CEO of the Claremont Chamber of Commerce

Nearly a year ago, I met Kathleen Fariss just days after she stepped into her new role as CEO of the Claremont Chamber of Commerce. She was speaking to my service club, thoughtfully introducing herself to a room full of people eager to understand what this next chapter for the Chamber might look like. What struck me immediately was her calm confidence, her warmth, and her unmistakable belief in the power of bringing people together.

Kathleen brings more than 30 years of experience as a leader, coach, and strategist, having launched organizations and supported business owners, individuals, and teams through periods of growth and transition. At the heart of her work has always been people—helping them gain clarity, build confidence, and lead with intention. Stepping into the Chamber role felt like a natural extension of that calling, allowing her to serve local businesses while strengthening the partnerships and systems that help our city thrive.

Years before assuming her current role, Kathleen served in several director-level positions at Claremont Graduate University, a chapter that deepened her connection to the campus community and the heart of the city.

During that time, she often found herself stepping into The Spot Cafe, a place she remembers as welcoming and kind—qualities she now associates deeply with Claremont itself. It's a reminder that community is often built around tables, long before we realize its impact.

That idea continues to shape Kathleen's leadership philosophy today. She believes that when you put people around tables—in conversation, in collaboration, in shared purpose—magic can happen. Creating those spaces for connection is what excites her most about this role. Service, for Kathleen, is not abstract; it's active, relational, and deeply human.

As CEO, her focus has been on strengthening the Chamber's operational foundation while refining how it serves its members.. Over the past year, that work has included increasing leadership engagement, improving how impact is measured and communicated, and investing in systems that support sustainable growth. Equally important is fostering a Chamber culture where relationships flourish, because when business owners and community leaders feel connected, collaboration follows naturally.

One of the Chamber's most impactful tools is the Discover Claremont Card—a digital gift card that can be used at participating local businesses, keeping dollars circulating within the community. With special promotions throughout the year, it offers residents a simple, meaningful way to support the small businesses that define Claremont's character.

Looking ahead, Kathleen envisions a future rooted in thoughtful, values-driven growth, strengthened by collaboration between businesses, the City, and the Claremont Colleges. Grounded in service, kindness, and collaboration, her leadership reflects a simple truth she lives by: when we invest in people—and invite them to the table—everything changes.

Claremont Educational Foundation Letter to the Community

Dear Claremont Community,

My name is Daniela Castro-Kent, and I have the honor of serving as President-Elect of the Claremont Educational Foundation. I write to you not only in that role, but as a lifelong Claremont resident, an educator, a parent, and someone who deeply believes in the power of this community.

Choosing to raise my children in Claremont was intentional. Like so many of you, I wanted them to grow up surrounded by strong values, meaningful opportunities, and access to an exceptional education. That shared commitment is what makes our city so special—and it's also what calls us to action today.

After many years working in education as an administrator, teacher, and coach, I have seen firsthand both the incredible dedication of our educators and the growing gap between what our schools need and what traditional funding can provide. Like countless teachers, I have personally invested thousands of dollars into my own classroom just to ensure my students have the tools and opportunities they deserve. This is not unique to me—it is happening across our district every single day.

That's where the Claremont Educational Foundation (CEF) steps in.

While individual school organizations work tirelessly to support their own campuses, CEF serves a broader purpose—supporting every student, every teacher, and every school across the entire district. Through the generosity of donors like you, CEF funds impactful programs that would not otherwise exist: district-wide grants, innovative classroom resources, and scholarships that open doors for students to pursue their dreams.

Your support does more than fill funding gaps—it helps shape the future of our community. It ensures that every student, regardless of circumstance, has access to enriching educational experiences. It empowers teachers to innovate, inspire, and go beyond the limits of constrained budgets, and it strengthens the very foundation of Claremont as a place where education is valued and prioritized.

I invite you to join us in this mission.

Whether as an individual donor or a corporate partner, your contribution has a direct and lasting impact. Together, we can continue to provide the level of educational excellence that defines Claremont—and ensure it endures for generations to come.

Thank you for your time, your consideration, and your commitment to our community.

With gratitude,

PRESIDENT-ELECT
CLAREMONT EDUCATIONAL FOUNDATION
