2026 Flowering Annuals

The following list represents many - though not all - of the flowering annuals we are expecting to carry this season. Expect some variation in varieties based on prime availability at time of delivery from the specialty grower we use.

The majority of offerings are native to the Southern US or to South or Central America. Many are considered tender perennials and may overwinter or reseed with special care. All are grown by Beds & Borders, a specialty wholesale grower located on Long Island. Learn about their commitment to exceptional quality and care of the environment on their website where you can also research plant varieties. www.BedsandBorders.com
