A Note from the Directors

The first time I saw the show The Normal Heart I realized the importance of a couple of things. Theatre connects us to a past we had no idea we could still resonate with us today. And loving your fellow man can come in so many ways but not doing anything to stand up for them when they need you is not love. In a time where so many things are uncertain. The fact is this really happened, and we need to make sure nothing like this ever happens again. Thanks to this group of amazing people for all the love, passion, and understanding. From the rough rehearsals to the moments Marie and I sat there with "chills" (we cried). Please enjoy the show and remember to stand up for each other.

- Maggie Aceves

I'm super excited to be bringing this show to life. This show has a lot of different meanings. To me The Normal Heart is to not stay silent and to fight for what you believe and who/what you care for. Throughout the rehearsal process it has been hard for me to not get emotional due to the story that is being told and the people telling this story. It's based on a true story, a story of resilience, heart, and not letting people walk all over you. In our world today this message is so important. I have also loved working with Maggie on this show. She has been a huge support as we navigated different challenges throughout the rehearsal process. This story means something to the both of us. Enjoy the show, and never stay silent.

- Marie Roeder

This is theatre without distance. The Black Box format brings actors and audiences together in a way that makes performances feel immediate, immersive, and unforgettable. Be a part of it.
