most normal persons show pronounced changes, in style, behaviour and relationships as they move between different social roles. This disorder is usually associated with a history of severe abuse during childhood where FANTASY is the only escape from painful reality. One should not confuse Multiple personality with SCHIZOPHRENIA.

PHONES

The condition of multiple personality is an abnormality of degree and not of kind. Most normal people live normal ordinary lives, with a family; but another personality can take over any time & be in control for hours, days or weeks. It is a degenerative disease that destroys mind & memory. An estimated 22 millions of people would ride, suffer from the disease. It usually affects those aged > 60 years and its symptoms are:- Confusion & behavior changes & personality changes & loss of ability to think, reasoning & remember old things & facts. There is no cure for this disease.

The cause of the Alzheimer's disease is not known. But certain risk factors have been identified. The chances of the disease increases with age. Another less prevalent factor is genetic. In this too there are 2 categories. one is hereditary & the other one induced in the embryo through mutations in cells in the post-fertilisation stage.

Value-Added is a developing concept of accounting. The input by process of manufacturing or by service rendered on it results in output. Low value added in it.

A carpenter makes a table and adds a value added to it. The various contributors to the value addition are:
+ Labour
+ employees wages
+ Technological cost
+ Capital

All these factors are rewarded suitably in different forms, for such addition:
V.g: Labour gets wages employees get salary Technologists get royalties
Capital owner gets return in terms of profit.

VAT is a method of accounting. by which the value of a product is inflated at each stage of production to fleece the consumer and possibly unwilling to dodge the Taxman.

Though I be no more in flesh and blood I shall ever protect my devotees.

Osteoporosis is a condition in which the bones get weak & brittle or means a low bonemass. As we grow older, the density of bone decreases and then brittleness increases. Women are particularly affected especially after the menopause stage as the body no longer produces OSTROGEN, the hormone which helps maintain bonemass. The rate of bone loss in MEN is slower as men have greater bone mass to begin with.

As the name itself suggests, Synthetic Milk is synthesized by mixing liquid or pulverised soap with vegetable oil & water, along with urea, detergent, sugar & common salt.

The vegetable oil prevents the soap solution from frothing but saponifies oil into an emulsion. Imported refined polyunsaturated oil is a preferred choice because it is the cheapest edible oil.

What should be noted is the fact it is potentially dangerous to health.

It is 100% hazardous. It cannot be called milk at all. It has none of its properties except color.

Named after ELECTRA, the woman in Greek Mythology, who plotted to kill her mother to avenge her father.

inspired by a theory propounded by Sigmund FREUD, the father of modern psychology.

Every individual undergoes certain psychosexual stages. During his 3rd stage, (Phallic stage - 3 to 6 years of age) the parent of the opposite sex forms the first love object. While a boy gets attracted to his mother, the girl is attracted to his father.

But the child knows that the parent cannot be possessed due to his/her intimacy with the other parent. Thus the child goes through anxiety & conflict in his/her mind.

For the boy the attraction is called OEDIPUS Complex & for the girl the attraction is ELECTRA Complex. It is a girl child's desire for her father & rivalry with her mother for father's affection. Psychologically, a girl child with father fixation is LUCKY. While a boy child with mother fixation is NOT SO.

A heart MURMUR is an usual sound heard in relation to the heart beat. It may be organic (caused by structural damage in the heart) or may be non-organic - or even accidental. Some murmurs are transmitted - seemed to run along the ribs towards the arm pit; up on one side or from the breast bone to the neck. Murmurs may be systolic or diastolic. A third kind - the pre systolic occurring late in diastole.

A heart murmur is a noise or abnormal sound, heard with the aid of a stethoscope. This generally sound is generated by turbulent blood flow within the heart or by blood vessels. The turbulent flow is produced by damaged heart valves. Like a narrow opening, septal (partition in heart) defects or narrowed arteries.

The lacrymatory or tear glands are located under the nervous system and tears are shed during emotional disturbances.

The Crocodile is a Carnivorous animal. When it has fed on its prey, the salt level in its blood rises which is excreted in the form of tears. This is purely physical and there are no feelings involved.

The expression "to shed crocodile tears" therefore indicates false tears to which no genuine feelings are attached.

A well known professor started a seminar holding a brand new 500/- note in his hand. Nearly 200 people attended it. He held the 500/- note high up & called out to see if anybody wanted to have it. Almost the entire crowd raised their hands.

2) Then he crumpled the note & folded it in four and again asked if anybody wanted it. Almost ~~the~~ half still wanted it.

3) Then he dropped it on the floor & started to find it with his shoe & crumpled it & then took it into his hands in a big respect. He again asked if anybody wanted it. Nearly half of them wanted it back.

4) Then he put it in water & dried under the fan. A nearly half from his hand raised their hands.

Still more of them wanted to have it.

Almost the entire crowd raised their hands.

2) Then he crumpled the note & folded 100 times and again asked "Would anybody want it?"
Almost ~~the~~ half still wanted it.

3) Then he dropped it on the floor & started to find it with his shoe & crumpled it & then took it into his hands in a bad shape
& again asked "Would anybody want it?"
Nearly half of them wanted it back.

4) Then he put it in water & dried under the fan & nearly half again raised his hand still more ^{raised the hands} wanted to have it.

I made a big speech to say:

"My friends I have learnt a valuable lesson"

No matter whatever I did with the money
White wanted it because it did not decrease its value. It is white like Rs 5000."

Many times in our lives, we are dropped & crushed & ground out to dust by decisions we make & the circumstances that come our way we feel so heavy we are worthless"

But no matter whatever has happened to you or whatever is going to happen, you will never lose your value.

You are special But don't forget it. Never let your today's disappointments overshadow your tomorrow's dreams.

WORK TO DO

Health is the essential prerequisite for success in all aspects of life & for realising the ideas to guide human life. —

moral living prosperity

fulfilling temporal desires & liberation from grief

Man seeks to live happily & peacefully;
but happiness & peace are not won by worldly activities: No body can claim to be healthy & secure

& subject to disease, decay & death.

Hence, the Individual, the Self, within the body is not born nor does it die. • No body is the temple of God Hence it is the duty of man to keep the temple

in good condition

...but we are bettered, by making changes in them.

 He must win the peace & bliss by merging

 Then he enters into the Concentration He can then merge his mind in the
